Spirit’s Day Version (SDV), Edited by Diane Guerrero

The Spirit’s Day mission is to sound the trumpet-alarm for the coming Kingdom of Christ’s Love, and to reach and equip the Children of the Kingdom in preparation for this ultimate and glorious event, through the literary works of ancient, prophetic, holy and devout souls.

All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced in any form whatsoever without the written permission of the publisher.

About the Spirit’s Day Version

The goal of the Spirit’s Day Version (SDV) is to assist the modern reader wherever archaic language might prove difficult in reading and understanding these glorious and magnificent mysteries. The paramount ambition was to remain faithful to the text, while preserving the beautiful writing style of this mystical Author, as well as the classical flavor of the time period. The SDV is not a paraphrase, thus the Author’s beautiful prose and unique terminology remain intact. Features updated language and paragraph numbering. Archaic words were replaced, as well as archaic spellings. Long paragraphs have been broken down into manageable portions. When no chapter divisions were present in the original, the writings were divided into such, with paragraph numbering throughout. The result is an excellent study version where passages can be easily identified and cross-referenced. Extreme care has been taken to ensure that unique message remains untouched. For more information on how the SDV differs from the original, please visit www.spiritsday.org or www.janelead.org.

As the manifestation of the Kingdom of the Love draws near, His promised Spirit will explain all things, and lead us into all Truth. For indeed only the Anointed Ones shall truly understand and advance in these profound mysteries as presented to us by the Spirit of Truth—whom we are to earnestly look for, and diligently wait upon.

In Christ Jesus,

Notes Concerning the not finishing of this Book Aurora.
J. B. PRFACE FOR THE AURORA

Being a brief information concerning the Two Qualities: the Evil and the Good in nature, from the Beginning to the End.

To the Courteous Reader

[Aur. P:1] COURTEOUS Reader, I compare the whole Philosophy, Astrology, and Theology, together with their mother, to a goodly tree which grows in a fair garden of pleasure.

[Aur. P:2] Now the earth in which the tree stands affords sap continually to the tree, whereby the tree has its living quality: But the tree in itself grows from the sap of the earth, becomes large, and spreads itself abroad with its branches: And then, as the earth works with its power upon the tree, to make it grow and increase, so the tree also works continually with its branches, with all its strength, that it might still bear good fruit abundantly.

[Aur. P:3] But when the tree bears few fruit, and those but small, shriveled, rotten, and worm-eaten, the fault does not lie in the will of the tree, as if it desired purposely to bear evil fruit, because it is a goodly tree of good quality. But here lies the fault: because there is often great cold, great heat, and mildew, caterpillars and other worms happen to it; for the quality in the deep, from the influence of the stars, spoils it, and that makes it bear but few good fruit.

[Aur. P:4] Now the tree is of this condition, that the bigger and older it is, the sweeter fruit it bears: In its younger years it bears few fruit, which the crude and wild nature of the ground or earth causes, and the superfluous moisture in the tree: And though it bears many fair blossoms, yet the most of its apples fall off while they are growing; unless it stands in a very good soil or mold. Now this tree also has a good sweet quality; but there are three others, which are contrary to it, namely, the bitter, the sour, and the astringent.

[Aur. P:5] As the tree is, so will its fruit be, till the sun works on them and makes them sweet; so that they become of a pleasant taste, and its fruit must also hold out in rain, wind and tempest.

[Aur. P:6] But when the tree grows old, that its branches wither and the sap ascends no more, then below the stem or stock there grow many suckers; at last from the root twigs grow also, and transfigure the old tree, showing that it also was once a green twig and young tree, and is now become old. For Nature, or the sap, struggles so long till the stock grows quite dry; and then it is to be cut down and burnt in the fire.

[Aur. P:7] Now observe what I have signified by this similitude: The garden of this tree signifies the world; the soil or mold signifies nature; the stock of the tree signifies the stars; by the branches are meant the elements; the fruit which grow on this tree signify men; the sap in the tree denotes the pure Deity. Now men were made out of nature, the stars, and elements; but God the Creator reigns in all: even as the sap does in the whole tree.

[Aur. P:8] But there are two qualities in nature, even until the Judgment of God: The one is pleasant, heavenly and holy; the other is fierce, wrathful, hellish and thirsty.

[Aur. P:9] Now the good one qualifies and works continually with all industry to bring forth good fruit, and the Holy Ghost reigns therein, and affords thereunto sap and life: the bad one springs and drives with all its endeavor to bring forth bad fruit continually, to which the Devil affords sap and hellish flame. Now both are in the tree of nature, and men are made out of that... tree, and live in this world, in this garden, between both, in great danger; suddenly the sun shines on them; by and by, winds, rain, and snow fall on them.

[Aur. P:10] That is, if a man elevates his spirit into the Deity, then the Holy Ghost moves, springs and qualifies in him: But if he permit his spirit to sink into the world, in lust towards evil, then the Devil and hellish sap stir and reign in him.

[Aur. P:11] Even as the apple on the tree becomes corrupt, rotten and worm-eaten, when frost, heat, and mildew fall on it, and easily falls off and perisheth: So does man also when he suffers the Devil to rule in him with his poison.

[Aur. P:12] Now as in nature there are, spring up and reign, good and bad; even so in man: But man is the child of God, whom God has made out of the best kernel of nature, to reign in the good and overcome the bad: Though evil sticks unto man, even in nature the evil hangs on the good, yet he can overcome the evil if he elevates his spirit in God; for then the Holy Ghost stirs and moves in him, and helps him to overcome.

[Aur. P:13] As the good quality in nature is potent to overcome the evil, for the good quality is and comes from God, and the Holy Ghost is the Ruler therein, even so is the fierce wrathful quality powerful to overcome in a malicious wicked soul: For the Devil is a potent ruler in the wrath or fierceness, and is an eternal prince of the same.

[Aur. P:14] But man, through the fall of Adam and Eve, has cast himself into fierce wrathfulness, so that the evil hangs on him; otherwise his moving and driving would be only in the good. But now his moving and driving are in both. And it is as St Paul said, Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants in obedience, his servants ye are, to whom ye obey, either to sin unto death, or to the obedience of God unto righteousness.1

[Aur. P:15] But because man has an impulse or inclination to both good and evil, he may lay hold on which he pleases; for he lives in this world between both, and both qualities, the good and the bad, are in him; in whichever man moves, with that he is endued, either with a holy, or with a hellish power. For Christ said, My Father will give the Holy Ghost to those that ask Him.2

[Aur. P:16] Besides, God commanded man to do good, and forbad him to do evil; and now does daily call and cry aloud, preach and exhort man unto good; whereby we see well enough that God wills not evil, but his will is, That his kingdom should come, and his will be done, on earth as it is in heaven. But now man is poisoned through sin, that the fierce wrathful quality, as well as the good, reigns in him, and he is now half dead, and in his gross ignorance can no more know God his Creator, nor nature and its operation: Yet has nature used its best endeavors from the beginning till now, to which God has given his Holy Ghost, so that it [nature] has at all times generated wise, holy, and understanding men, who learned to know nature, and their Creator, and who always in their writings and teachings have been a light to the world, whereby God has raised his Church on earth, to his eternal praise. Against which the Devil has raged, and spoiled many a noble twig, through the wrathful fierceness in nature, whose prince and god he is.

[Aur. P:17] For nature has many times prepared and fitted a learned judicious man with good gifts, and then the Devil has done his utmost to seduce that man, and bring him into carnal pleasures, into pride, into a desire to be rich, and to be in authority and power. Thereby the Devil has ruled in him, and the fierce wrathful quality has overcome the good; his understanding and his knowledge and wisdom have been turned into heresy and error, and he has made a mock of the truth, and been the author of great errors on earth, and a good leader of the Devil’s host.

[Aur. P:18] For, ever since the beginning, the bad quality in nature has wrestled with the good, and does still wrestle, and has elevated itself, and spoiled many a noble fruit even in the mother’s womb, as it plainly appears, first by Cain and Abel, who came from one womb. From his mother’s womb Cain was a despiser of God, and proud; but Abel, on the contrary, was a humble man, and one that feared God.

[Aur. P:19] The same is seen also in the three sons of Noah; as also by Abraham’s sons, Isaac, and Ismael, especially by Isaac’s in Esau and Jacob, who struggled and wrestled even in the mother’s womb: therefore said God, Jacob have I loved, and Esau have I hated; which is nothing else but that both qualities in nature have vehemently wrestled the one with the other.

[Aur. P:20] For when God at that time moved in nature, and would reveal himself unto the world through righteous Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and would raise a church to himself on earth for his glory, then in nature malice also moved, and its prince Lucifer. Seeing there was good and bad in man, therefore both qualities could reign in him, and therefore there was born at once in one womb an evil man and a good man.

[Aur. P:21] Also it is clearly seen by the first world, as also by the second, even unto the end of our time, how the heavenly and the hellish kingdoms in nature have always wrestled the one with the other, and stood in great travail, even as a woman in the birth. This does most clearly appear by Adam and Eve. For in Paradise there grew up a tree of both qualities, of good and bad, wherewith Adam and Eve were to be tempted, to try whether they would hold out in the good quality in the angelical kind and form. For the Creator forbade Adam and Eve to eat of the fruit: But the evil quality in nature wrestled with the good, and brought Adam and Eve into a lust and longing to eat of both. Thereupon they presently came to be of a bestial form and kind, and did eat of good and bad, and must increase and live in a bestial manner; and so many a noble twig begotten or born of them perished.

[Aur. P:22] Afterwards it is seen how God wrought in nature, when the holy fathers in the first world were born: As Abel, Seth, Enos, Kenan, Mahalaleel, Jared, Henoch, Methuselah, Lamech, and holy Noah. These made the name of the Lord known to the world, and preached Repentance: For the Holy Ghost wrought in them.

[Aur. P:23] On the contrary, the hellish god also wrought in nature, and begot mockers and despisers, first Cain and his posterity: And it was with the first world as with a young tree, which grows, is green, and blossoms fairly, but brings little good fruit, by reason of its wild kind. So nature in the first world brought forth but little good fruit, though it blossomed fair in worldly knowledge, and luxury or wantonness, which could not apprehend the Holy Spirit, who wrought in nature then, as well as now.

[Aur. P:24] Therefore said God, It repents me, that I have made man, (Gen. vi:6) and he stirred up nature so, that all flesh which lived on dry land died, excepting the root and stock, that remained in virtue: and so he has hereby dunged the wild tree, and manured it, that it should bear better fruit. But when the same sprang up again, it brought forth good and bad fruit again: Among the sons of Noah there were found again mockers and despisers of God, and there grew hardly any good branch on the tree, which brought forth any holy and good fruit: The other branches were bearing also, and brought forth wild Heathen.

[Aur. P:25] But when God saw that man was thus dead in his knowledge, he moved nature again, and showed unto man how there was good and bad therein, that man should avoid evil, and live unto the good; and he caused fire to fall down out of nature, and fired Sodom and Gomorrah, for a terrible example to the world. But when the blindness of men grew predominant, and they refused to be taught by the spirit of God, he gave laws and precepts unto them, showing how they should behave themselves, and confirmed the laws and precepts with wonders, and with signs, lest the knowledge of the true God should be quite extinct. But for all this, the light did not manifest itself, for the darkness and wrathful fierceness in nature struggled against it, and the prince of darkness ruled powerfully.

[Aur. P:26] But when the tree of nature came to its middle age, then it began to bear some mild and sweet fruit, to show that it would now bear pleasant fruit. Then were born the holy prophets, out of the sweet branch of the tree, who taught and preached of the light, which hereafter should overcome the wrathful fierceness in nature. And then there arose a light in nature among the Heathen, so that they knew nature, and her operation, although this was a light in the wild nature only, and was not yet the holy light.

[Aur. P:27] For the wild nature was not yet overcome, and light and darkness wrestled so long the one with the other, till the sun arose, and with its heat forced this tree, so that it did bear pleasant sweet fruit; that is, till there came a Prince of Light, out of the heart of God, and became man in nature, and wrestled in his human body, in the power of the divine light, in the wild nature. That same Prince and Royal Twig grew up in nature, and became a tree in nature, and spread its branches abroad from the east to the west; and encompassed the whole nature, and wrestled and fought with the fierce wrath which was in nature, and with the prince thereof, till he overcame and triumphed, as a king in nature, and took the prince of wrath or fierceness captive in his own house.4

[Aur. P:28] This being done, there grew out of the Royal Tree, which was grown in nature, many thousand legions of precious sweet twigs, all which had the scent and taste of that precious tree. Though there fell upon them rain, snow, hail and tempestuous storms, so that many a twig was torn and beaten off from the tree, yet still others grew in their places. For the wrath or fierceness in nature, and the prince thereof, raised great tempests, with hail, thunder, lightning and rain, so that many glorious twigs were torn from the sweet and good tree.

[Aur. P:29] But these twigs were of such a pleasant, sweet and delightful taste, that no human nor angelical tongue is able to express it: For there was great power and virtue in them, so that they were good to heal the wild Heathen. Whatever Heathen did eat of the twig of this tree was delivered from the wild nature in which he was born, and became a sweet branch in this precious tree, and sprang in that tree, and bore precious fruit, like the Royal Tree. Therefore many Heathen hastened to the precious tree, where the precious twigs lay, which the prince of darkness, by his storms and tempestuous winds, had torn off; and whatever Heathen did smell at the twig so torn off was healed of his wild wrath or fierceness, which he had brought from his mother into the world.

[Aur. P:30] But when the prince of darkness saw that the Heathen strove and contended about these twigs, and not about the tree, therein he found great loss and damage, and then he ceased with his storms toward the east and south, and placed a merchant under the tree, who gathered up the twigs which were fallen from the precious tree: And when the Heathen came, and inquired after the good and virtuous twigs, then the merchant presented and offered them for money, to make gain of the precious tree. For this the prince of wrath or fierceness required at the hands of his merchant, because the tree was grown upon his ground and land, and spoiled his soil.

[Aur. P:31] So when the Heathen saw that the fruit of the precious tree was put to sale, they flocked to the merchant, and bought of the fruit of the tree; and they came to buy also from foreign islands, even from the ends of the world. Now when the merchant saw that his wares were in request and esteem, he plotted how he might gather a great treasure to his master, and so sent factors abroad everywhere, to offer his wares to sell, praising them highly: But he sophisticated the wares, and sold other fruit instead of the good, which were not grown on the good tree; this he did to increase his master's treasure.
[Aur. P:32] But the Heathen, and all the islands and nations which dealt on the earth, were all grown on the wild tree, which was good and bad, and therefore were half blind, and did not discern the good tree (which, however, spread its branches from the east to the west) else they would not have bought of the false wares.

[Aur. P:33] But because they knew not the precious tree, which spread its branches over them all, all of them ran after and to the factors, and bought of them mixed false wares instead of good, and supposed they served for health: But because all of them longed after the good tree, (which, however, moved over them all), many of them were healed, because of their great desire they had to the tree. For the fragrancy of the tree, which moved over them, healed them of their wrath or fierceness and wild nature, and not the false wares of the factors: this continued for a long time.

[Aur. P:34] Now when the prince in the darkness, who is the source of wrath or fierceness, malice and perdition, perceived that men were healed of their poison and wild nature by the fragrancy of the precious tree, he was enraged, and planted a wild tree towards the north, which sprang up and grew in the fierceness or wrath of nature, and made proclamation, saying: This is the tree of Life; he that eateth of it, shall be healed and live eternally.

[Aur. P:35] For in that place, where the wild tree grew, was a wild place, and the people there had the true light of God from the beginning, even unto that time, and to this day, though unknown: and the tree grew on the mount Hagar in the house of Ismael the mocker. But when proclamation was made of the tree, Behold, this is the Tree of Life! then the wild people, who were not born of God, but of the wild nature, flocked unto the tree, and loved the wild tree, and did eat of its fruit.

[Aur. P:36] And the tree grew to a mighty bigness, by the sap of wrath or fierceness in nature, and spread abroad its branches, from the north to the east and west: But the tree had its source and root from the wild nature, which was good and bad; and as the tree was, so were its fruits. But though the men of this place were grown out of the wild nature, yet the tree grew over them all, and grew so huge, that it reached with its branches even unto the esteemed precious land or country under the holy tree.

[Aur. P:37] But the cause that the wild tree grew to such a huge bigness, was because the nations under the good tree all ran after the factors who sold the false wares, and did eat of the false fruits, which were good and bad, and supposed they were healed thereby, and meddled not with the holy, good, effectual tree.

[Aur. P:38] In the meanwhile they grew more blind, weak and impotent, and were disabled to suppress the growing of the wild tree towards the north: For they were too weak and impotent, and they saw well enough that the tree was wild, and bad; but they wanted strength, and could not suppress the growing of the tree.

[Aur. P:39] Yet if they had not run after the false wares those factors sold, and had not eaten of the false fruits, but rather eaten of the precious tree, then they might have gotten strength to oppose the wild tree. But because they ran a whoring after the wild nature in human conceits and opinions, in the lusts of their hearts, in a hypocritical way, therefore the wild nature did predominate over them, and the wild tree grew high and large over them, and spoiled them with its wild rankness.

[Aur. P:40] For the prince of wrath or fierceness in nature gave his power to the tree, to spoil men that did eat of the wild fruits of the factors: Because they forsook the Tree of Life, and sought after their own cleverness, as mother Eve did in Paradise, therefore their own innate quality predominated in them, and brought them into strong delusions, as St Paul said. And the prince of the wrath or fierceness raised wars and tempests from the wild tree towards the north, against the people and nations that were not born of the wild tree; and the tempest that came from the wild tree overthrew them in their weakness and faintness.

[Aur. P:41] And the merchant under the good tree disseminated with the nations of the south and west, and towards the north, and commended his wares hugely, and cunningly deceived the simple ones; and those that were witty, he made them his factors, that they also might have their livelihood or livings out of it, and he brought it so far that nobody saw or knew the holy tree anymore, and so he got all the land to himself, and then made proclamation, (2 Thes. 2) I am the stock of the good tree, and stand on the root of the good tree, and am engrafted into the Tree of Life, buy my wares which I sell: and then you shall be healed of your wild birth, and live forever.

[Aur. P:42] I am grown out of the root of the good tree, and the fruit of the holy tree is in my power, and I sit on the throne of the divine power; I have power in heaven and on earth, Come unto me, and buy for money the fruit of life.

[Aur. P:43] Whereupon all nations flocked to him, and did buy and eat, even till they fainted: All the kings of the south, the west, and towards the north, did eat the fruits of the factor, and lived under a great impotence; for the wild tree of the north grew more and more over them, and made waste of them a long time. And there was a miserable time upon earth, such as never was since the world stood; but men thought that time to be good, so terribly had the merchant under the good tree blinded them.

[Aur. P:44] But in the evening God in his mercy took pity on man’s misery and blindness, and stirred up the good tree again, even that glorious divine tree, which did bear the fruit of life; then there grew a twig near unto the root, out of that precious tree, and was green, and to it was given the sap and spirit of the tree, and it spoke with the tongue of man, and showed to everyone the precious tree, and its voice was heard in many countries.

[Aur. P:45] Then men resorted there to see and to hear what was the matter, and there was shown unto them the precious and vigorous Tree of Life of which men had eaten at the beginning, and were delivered of their wild nature. And they were mightily rejoiced, and did eat of the Tree of Life with great joy and refreshing, and so got new strength from the Tree of Life, and sang a new song concerning the true real Tree of Life, and so were delivered from their wild birth, and then hated the merchant and his factors, so also their false wares.

[Aur. P:46] But all those came that did hunger and thirst after the Tree of Life, and those that sat in the dust, and they did eat of the holy tree, and were healed of their impure birth and wrath, or fierceness of nature, in which they lived: and so were engrafted into the Tree of Life. But only the factors of the merchant came not, and his and their dissemblers, and those that made their gains with false wares, and had gathered treasure together, for they were drowned and quite dead in the gain of the merchant’s whoredom, and lived in the wild nature; and so their anguish and shame (which was discovered) kept them back, because they went a whoring so long with the merchant, and seduced the souls of men; notwithstanding they glorified that they were engrafted into the Tree of Life, and lived in sanctity by a divine power, and hawked about the fruit of life.

[Aur. P:47] Now because their shame, deceit, covetousness, knavery and wickedness were discovered, they waxed dumb, and stayed behind; they were ashamed, and repented not of their abominations and idolatry, and so went not with the hungry and thirsty to the Fountain of Eternal Life; and therefore they grew faint in their thirst, and their torment rises up from eternity to eternity, and they are gnawed in their conscience.

[Aur. P:48] Now the merchant, seeing that the deceit of his false wares was discovered, grew very wroth, and despised, and bent his bow against the holy people, who would buy no more of his wares, and so destroyed many of the holy people, and blasphemed the green twig that was grown up out of the Tree of Life. But then the great prince MICHAEL, who stands before God, came and fought for the holy people, and overcame.

[Aur. P:49] But the prince of darkness perceiving that his merchant had a fall, and that his deceit was discovered, raised a tempest from the north out of the wild tree against the holy people, and the merchant of the south made an assault upon them: then the holy people grew hugely in their blossom, even as it was in the beginning, when the holy and precious tree grew, and that overcame the wrath or fierceness in nature and its prince; thus it was at that time.

[Aur. P:50] Now when the noble and holy tree was revealed to all nations, so that they saw how it moved over them and spread its fragrancy over all people, and that any one that pleased might eat of it, then the people grew weary of eating its fruit, which grew on the tree, and longed to eat of the root of the tree; and the cunning and wise people sought after the root, and contended about the same: so the strife was great about the root of the tree, insomuch that they forgot to eat of the fruit of the sweet tree, by reason of the controversy about the root of the tree.

[Aur. P:51] Now they minded neither the root nor the tree, but the prince of darkness had another design, intending something else; when he saw that they would eat no more of the good tree, but contended about the root, he perceived that they were grown very weak and faint, and that the wild nature predominated in them again.

[Aur. P:52] Therefore he stirred them up to pride, so that everyone supposed that he had the root at hand, everyone must look after and hear him and reverence him: Whereby they built their palaces and great houses, and served in secrecy their idol, Mammon; whereby the lay people were troubled and caused to offend, and so lived in carnal pleasures, in the desire of the wild nature, and served their belly in wantonness, though they fell into misery, relying upon the fruit of the tree, which moved over them all, that thereby they might be healed.

[Aur. P:53] In the meanwhile they served the prince of darkness according to the impulse of the wild nature, and the precious tree stood there only for a May-game or mocking-stock, and many lived like wild beasts, and led a wicked life, in pride, pomp, stateliness and lasciviousness, and the rich consumed the labor and sweat of the poor, and oppressed him in addition.

[Aur. P:54] All evil actions were approved of for bribery: The laws issued forth out of the evil quality in nature, and every one strove after riches and goods, after pride, pomp and stateliness; there was no deliverer for the poor; scolding, railing, cursing and swearing were not disapproved nor held vicious, and so they defiled themselves in the wrathful or fierce quality, even as a swine tumbles in the dirt and mire.

[Aur. P:55] Thus did the shepherds with the sheep: they retained no more than the bare name of the noble tree; its fruit, virtue and life were only a cover to their sins. Thus the world lived at that time, saving a small remnant or number, which were generated in the midst among the thorns in great tribulation and contempt, out of all nations upon the earth, from the east to the west.

[Aur. P:56] There was no difference, they all lived upon the impulse of the wild nature, in impotence, even to a small number, which were delivered out of all nations, as it was before the deluge, and before the growing of the noble tree in nature; and thus it was also at that time.

[Aur. P:57] But why men, in the end, did long so eagerly after the root of the tree, is a mystery, and to this time it was concealed from the wise and prudent; neither will it rise up to the height, but in the deep, in great simplicity.

[Aur. P:58] An indeed the noble tree with its kernel and heart has always been concealed from the worldly wise, though they supposed they stood, some at the root, and some at the very top of the tree; yet this was no more than a shining mist before their eyes.

But the noble tree, from the beginning till now, strove in nature to its utmost, that it might be revealed to all people. [of all] tongues, and languages, against which the Devil in the wild nature raged, and fought like a fierce lion.

But the noble tree bore the more and the sweeter fruit, and revealed itself more and more against all the fury and madness of the Devil, even to the end: and then it was light. For there grew at the root of the noble tree a green twig, which got the sap and life of the root, to which was given the spirit of the tree; so that it transfigured or made clearly manifest the noble tree in its glorious virtue and power, and nature also, in which it grew.

Now when this was done, then both the gates of nature, the knowledge of the two qualities of good and bad, were opened, and so the Heavenly Jerusalem was manifested, and the kingdom of hell also, to all men upon earth. And the light and voice was heard in the four winds, and the false merchant in the south was quite revealed, and his own hated him, and rooted him out from the whole earth.

This being done, the wild tree towards the north withered, and all people beheld with wonder or great astonishment the holy tree, even in foreign islands. And the prince in the darkness was revealed, and his mysteries were discovered, and his shame, ignominy and perdition the men upon earth did see and know, for it was light.

This lasted but a short time; for men forsook that light, and lived in carnal pleasures, to their own perdition: For as the gate of light had opened itself, so did the gate of darkness also; and from them both went forth all manner of powers and arts that were therein.

For as men had lived from the beginning in the growth of the wild nature, and hunted after earthly things only, so in the end things were not mended, but rather grew worse.

In the middle of this time were raised many great stormy winds from the west towards the east and north: But from the north there went forth a great stream of water towards the holy tree, and spoiled many twigs in the holy tree, and in the midst of the stream it was light, and so the wild tree towards the north withered.

Then the prince in the darkness was enraged in the great motion of nature. For the holy tree moved in nature, as one that would by and by be elevated and kindled in the glorification of the holy divine Majesty, and cast the wrath or fierceness from it, which had so long stood against it, and had wrestled with it.

In like manner the tree of darkness, wrath, fierceness and perdition moved furiously, as one that would be kindled by and by, and therein the prince with his legions went forth to spoil the noble fruit of the good tree.

And it stood horribly in nature in the fierce quality, in that quality wherein the prince of darkness dwells, to speak after the manner of men; even as when men see terrible and cruel weather coming on, which makes a horrible appearance, with lightning and tempestuous winds, at which men stand terrified.

On the other side, in the good quality in which the holy tree of life stood, all was pleasant, sweet and delightful, like a heavenly joyfulness. These two moved furiously the one against the other, till the whole nature was kindled of both qualities in one moment.

The tree of life was kindled in its own quality by the fire of the Holy Ghost, and its quality burnt in the fire of heavenly joyfulness, in an unsearchable light and glory.

All voices of the heavenly joyfulness, which have been from eternity in the good quality, qualified, mixed or harmonized in this fire; and the light of the Holy Trinity shone into the tree of life, and replenished or filled the whole quality in which it stood.
The tree of the fierce quality, which is the other part in nature, was kindled also, and burnt in the fire of God’s wrath in a hellish flame; and the fierce source rose up into eternity, and the prince of darkness with his legions abode in the fierce wrathful quality, as in his own kingdom.

In this fire were consumed the earth, the stars, and the elements, for all were on fire at once, each in the fire of its own quality, and all became separable. For the Ancient of Days moved himself in it, wherein every power, and all the creatures, and whatsoever can be named, even the powers of heaven, of the stars, and of the elements, became thin again, and were fashioned according to that form which they were in from the beginning of the creation.

Only the two qualities, good and bad, which have been in nature the one in the other, were separated, and the bad one was given to the prince of malice and wrath, or fierceness, for an eternal habitation; and that is called Hell, or a Rejection, which in eternity no more apprehends or touches the good quality, but is an oblivion of all good, and that to its eternity.

In the other quality stood the Tree of eternal Life, and its source and offspring descended from the Holy Trinity, and the Holy Ghost shone into the same. And all men came forth which descended from the loins of Adam, who was the first man, each in his virtue, and in that quality in which each did grow on earth.

Those that on earth had eaten of the good tree, which is called JESUS CHRIST, in them flowed the mercy of God unto eternal joy; they had in them the power of the good quality, they were received into the good and holy quality, and they sang the song of their Bridegroom, each in his voice, according to his own holiness.

But those that were born in the light of nature, and of the Holy Ghost, and on earth never fully knew the Tree of Life, but were grown in its power, which overshadowed all men upon earth, as very many nations, heathen, and babes, which were also received into the same power wherein they were grown, and wherewith their spirit was clothed, they sang the song according to their power and measure in the noble Tree of eternal Life; for everyone was glorified according to his power, virtue, measure and proportion.

The holy nature generated joyful, heavenly fruit, even as on earth it had generated fruit in both the qualities, which were both good and bad, so now it generated heavenly fullness of joy.

Those men who were now like angels, did each eat the fruit of his quality, and they sang the song of God, and the song of the Tree of eternal Life.

And that was in the Father as a holy play, a triumphing joy; for to that end all things at the beginning were made out of the Father, and now they abide so to all eternity.

But those who were grown on earth in the power of the tree of wrath, that is, those whom the fierce quality had overcome, and who were withered in the wickedness of their spirit, in their sins, all those came forth also, each in his power or faculty; and they were received into the kingdom of darkness, and each was invested in that power in which he was grown up; and their king is called Lucifer, viz. one expelled or driven forth from the light.

The hellish quality brought forth fruit also, as it had done upon earth; only, the good was severed or parted from it, and therefore now it brought forth fruit in its own quality. And these men (who were now like the spirits), did each eat the fruit of his quality, and so did the devils also.
For as there is a difference in men upon earth in their qualities, and all are not of one quality, condition or disposition, even so among the rejected reprobate spirits; and so also in the heavenly pomp in angels and men; and that lasts unto its eternity. AMEN.

Courteous Reader, This is a short information concerning the two qualities in nature from the beginning to the end, how there arose from there two kingdoms, a heavenly and a hellish, and how they stir in this time and strive the one against the other, and what the issue of it will be in the time to come.
THE CONTENTS OF THIS BOOK AURORA

By Way of Introduction

To this book I have given this name,
The ROOT or MOTHER of Philosophy, Astrology, and Theology.

And that you may know what it does treat of, Observe,

I.

[Aur. I:1] In the Philosophy it treats of the divine power.

   I. What God is.
   II. How in the being of God, is created nature, the stars and the elements.
   III. From where everything has its original.
   IV. How heaven and earth were created.
   V. How angels, men, and devils were created.
   VI. How heaven and hell, and whatever is creaturely, were created, and what the Two Qualities are in nature.

All out of a true ground in the knowledge of the spirit, by the impulse and motion of God.

II.

[Aur. I:2] In the Astrology it treats,

   I. Of the powers of nature, of the stars and of the elements.
   II. How all creatures proceeded from there.
   III. How the same do impel and rule all.
   IV. And work in all, and how good and bad are wrought by them in men and beasts.
   V. How it comes that good and bad are, and reign in this world.
   VI. And how the kingdoms of heaven and of hell consist therein.

[Aur. I:3] My purpose is not to describe the course, place and name of all stars, and what is their annual conjunction, opposition, quadrate, or the like, and what they yearly and hourly operate, which, by a long process of time, and by diligent contemplation, observation, deep sense, calculation and computation, has been observed by wise, skillful and expert men, who were rich and large in spirit.

[Aur. I:4] Neither have I studied or learned the same, and leave that to the learned to discourse of; my intention is to write according to the spirit and sense, and not according to speculation.

III.

[Aur. I:5] In the Theology it treats,

   I. Of the kingdom of Christ, what constitutes the same.
   II. How it is set in opposition to the kingdom of hell.
III. How in nature it fights and strives against the kingdom of hell.

IV. How men, through faith and spirit, are able to overcome the kingdom of hell, and triumph in divine power and obtain eternal blessedness, and all this as a victory in the battle.

V. How man, through the operation or working in the hellish quality, casts himself into perdition.

VI. And what the issue of both will be at last.

[Aur. I:6] The supreme title is AURORA, that is, The Dawning of the Day in the East, or Morning Redness in the rising of the SUN. It is a secret Mystery, concealed from the wise and prudent of this world, of which they themselves shall shortly be sensible: But to those who read this book in singleness of heart, with a desire after the Holy Spirit, who place their hope in God only, it will not be a hidden secret, but a manifest knowledge.

[Aur. I:7] I will not explain this title, but commit it to the judgment of the impartial Reader, who wrestles in the good quality of this world.

[Aur. I:8] Now if Mr. Critic, who qualifies or works with his wit in the fierce quality, gets this book into his hand, he will oppose it, as there is always a stirring and opposition between the kingdom of heaven and the kingdom of hell.

I. First, he will say that I ascend too high into the Deity, which is not a meet thing for me to do.

II. Then, secondly, he will say that I boast of the Holy Spirit, and that I had more need to live accordingly, and make demonstration of it by wondrous works or miracles.

III. Thirdly, he will say that I am not learned enough.

IV. Fourthly, he will say that I do it in a vainglorious way.

V. Fifthly, he will be much offended at the simplicity of the author; for in the world it is usual [or customary] to be mindful only of high things, and to be irritated by simplicity.

[Aur. I:9] To these partial, worldly critics I set in opposition the patriarchs of the first world, who were mean despised men, against whom the world and the Devil raged, as in the time of Henoch. When the holy fathers first preached [or when they began to preach] powerfully of the name of the Lord, they did not ascend with their bodies into heaven, and behold all with their eyes: yet the Holy Ghost revealed himself in their spirits.

[Aur. I:10] Afterwards, it is seen in the next world among the holy patriarchs and prophets, who were all mean simple men, and some of them were herdsmen.

[Aur. I:11] And when the MESSIAH, CHRIST, the Champion in the battle in nature, assumed the humanity, though he was the King and Prince of men, yet in this world he kept himself in a low estate and condition, and was a stranger to the world. And his Apostles were poor despised fishermen.

[Aur. I:12] Nay, Christ himself returned thanks to his heavenly Father, that he has concealed these things from the worldly wise men, and revealed them unto babes.6

[Aur. I:13] Besides, it is seen how they also were poor sinners, having the impulses both of good and bad in nature. And yet they reproved and preached against the sins of the world, yea, against their own sins, which they did by the impulse of the Holy Spirit, and not in vainglory.

[Aur. I:14] Neither had they any ability from their own strength and power to teach of God's Mysteries in that kind, but all was by the impulse of God.
So neither can I say anything of myself, nor boast or write anything, save this: that I am a simple man, and, besides, a poor sinner, and have need to pray daily, Lord, forgive us our sins; and to say with the Apostle, O Lord, you have redeemed us with your blood.

Neither did I ascend into heaven, and behold all the works and creatures of God; but the same heaven is revealed in my spirit, so that in the spirit I know the works and creatures of God.

Besides, the will to that is not my natural will, but is the impulse of the spirit; and for it I have endured many an assault of the Devil.

The spirit of man is descended not only from the stars and elements, but there is hidden therein a spark of the light and power of God.

It is not an empty word which is set down in Genesis, God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him. For it has this sense and meaning, viz. that he is created out of the whole being of the Deity.

The body is from the elements: therefore it must have elemental food.

The soul has its original, not only from the body, though it takes its rise in the body, and has its first beginning in the body; yet in it, has also its source from without, by and from the air; and so the Holy Ghost rules in it, in that manner as he replenishes and fills all things, and as all things are in God; and so God himself is all.

Seeing then in the soul the Holy Spirit is creaturely, viz. the propriety or portion of the soul, therefore it searches even into the Deity, and also into nature; for it has its source and descent from the being of the whole Deity.

When it is kindled or enlightened by the Holy Ghost, then it beholds what God its Father does, as a son beholds what his father does at home in his house.

It is a member or child in the house of the heavenly Father.

As the eye of man sees even unto the stars, from which it has a finite original and beginning, so also the soul sees even into the Deity, and also into nature; for it has its source and descent from the being of the whole Deity.

But the soul having its source also out of nature, and that in nature there is good and bad, and that man has cast himself, through sin, into the fierceness or wrath of nature, so that the soul is daily and hourly defiled with sins, therefore it knows but in part.

For the wrath or fierceness in nature reigns now also in the soul. The Holy Ghost does not go into the wrath or fierceness, but reigns in the source of the soul, which is in the light of God, and fights against the wrath or fierceness in the soul.

Therefore the soul cannot attain unto any perfect knowledge in this life, till at the end, when light and darkness are separated, and wrath or fierceness is, with the body, consumed in the earth, then the soul sees clearly and perfectly in God its Father.

But when the soul is kindled or enlightened by the Holy Ghost, then it triumphs in the body, like a huge fire, which makes the heart and reins tremble for joy.

There is not presently a great and deep knowledge in God its Father, but its love towards God its Father triumphs thus in the fire of the Holy Spirit.

The knowledge of God is sown in the fire of the Holy Ghost, and at first is as small as a grain of mustard-seed, as Christ makes the comparison. Afterwards it grows large like a tree, and spreads itself abroad in God its Creator.
Just as a drop of water in the ocean cannot avail much; but if a great river runs into it, that makes a great commotion.

Time past, present, and to come, as also depth and height, near and afar off, are all one in God, one comprehensibility.

The holy soul of man sees the same also, but in this world in part only. It happens sometimes that it sees nothing at all, for the Devil does assault it furiously in the fierce wrathful source that is in the soul, and oftentimes covers the noble mustard-seed; therefore man must always be at strife [or in conflict].

In this manner, and in this knowledge of the spirit, I will write in this book concerning God our Father, in whom are all things, and who himself is all; and will handle how all is become separable and creaturely, and how all is impelled and moves in the whole tree of life.

Here you shall see, 1. The true ground of the Deity; 2. How all was one being, essence or substance before the time of this world; 3. How the holy angels were created, and out of what; 4. How the terrible fall happened, of Lucifer, together with his legions; 5. How heaven, earth, stars and the elements were made; 6. How metals, stones and the creatures in the earth are generated; 7. How the birth of life is, and the corporeity of all things; 8. What the true heaven is, in which God and his saints do dwell; 9. What the wrath of God is, and the hellish fire; 10. And how all is become kindled and inflamed. In brief, how, and what, the essence of all being is.

The first seven chapters treat very plainly and comprehensibly of the being of God, and of angels, by similitudes, what the Reader may, from one step to another, at last come to the deep sense and true ground.

In the eighth chapter begins the depth in the divine being, and so on, the further the deeper.

Special points are often repeated, and described still more deeply, for the Reader's sake, and by reason of my slow and dull apprehension.

That which you do not find sufficiently explained in this book, you will find more clearly in the second and third books.

For corruption is the cause why we know but in part, and have not perfect knowledge at once.

Yet this book is THE WONDER OF THE WORLD, which the holy soul will understand well enough. Thus I commit the reader into the meek and holy love of God.
CHAPTER 1

Concerning the searching out of the Divine Being in Nature: Also concerning the Two Qualities, the Good and the Evil.

[Aur. 1:1] Though flesh and blood cannot conceive or apprehend the being of God, but the spirit only when enlightened and kindled from God:

[Aur. 1:2] Yet if a man will speak of God, and say what God is, then,

I. A man must diligently consider the powers in nature.

II. Also the whole creation, heaven and earth.

III. The stars, the elements, and the creatures that are proceeded from them. As also the holy angels, devils, and men; moreover, heaven and hell.

Of the Two Qualities in One.

[Aur. 1:3] In this consideration are found two qualities, a good one and an evil one, which are in each other as one thing in this world, in all powers, in the stars and the elements, as also in all the creatures; and no creature in the flesh, in the natural life, can subsist, unless it has the two qualities.

What a Quality is.

[Aur. 1:4] Now here a man must consider what the word quality means or is. A quality is the mobility, boiling, springing and driving of a thing.

Of Heat.

[Aur. 1:5] As for example, heat, which burns, consumes and drives forth all whatsoever that comes into it which is not of the same property; and again, it enlightens and warms all cold, wet and dark things; it compacts and hardens soft things.

Of Light and Fierceness.

[Aur. 1:6] Heat contains likewise two other kinds in it, namely (1) Light, and (2) Fierceness; of which take notice in this manner. The light, or the heart of the heat, is in itself a pleasant, joyful glance or luster, a power of life, and enlightening and glance of a thing which is afar off, which light is a piece or source of the heavenly kingdom of joy.

[Aur. 1:7] For it makes living and moving all things in this world. All flesh, trees, leaves and grass grow in this world in the power of the light, and have their life therein, viz. in the good.

[Aur. 1:8] Again, heat contains also a fierceness or wrath, which burns, consumes and spoils; this wrath or fierceness springs, drives and elevates itself in the light, and makes the light moveable.

[Aur. 1:9] Heat wrestles and fights together in its twofold source as one thing; It is also one thing, but it has a double source; the light subsists in God without heat, but it does not subsist so in nature.
[Aur. 1:10] For all qualities in nature are one in another as one quality, in that manner as God is all, and as all things descend and come forth from him: For God is the heart or fountain of nature, from him comes all.

[Aur. 1:11] Now the heat reigns and predominate in all powers in nature, and warms all, and is one source or spring in all; for if it were not so the water would be too cold, and the earth would be congealed, and there would be no air.

[Aur. 1:12] The heat is predominant in all, in trees, herbs and grass, and makes the water moveable, so that through the springing of the waters, herbs and grass grow out of the earth. Heat is therefore called a quality, because it operates, moves and boils (or wells up) in all, and elevates all.

[Aur. 1:13] But the light in the heat gives power to all qualities, so that all grow pleasant and joyful: Heat without light avails not the other qualities, but is a perdition to the good, an evil source or spring; for all is spoiled in the fierceness or wrath of the heat. Thus the light in the heat is a quick spring or living fountain, into which the Holy Ghost enters, but the Holy Ghost enters not into the fierceness or wrath.

[Aur. 1:14] Yet the heat makes the light moveable, so that it springs and drives forth; as is seen in winter, when the light of the sun is likewise upon the earth, but the hot rays of the sun cannot reach into the earth, and that is the reason why no fruit grows in winter.

_of the Qualification of the Cold Quality_

[Aur. 1:15] Cold is a quality also, as well as heat; it qualifies or operates in all creatures whatsoever that come forth in nature, and in all whatsoever that move therein, in men, beasts, fowls, fishes, worms, leaves and grass.

[Aur. 1:16] Heat is set in opposition unto it, and qualifies therein, as if it were one and the same thing; but cold opposes the fierceness or rage of the heat, and allays the heat.

[Aur. 1:17] Cold contains also two sorts or species in it, which are to be observed, viz. It mitigates the heat, makes all things pleasant, and is in all creatures a quality of life; for no creature can subsist without cold; for it is a springing, driving mobility in everything.

[Aur. 1:18] The other kind or species is fierceness; for where this gets power it suppresses all, and spoils all, even as the heat does; no life could subsist in it if the heat did not hinder that. The fierceness of cold is a destruction to every life, and the house of death, even as the hot fierceness also is.

_of the Qualification of the Air and the Water._

[Aur. 1:19] Air has its original from heat and cold; for heat and cold work powerfully and replenish all, whereby is caused a lively and stirring motion; but when cold allays or mitigates the heat, then both their qualities are rarefied and made thin; and the bitter quality attracts or concretes them together, so that they become dewy.

[Aur. 1:20] But the air has its original and greatest motion from heat, and the water has its original and greatest motion from cold.

[Aur. 1:21] Now these two qualities wrestle continually the one with the other, the heat consumes the water, and the cold condenses or crowds the air. Now air is the cause and spirit of every life and motion in the world, be it in flesh or in any of the vegetables; all whatever is has its life from the air, and nothing whatsoever that moves and is in this world can subsist without air.
[Aur. 1:22] Water also springs in every living and moving creature in this world. In the water consists the body of everything, as the spirit consists in the air, be it in animals [or in flesh] or in vegetables.

[Aur. 1:23] These two [air and water] are caused by heat and cold, and qualify or mix and operate together as one thing.

[Aur. 1:24] Now in these two qualities two other species or kinds are to be observed, viz. a living operation and a dead operation. The air is a living quality, if it be temperate or moderate in a thing, and the Holy Ghost reigns in the calmness or meekness of the air; and all the creatures rejoice therein.

[Aur. 1:25] But there is a fierceness or wrath also in it, so that it kills and destroys by its terrible disturbance. But the qualification takes its original from the fierce disturbance or elevation, so that it moves and drives in every creature, from which life has its originals and does exist; and therefore both of them must be in this life.

[Aur. 1:26] The water also has a fierce deadly spring, for it kills and consumes; and so all things that have a life and being must rot and perish in the water.

[Aur. 1:27] Thus heat and cold are the cause and original of water and air, in which everything acts and stands; every life and mobility stands therein. Of this I shall write plainly, concerning the creation of the stars.

Of the Influences of the other Qualities in the Three Elements, Fire, Air, and Water.

Of the Bitter Quality.

[Aur. 1:28] The bitter quality is the heart in every life; for as it attracts together the water in the air, and also dissipates the same, so that it [the water] becomes separable; so also in other creatures, and in the vegetables of the earth. For leaves and grass have their green color from the bitter quality.

[Aur. 1:29] Now if the bitter quality dwells meekly and gently in any creature, then is it the heart or joy therein; for it dissipates all other evil influences, and is the beginning or cause of joy or of laughing.

[Aur. 1:30] For the bitter quality, when stirred, causes the creature to tremble and be joyful, and to be lifted up in its whole body; for the stirring of the bitter quality is, as it were, a glimpse or ray of or from the heavenly kingdom of joy, an exaltation of the spirit, a spirit and virtue in all plants of the earth, a mother of life.

[Aur. 1:31] The Holy Ghost springs, moves and drives vehemently in this quality, for this quality is a part of the heavenly joyfulness, as I shall demonstrate afterwards.

[Aur. 1:32] But it has also in it another species or kind, namely, the fierceness or wrath, which is the very house of death, a corruption of all good, a perdition and destruction of the life in the flesh.

[Aur. 1:33] For if it be too much elevated or too preponderant in any creature, and be inflamed in the heat, then flesh and spirit separate, and the creature loses its life and must die; for then it moves and kindles the element fire; and in the great heat and bitterness no flesh can subsist. But if it be kindled in the element water, and springs [becomes active] therein, it causes debility and sickness in the flesh, and finally death.
Of the Sweet Quality.

[Aur. 1:34] The sweet quality is set opposite to the bitter, and is a gracious, amiable, blessed and pleasant quality, a refreshing of the life, an allying of the fierceness. It makes all pleasant and friendly in every creature; it makes the vegetables of the earth fragrant and of good taste, affording fair, yellow, white and ruddy colors.

[Aur. 1:35] It is a glimpse and source of meekness, a pleasant habitation of heavenly joyfulness, a house or mansion of the Holy Ghost, a qualification of love and mercy, a joy in the life.

[Aur. 1:36] But, on the other side, it has also a fierce or wrathful source, a source of death and corruption. For if it be kindled in the bitter quality in the element water, then it breeds diseases, and the blotchy plague or pestilence, and corruption of the flesh.

[Aur. 1:37] But if it be kindled in the heat and bitterness, then it infects the element air, whereby is engendered a sudden spreading plague and sudden death.

Of the Sour Quality.

[Aur. 1:38] The sour quality is set opposite to the bitter and the sweet, and is a good temper to all, a refreshing and cooling when the bitter and the sweet qualities are too much elevated or too preponderant. It is a longing delight in the taste, a pleasure of life, a stirring, boiling, flowing joy in everything; a desire, longing and lust of joyfulness, a still joy or habitation of the spirit. Thus it is a temperature to all living and moving creatures.

[Aur. 1:39] It contains also a source of evil and corruption: For if it predominate too much, or stirs too much in anything, so that it be inflamed, then it engenders sadness and melancholy.

[Aur. 1:40] In the water it causes a stink, putridness and rankness, a forgetfulness of all good things, a melancholy or sadness of life, a house of death, a beginning of sorrow and an end of joy.

Of the Astringent or Saltish Quality.

[Aur. 1:41] The saltish quality is a good temperature [or temper] in the bitter, the sweet and the sour, making everything pleasant; it opposes the rising of the bitter quality, as also of the sweet and the sour, lest they should be inflamed: it is a sharp quality, a delight in the taste, a source of life and joy.

[Aur. 1:42] It contains also fierceness and corruption: Being inflamed in the fire it engenders a hard, tearing and stony nature, a fierce, wrathful source, a destruction of life, whereby the stone or gravel is engendered in the flesh, causing great pain and torment to the flesh.

[Aur. 1:43] But if it be inflamed in the water, then it engenders in the flesh, scabs, sores, pox, leprosy, and is a mourning house of death, a misery and a forgetting of all good things.
CHAPTER 2

An Introduction, showing how men may come to apprehend The Divine, and the Natural Being.
And further of the Two Qualities.

[Aur. 2:1] All whatsoever that has been mentioned above is called quality, because it qualifies, operates or frames all in the deep above the earth, also upon the earth and in the earth, in one another, as ONE thing, and yet has several distinct virtues and operations, and but one mother, from which descend and spring all things.

[Aur. 2:2] All the creatures are made and descended from these qualities, and live therein as in their mother; and the earth and stones descend or proceed from there also; and all that grows out of the earth lives and springs forth out of the virtue of these qualities; no rational man can deny it.

[Aur. 2:3] Now this twofold source, good and evil, in everything, is caused by the stars; for as the creatures in the earth are, in their qualities, so also are the stars.

[Aur. 2:4] For from its twofold source, everything has its great mobility, running, springing, driving and growing. For meekness in nature is a still rest, but the fierceness in every power makes all things moveable, running and generative.

[Aur. 2:5] For the driving qualities cause a lust in all creatures unto evil and good, so that all [things] are desirous one of another, to copulate and increase, decrease, and grow fair, perish, love and hate.

[Aur. 2:6] In every creature in this world there is a good and evil will and source; in men, beasts, fowls, fishes, worms, and in all that is upon the earth; in gold, silver, cooper, tin, iron, steel; wood, herbs, leaves, and grass; as also in the earth, in stones, in the water, and in all whatsoever that can be thought of.

[Aur. 2:7] There is nothing in nature wherein there is not good and evil; everything moves and lives in this double impulse, working or operation, be it what it will.

[Aur. 2:8] But the holy angels, and the fierce wrathful devils, are here to be excepted; for these are severed apart; Each of these lives, qualifies and rules in his own peculiar quality.

[Aur. 2:10] Yet both of these, the good and the evil angels, were made out of the qualities of nature from which all things existed, only they differ in their qualifying, or in their condition.

[Aur. 2:11] The holy angels live in the power of meekness, of the light and joyfulness: The devils live in the power of the rising or elevating quality of fierceness, terror and darkness, and cannot comprehend the light, into which condition they precipitated and cast themselves through their pride and elevation of themselves; as I shall show afterwards, when I shall write of the creation.
[Aur. 2:12] If you will not believe that in this world all descends or comes from the stars, I will demonstrate it to you, if you are not a blockhead, but have some little reason and understanding left; therefore take notice of that which follows.

[Aur. 2:13] First behold the sun; it is the heart or king of all stars, and gives light to all stars from the east to the west; it enlightens and warms all, all lives and grows by its power; besides, the joy of all creatures consists in its virtue.

[Aur. 2:14] If that should be taken away or become extinct, then all would be dark and cold; neither would there grow any fruit, and neither man nor beast could propagate and increase, because their heat would be extinguished and their seed would be cold and torpid.

Of the Quality of the Sun.

[Aur. 2:15] If you will be a philosopher and naturalist, and search into God's being in nature, and discern how all is come to pass, then pray to God for the Holy Spirit, to enlighten you with it.

[Aur. 2:16] For in your flesh and blood you are not able to apprehend it, and though you read it, yet it is but as a fume or mist before your eyes.

[Aur. 2:17] In the Holy Ghost alone, who is in God, and also in the whole nature, out of which all things were made, in him alone can you search into the whole body or corporeity of God, which is nature; as also into the Holy Trinity itself.

[Aur. 2:18] For the Holy Ghost goes forth from the Holy Trinity, and reigns and rules in the whole body or corpus of God; that is, in the whole nature.

[Aur. 2:19] Even as the spirit of man rules and reigns in the whole body, in all the veins, and replenishes the whole man; even so the Holy Ghost replenishes the whole nature, and is the heart of nature, and reigns in the good qualities of everything.

[Aur. 2:20] Now, if you have that spirit in you, so that it enlightens, fills and replenishes your spirit, then you will understand what follows in this writing.

[Aur. 2:21] But if not, then it will be with you as it was with the wise Heathen, who gazed and stared on the creation, and would search and sift it out by their own reason; and though with their fictions and conceits they came before God's countenance or face, yet they were not able to see it, but were stark blind stark blind the knowledge of God.

[Aur. 2:22] As the Children of Israel in the desert could not behold the countenance of Moses, and therefore, when he drew near to the people, he must put a veil before his face.

[Aur. 2:23] The cause of this was that they neither understood nor knew the true God and his will, who, notwithstanding, walked among them; and therefore that veil was a sign and type of their blindness and misunderstanding.

[Aur. 2:24] As little as a piece of work can apprehend him that made it, so little also can man apprehend and know God his Creator, unless the Holy Ghost enlighten him; which happens only to those that rely not upon themselves, but set their hope, will and desires upon God alone, and move in the Holy Ghost, and these are one spirit with God.

[Aur. 2:25] Now if we consider rightly of the sun and stars, with their corpus or body, operations and qualities, then the very divine being may be found therein, and we may find that the virtues of the stars are nature itself.

[Aur. 2:26] If the whole wheel, circumference or sphere of the stars be well considered, then it is soon found that the same is the mother of all things, or the nature out of which all things are come, and wherein all things stand and live, and whereby everything moves; all things are made of these powers, and therein they all abide eternally.

[Aur. 2:27] Though indeed they shall be changed at the end of this time, when good and evil shall be separated. So in like manner angels and men, in the [particular] virtue of nature, out of which they had gotten their first beginning, shall subsist in God eternally.

[Aur. 2:28] But here you must elevate your mind in the spirit, and consider how the whole nature, with all the powers which are in nature, also the wideness, depth and height, also heaven and earth, and all whatsoever is therein, and all that is above the heavens, is together the body or corporeity of God; and the powers of the stars are the fountain veins in the natural body of God in this world.

[Aur. 2:29] You must not conceive that in the body of the stars is the triumphing Holy Trinity, God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, in which there is no evil, for it is the light-holy, eternal fountain of joy, which is indivisible and unchangeable, which no creature can sufficiently apprehend or express; which dwells and is above the body of the stars in itself, whose depth no creature is able to measure or fathom.

[Aur. 2:30] But we must not so conceive as if God were not at all in the corpus or body of the stars, and in this world: For when we say, ALL, or from eternity to eternity, or All in All, then we understand the entire GOD.

[Aur. 2:31] For a similitude or example take man, who is made after the image or similitude of God, as it is written. [Gen. 1:27]

[Aur. 2:32] The interior or hollowness in the body of man is, and signifies, the deep between the stars and the earth.

[Aur. 2:33] The whole body with all its parts signifies heaven and earth.

[Aur. 2:34] The flesh signifies the earth, and is also from earth.

[Aur. 2:35] The blood signifies the water, and is from the water.

[Aur. 2:36] The breath signifies the air, and is also air.

[Aur. 2:37] The windpipe and arteries, wherein the air qualifies or operates, signify the deep between the stars and the earth, wherein fire, air and water qualify in an elementary manner, and so the warmth, the air, and water, qualify also in the windpipe and arteries, as they do in the deep above the earth.

[Aur. 2:38] The veins signify the powerful flowings out from the stars, and are also the powerful outgoings of the stars; for the stars with their powers reign in the veins, and drive forth the form, shape and condition in men.

[Aur. 2:39] The entrails or guts signify the operation of the stars, or their consuming of all that which is proceeded from their power, for whatsoever they themselves have made that they consume again, and remain still in their virtue and power; and so the guts are also the consuming of all that which man thrusts and stuffs into his guts, even all whatsoever grows from the power of the stars.

[Aur. 2:40] The heart in man signifies the heat or the element of fire, and it is also the heat; for the heat in the whole body has its original in the heart.

[Aur. 2:41] The windpipe and arteries signify the element of air, and the air rules also therein.

[Aur. 2:42] The liver signifies the element of water, and it is also the water; for from the liver comes the blood in the whole body into all the members. The liver is the mother of the blood.
The lungs signify the earth, and are also of the same quality.

The feet signify near and afar off; for near and afar off are all one in God: And so man by means of his feet can come and go near and far off; let him be where he will, he is in nature neither near or afar off; for in God these are one thing.

The hands signify God's omnipotence; for as God in nature can change all things, and make of them what he pleases, so man also can with his hands change all things which grown in or proceed from nature, and can make with his hands out of them what he pleases: He rules with his hands the work and being of the whole nature, and so they very well signify the omnipotence of God.

Now observe here further,

The whole body to the neck signifies and is the round circle or sphere of the stars, as also the deep within or between the stars, wherein the planets and elements reign.

The flesh signifies the earth, which is congealed, and has no motion; and so the flesh in itself has no reason, comprehensibility or mobility, but is moved only by the power of the stars, which reign in the flesh and veins.

No more could the earth bring forth any fruit, nor could there grow any metals, as gold, silver, copper, iron or stones, if the stars did not work in them; nor could there grow any grass without the operation of the stars.

The head signifies heaven; the same is grown on the body, by the veins, passages and going forth of powers; and so all the powers come again from the head and brain into the body, in to the fountain-veins or arteries of the flesh.

Now heaven is a pleasant palace of joy, wherein all the powers are, as they are in the whole nature in the stars and elements, but not so hard working and springing. For every power of heaven has but one species, kind or form of power, springing very bright and meek, not promiscuously evil and good one in another, as in the stars and elements in the whole nature, but very pure.

It is made out of the midst of the waters, but not qualifying in such a manner as the water in the elements, for fierceness or wrath is not therein. However, heaven belongs to nature, because the stars and elements have their original and power from the heaven.

For heaven is the heart of the water. Likewise, in all creatures, and in all that is in this world the water is the heart thereof, and nothing can subsist without water, be it in the flesh or out of the flesh, in the vegetables of the earth or in metals and stones, in everything the water is the kernel or the heart.

So heaven is the heart in nature, wherein all the powers are, as in the stars and elements, and it is a soft, supple and meek matter of all powers, as the brain in man's head is.

Now heaven kindles with its power the stars and elements, so that they move and work: And so the head of man is also like heaven.

For as in heaven all powers are meek and full of joy, and as heaven has a closure or firmament above the stars, and yet all powers go forth from heaven into the stars, so the brain also has a closure or firmament between it and the body, and yet all the powers go forth from the brain into the body, and into the whole man.

The head contains the five senses, viz. seeing, hearing, smelling, tasting and feeling, wherein the stars and elements qualify, and therein exists the sidereal or heavenly, starry or a tral and natural spirit in men and beasts; in this flow forth good and evil, for it is the house of the stars.

[Aur. 2:57] Such power the stars borrow from heaven; that they can make in the flesh a living and moving spirit in man and beast. The moving of the heaven makes the stars moveable, and so the head also makes the body moveable.

[Aur. 2:58] Now open here the eyes of your spirit, and behold God your Creator.

Question.

[Aur. 2:59] Here now the question is, From where has heaven, or where borrows it, this power, that it causes such mobility in nature? Here you must lift up your eyes beyond nature, into the light-holy triumphing divine power, into the unchangeable Holy Trinity, which is a triumphing, springing, moveable being, and all powers are therein, as in nature.

[Aur. 2:60] For this is the eternal mother of nature, of which heaven, earth, stars, elements, angels, devils, men, beasts, and all have their being; and therein ALL stands.

[Aur. 2:61] When we nominate heaven and earth, stars and elements, and all that is therein, and all whatsoever is above the heaven, then thereby is nominated the total God, who has made himself creaturely in these above-mentioned beings, in his power which goes forth from him.

[Aur. 2:62] But GOD in his TRINITY is unchangeable, and whatever there is in heaven and upon earth and above the earth, has its spring, source and original from the power which proceeds from God.

[Aur. 2:63] Yet you must not therefore conceive that in God there is good and evil, for God himself is the good, and has the name from good, which is the triumphing eternal joy: Only all the powers which you can search out in nature, and which are in all things, proceed from him.

Question.

[Aur. 2:64] Now perhaps you may say, Is there not good and evil in nature? And seeing everything comes from God, must not then the evil also come from God?

Answer.

[Aur. 2:65] Behold, there is a gall in man's body, which is poison, and man cannot live without this gall; for the gall makes the astral spirits moveable, joyous, triumphing or laughing, for it is the source of joy.

[Aur. 2:66] But if it be inflamed or kindled in one of the elements, then it spoils the whole man, for the wrath in the astral spirits comes from the gall.

[Aur. 2:67] That is, when the gall overflows and runs to the heart, then it kindles the element of fire, and the fire kindles the astral spirits which reign in the blood in the veins and in the element of water; and then the whole body trembles by reason of the wrath and the poison of the gall.

[Aur. 2:68] Such a source has joy, and from the same substance also as the wrath. That is, when the gall in the loving or sweet quality is inflamed, in that which man is in love with, then the whole body trembles for the joy; in which many times the astral spirits are affected also, when the gall is overflown, and is kindled in the sweet quality.

[Aur. 2:69] But it has no such substance in God, for he has not flesh and blood, but he is a Spirit, in whom all powers are; as we pray in the Lord's prayer, Thine is the power. [John 4:24; Matt. 6:13]

[Aur. 2:70] As it is written of him, He is Wonderful, Counsel, Power, Champion, Eternal Father, Prince of Peace. [Isaiah 9:6]
The bitter quality is in God also, but not in that manner as the gall is in man, but it is an everlasting power, in an elevating, triumphing spring or source of joy.

And though it is written in Moses, I am an angry, zealous God, yet the meaning of it is not that God is angry in himself, and that there arises a fire of anger in the Holy Trinity.

No; that cannot be, for it is written, against those that hate me, in that same creature, the fire of anger rises up.

If God should be angry in himself, then the whole nature would be on fire, which will come once to pass on the last day, in nature, but not in God, in God the triumphing joy will burn; it was never otherwise from eternity, nor will it ever be otherwise.

The elevating, springing, triumphing joy in God makes heaven triumphing and moveable, and heaven makes the stars and elements moveable, and the stars and elements make the creatures moveable.

Out of the powers of God are the heavens proceeded; out of the heaven are the stars; out of the stars are the elements; out of the elements are the earth and the creatures come to be.

Thus all had its beginning, even to the angels and devils, which, before the creation of heaven, stars and the earth, were produced from the same power from which the heaven, the stars and the earth were produced.

This is a short entrance or introduction, showing how one must consider the divine and the natural being. Now I will describe the true ground and depth concerning what God is, and how all things are framed in God’s being.

This indeed has been partly concealed from the beginning of the world to this time, and man with his reason could not comprehend it.

But seeing God is pleased to reveal himself in simplicity in this last time, I shall give way to his impulse and will; I am but a very little spark of light. AMEN.
CHAPTER 3

Of the most blessed Triumphant, Holy, Holy, Holy Trinity, One God
GOD the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, ONE only God.

[Aur. 3:1] COURTEOUS Reader, here I would have you faithfully admonished to let go your opinion and conceit, and not yield to the spell of the Heathenish wisdom, nor be offended at the simplicity of the author: for this work comes not from his reason, but from the impulse of the spirit.

[Aur. 3:2] Only be careful to get into your spirit the Holy Ghost, who issues forth from God, and he will lead you into all truth, and reveal himself unto you.

[Aur. 3:3] Then you will see well enough in his light and power; even into the holy Trinity, and understand those things which are written hereafter following.

Of GOD the FATHER

[Aur. 3:4] When our Saviour JESUS CHRIST taught his disciples to pray, he said; When ye pray, say thus: Our Father, which art in heaven.11

[Aur. 3:5] The meaning is not as if heaven could comprehend, encompass or contain God the Father; for heaven itself is made by the divine power: for Christ said, My Father is greater than all.12

[Aur. 3:6] And God said in the Prophet, Heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footstool [the dirt under my feet]. What house would you build for me? I compass the heaven with a span, and the earth with three fingers.13 Also, I will dwell in Jacob, and Israel shall be my tabernacle.14

[Aur. 3:7] But in that Christ calls his Father a heavenly Father, his meaning is that his Father's luster and power appear and shine very bright and pure in heaven; and that above the circle or enclosure which we behold with our eyes, and which we call heaven, does appear the totally triumphant Holy Trinity, The Father, Son, and Holy Ghost.

[Aur. 3:8] Thereby Christ also distinguishes his heavenly Father from the father of nature, which is indeed the stars and the elements; these are our natural father, out of which we are made, and by whose impulse we live here in this world, and from which we have our food and nourishment.

[Aur. 3:9] Therefore God is our heavenly Father, in that our soul continually longs after him, and is desirous of him, yea it thirsts and hungers continually after him.

[Aur. 3:10] The body hungers and thirsts after the father of nature, viz. the stars and the elements, and that father feeds and nourishes the body.

[Aur. 3:11] But the soul thirsts after the heavenly holy Father, and he gives meat and drink to it, feeding it with his Holy Spirit, and the spring, source or fountain of joy.

[Aur. 3:12] Yet we have not two fathers, but one only: For heaven is made by his power, and the stars are made out of his wisdom which is in him, and which proceeds forth from him.
Of the Substance and Property of the Father.

[Aur. 3:13] When we consider the whole nature and its property, then we see the Father.

[Aur. 3:14] When we behold heaven and the stars, then we behold his eternal power and wisdom: So many stars stand in the whole heaven that they are innumerable and incomprehensible to reason, and some of them are not visible, so manifold and [so] various is the power and wisdom of God the Father.

[Aur. 3:15] But every star in heaven differs in its power and quality, which also makes so many distinctions in and among the creatures upon the earth, and in the whole creation.

[Aur. 3:16] All the powers which are in nature proceed from God the Father; all light, heat, cold, air, water; and all the powers of the earth, bitter, sour, sweet, astringent, hard and soft, and more than can be reckoned; all have their beginning from the Father.

[Aur. 3:17] Therefore if a man would liken the Father to anything, he should liken him to the round globe of heaven.

[Aur. 3:18] You must not conceive here that every power which is in the Father stands in a peculiar severed or divide part and place in the Father, as the stars do in heaven.

[Aur. 3:19] No, the spirit shows that all the powers in the Father are one in another as one power.

[Aur. 3:20] A resemblance, image or figure whereof we have in the Prophet Ezekiel, [Chap. 1.] who sees the Lord in the spirit and resemblance like a wheel, having four other wheels one in another, the four being like one another; and when they moved they went straight forward, which way soever the wind did sit or blow, and that way they all went forward, having no cause of returning.

[Aur. 3:21] Thus it is with God the Father; for all the powers are in the Father, one in another, as one power; and all powers consist in the Father, in an unsearchable light and clarity or brightness and glory.

[Aur. 3:22] Yet you must not think that God, who is in heaven and above heaven, does there stand and hover, like a power and quality which has in it neither reason nor knowledge.

[Aur. 3:23] As the sun which turns round in its circle, and pours forth from itself heat and light, whether it be for benefit or hurt to the earth and creatures, which indeed would be for hurt if the other planets and stars did not hinder.

[Aur. 3:24] No, the Father is not so, but he is an all-mighty, all-wise, all-knowing, all-seeing, all-hearing, all-smelling, all-feeling, all-tasting God, who in himself is meek, friendly, gracious, merciful and full of joy, yea joy itself.

[Aur. 3:25] And he is thus from eternity to eternity unchangeable: He never changed himself in his being, neither will he change himself in all eternity.

[Aur. 3:26] He is proceeded or born of nothing, but he himself is all, in eternity; and all whatsoever is, is come from his power, which from eternity goes forth from him.

[Aur. 3:27] His immensity, height and depth, no creature, no, nor any angel in heaven, can search into, but the angels live in the power of the Father, very meekly and full of joy, and they always sing in the power of the Father.
Of GOD the SON

[Aur. 3:28] If a man will see God the Son, he must once more look upon natural things, otherwise I cannot write of the Son: The spirit indeed beholds him, but that can neither be spoken nor written; for the divine being consists in power, which can neither be written nor spoken.

[Aur. 3:29] Therefore, if we intend to speak of God, we must use similitudes. For we live in this world as men who know but in part, and are made of that which is but in part. Therefore I cite the Reader into the life to come, where and when I shall speak more properly and more clearly of this high article.

[Aur. 3:30] In the meanwhile the loving Reader is to attend to the sense and meaning of the spirit, and then, if he has but any hunger in him, he will not fail to get a little refreshing.

Now observe,

[Aur. 3:31] The Turks and Heathen say, God hath no Son: Set wide open your eyes here; and do not make yourselves stark blind, and you will see the Son.

[Aur. 3:32] The Father is all, and all power subsists in the Father: He is the beginning and the end of all things; and besides and beyond him is nothing; and whatever is, is from the Father.

[Aur. 3:33] For before the beginning of the creation of the creatures there was nothing but GOD only; and where there is nothing, out of that, nothing will be. All things must have a cause or root, or else nothing will be.

[Aur. 3:34] Yet you are not to think that the Son is another God than the Father. Neither should you think that the Son is without or apart from the Father, and that he is a severed part or divided piece, as when two men stand the one by the other, where one comprehends not the other.

[Aur. 3:35] No, the Father and the Son are not of such a substance, or such a kind of thing; for the Father is not an image, to be likened to anything; the Father is the fountain of all powers, and all the powers are one in another as one power, and therefore he is said to be ONE only GOD.

[Aur. 3:36] Otherwise, if his powers were divided, then he were not all-mighty, but now he is the self-subsisting, all-mighty and all-powerful God.

[Aur. 3:37] And the Son is the Heart in the Father; all the powers which are in the Father are the propriety of the Father; and the Son is the Heart, or the kernel or pith in all the powers in the whole Father, and he is the cause of the springing joy in all powers in the whole Father.

[Aur. 3:38] From the Son, who is the Father's Heart in all his powers, the eternal joy arises and springs in all the powers of the Father; such a joy as no eye has seen, nor ear heard, neither has ever entered into the heart of any man, as St Paul said [1 Cor. 2:9].

[Aur. 3:39] But if a man here on earth is enlightened with the Holy Ghost from the fountain of JESUS CHRIST, so that the spirits of nature, which signify the Father, are kindled in him, then there arises such a joy in his heart, and it goes forth into all his veins, so that the whole body trembles, and the soulish, animal spirit triumphs, as if it were in the holy Trinity, which is understood only by those who have been guests in that place.

[Aur. 3:40] This is but a type or glimpse of the Son of God in man, whereby faith is strengthened and preserved: For the joy cannot be so great in an earthen vessel as in a heavenly, wherein the perfect power of God is, fully.
Now here I must write a Similitude.

[Aur. 3:41] I will show you a similitude in nature, signifying how the holy being in the holy Trinity is.

[Aur. 3:42] Consider heaven, which is a round globe, having neither beginning nor end, for its beginning and end are everywhere, which way soever you look upon it: So is God, who is in and above heaven, he has neither beginning nor end.

[Aur. 3:43] Now consider further the circle or sphere of the stars, they denote the various powers and wisdom of the Father, and they also are made by the power and wisdom of the Father.

[Aur. 3:44] Now the heaven, the stars, and the whole deep between the stars, together with the earth, signify the Father.

[Aur. 3:45] And the seven planets signify the seven spirits of God, or the princes of the angels, among which also lord LUCIFER was one before his fall; all [these] were made out of the Father in the beginning of the creation of angels, before the time of this world.

[Aur. 3:46] Now observe: The sun stirs in the midst, in the deep between the stars, in a round circle, and is the heart of the stars, and gives light and power to all the stars, so tempering the power of the stars that all become pleasant and joyful.

[Aur. 3:47] It enlightens also the heaven, the stars, and the deep above the earth, working in all things that are in this world, and is the king and the heart of all things of this world, and so rightly signifies the Son of God.

[Aur. 3:48] For as the sun stands in the midst, between the stars and the earth, enlightening all powers, and is the light and heart of all the powers, and is all the joy in this world, besides, all beauty and pleasantness stands in the light and power of the sun.

[Aur. 3:49] Even so the Son of God in the Father is the Heart of the Father, and shines in all the powers of the Father; his power is the moving springing joy in all the powers of the Father, and shines in the whole Father, as the sun does in the whole world.

[Aur. 3:50] If the earth should be taken away, which signifies the house of misery, of trouble, or of hell, then the whole deep would be light in one place as well as in another: as indeed, from the luster of the Son of God, the whole deep in the Father is as light in one place as in another.

[Aur. 3:51] As the sun is a self-subsisting creature, power and light, which shines not forth from or out of all creatures, but in and into all creatures, and all creatures rejoice in its power.

[Aur. 3:52] So the Son it the Father is a self-subsisting Person, and enlightens all the powers in the Father, and is the Father's joy or Heart in his center, or in the midst of him.

Observer here the great Mystery of God.

[Aur. 3:53] Further, the sun is made or generated from all the stars, and is a light taken from the whole nature, and shines again into the whole nature of this world; it is united with the other stars, as if itself together with all the stars were but one star.

[Aur. 3:54] So the Son of God is continually generated from all the powers of his Father from eternity, and is not made, but is the heart and luster shining forth from the powers of his heavenly Father; a self-subsisting Person, the center or body of the luster in the deep.

[Aur. 3:55] For the Father's power generates the Son continually from eternity to eternity; but if the Father should cease to generate, then the Son would be no more: Also, if the Son should shine no more in the Father, then the Father would be a dark valley: And then the Father's power would not rise from eternity to eternity, and so the divine being would not subsist.

[Aur. 3:56] Thus the Father is the self-subsisting being of all powers, and the Son is the Heart of the Father, which is generated continually out of all the powers of the Father, who again enlightens the powers of the Father.

[Aur. 3:57] Do not conceive that the Son is so mixed that his Person can neither be seen nor known: No; for if it were so then it were but one Person.

[Aur. 3:58] For as the sun shines not from or out of the other stars, though it had its original from the other stars, so also the Son shines not from or out of the powers of the Father, as to his body or corporeity.

[Aur. 3:59] Though he is generated continually out of the powers of the Father; yet he shines back again into the powers of the Father, for he is another Person than the Father, but not another God.

[Aur. 3:60] He is eternally in the Father, and the Father generates him continually from eternity to eternity, and the Father and the Son are ONE God, of an equal being in power and omnipotence.

[Aur. 3:61] The Son sees, tastes, hears, feels, smells and comprehends all, as the Father does; in his power all lives and is, whatsoever is good, as in the Father; but that which is bad or evil is not in him.

Of GOD the HOLY GHOST.

[Aur. 3:62] God the Holy Ghost is the third Person in the triumphing holy Deity, and proceeds from the Father and the Son, and is the holy moving spring or fountain of joy in the whole Father.

[Aur. 3:63] He is a pleasant, meek, quiet wind, or whispering breath, or still voice, out of all the powers of the Father and of the Son; as on mount Horeb with the prophet Elijah [1 Kings 19:12], and on Whitsunday or the Day of Pentecost with the Apostles [Acts 2.], may be perceived.

[Aur. 3:64] Therefore if we would describe his Person, substance and property from the true ground, it must be represented in a similitude. For the spirit cannot be written down, being no creature, but the moving, flowing, boiling power of God.

[Aur. 3:65] Consider the sun and stars again: The stars being many and several, inexpressible and innumerable, signify the Father: out of the stars the sun is come to be; for God has made it out of them, and it signifies the Son of God.

[Aur. 3:66] From the sun and stars proceed the four elements, fire, air, water and earth, as hereafter I shall demonstrate plainly, when I shall write of the creation.

Now observe:

[Aur. 3:67] The tree elements, fire, air, and water, have a threefold moving or qualification, but proceed from one body; and consider, the fire or heat swells [or expands itself] and flies aloft; and from the air comes the water.

[Aur. 3:68] And in this motion or qualification consists the life and spirit of all creatures, and whatever can be named in this world; and that signifies the Holy Ghost.

[Aur. 3:69] And as the three elements, fire, air and water, proceed from the sun and stars, and are one body in one another, and cause the living motion, and the spirit of all the creatures of this world,
So the Holy Ghost proceeds from the Father and the Son, and causes the living motion in all the powers of the Father.

And as the three elements move in the deep, as a self-subsisting spirit, and cause heat, cold and clouds, and flow forth from the power of all the stars; and as all the powers of the sun and stars are in the three elements, as if they themselves were the sun and stars, from which is the life and spirit of all creatures, and does consist therein; just so the Holy Ghost proceeds from the Father and the Son, and moves in the whole Father, and is the spirit and life of all the powers of the whole Father.

Observe here the deep Mystery.

All the stars which men see, and those which they do not see, they all signify the power of God the Father; and out of these stars is generated the sun, which is the heart of all the stars.

Also there goes forth into the deep from all the stars the power which is in every star: And the power, heat and shining of the sun goes likewise into the deep.

In the deep the power of all stars, together with the heat and luster of the sun, are all but one thing, a moving, boiling, hovering, like a spirit or matter; only it has not reason, for it is not the Holy Spirit. And thus also the fourth element must adhere or belong to a natural spirit, or it is not capable of reason.

(“Thus God the Father goes forth in his deep out of all his powers, and generates the splendour, the Heart, or the Son of God in his center.”)

Which may be likened to the round globe of the sun, which shines upwards, downwards, and on every side; and so the splendour, together with all the powers, goes forth from the Son of God in the whole Father.

Now in the whole deep of the Father, externally, without the Son, there is nothing but the manifold and unmeasurable or unsearchable power of the Father.

And the unsearchable power and light of the Son is, in the deep of the Father, a living, all-powerful, all-knowing, all-hearing, all-seeing, all-smelling, all-tasting, all-feeling spirit, wherein is all power, splendour and wisdom, as in the Father and the Son.

And as in the four elements there is the power and splendour of the sun and all the stars, so it is in the whole deep of the Father, and that is, and is rightly called, the Holy Ghost, which is the third self-subsisting Person in the Deity.

Of the Holy TRINITY

Now when we speak or write of the three Persons in the Deity, you must not conceive that therefore there are three Gods, each reigning and ruling by himself, like temporal kings on the earth.

No: such a substance and being is not in God; for the divine being consists in power, and not in body or flesh.

The Father is the whole divine power, from which all creatures have proceeded, and has been always, from eternity: He has neither beginning nor end.

The Son is in the Father, being the Father’s Heart or light, and the Father generates the Son continually, from eternity to eternity; and the Son’s power and splendour shine back again in the whole Father, as the sun does in the whole world.
[Aur. 3:84] The Son is also another Person than the Father, but not externally, without or severed from the Father, nor is he any other God than the Father is; his power, splendour, and omnipotence, are no less than the whole Father.

[Aur. 3:85] The Holy Ghost proceeds from the Father and the Son, and is the third self-subsisting Person in the Deity. As the elements in this world go forth from the sun and the stars, and are the moving spirit which is in everything in this world.

[Aur. 3:86] So the Holy Ghost is the moving spirit in the whole Father, and proceeds or goes forth from eternity to eternity continually from the Father and the Son; his moving power is in the whole Father.

[Aur. 3:87] All things in this world are according to the similitude of this Ternary. You blind Jews, Turks and Heathen, open with the eyes of your mind: in your body, and in every natural thing, in men, beasts, fowls and worms, also in wood, stone, leaves and grass, I will show you the likeness of the Holy Ternary in God.

Objection.

[Aur. 3:88] You say, There is but one being in God, and that God has no Son.

Answer.

[Aur. 3:89] Open your eyes, and consider yourselves: Man is made according to the similitude, and out of the power, of God in his Ternary. Behold your inward man, and then you will see it most plainly and clearly; if you are not a fool and an irrational beast; therefore observe,

[Aur. 3:90] In your heart, in your veins, and in your brain, you have your spirit; and all the powers which move in your heart, in your veins, and in your brain, wherein your life consists, signify God the Father.

[Aur. 3:91] From that power springs up your light, so that you see, understand and know in the same power what you are to do; for that light glimmers in your whole body; and the whole body moves in the power and knowledge of the light, which signifies God the Son; for the body helps all the members in the knowledge of the light.

[Aur. 3:92] For as the Father generates the Son out of his power, and as the Son shines back in the whole Father; so in like manner the power of your heart, of your veins, and of your brain generates a light which shines in all your powers in your whole body. Open the eyes of your mind, consider it, and you will find it so.

Now observe:

[Aur. 3:93] As from the Father and the Son there goes forth the Holy Ghost, who is a self-subsisting Person in the Deity, and moves in the whole Father, so also out of the powers of your heart, veins and of your brain, goes forth the power which moves in your whole body; and out of your light, in the same power, goes forth reason, understanding, skill and wisdom to govern the whole body, and to distinguish all whatsoever is externally with-out the body.

[Aur. 3:94] And both these are but one, in the government of your mind, viz. [they are] your spirit, which [spirit] signifies God the Holy Ghost. And the Holy Ghost from God rules in this spirit in you, if you are a child of light, and not of darkness.

[Aur. 3:95] For in respect of this light, understanding and government, is man distinguished from the beasts, and is an angel of God; as I shall clearly show when I write of the creation of man.
[Aur. 3:96] Therefore observe exactly, and take notice of the order of this book, and then you will find whatsoever your heart desires or ever longed for.

[Aur. 3:97] Thus you will find in man three fountain-springs. First, the power in your whole mind, which signifies God the Father. Then secondly, the light in your whole mind, enlightening the whole mind, which signifies God the Son. Then thirdly, there goes forth out of all your powers, and out of your light also, a spirit which has understanding.

[Aur. 3:98] For all the veins, together with the light in you, as also your heart and your brain, and all whatsoever is in you, make or constitute that spirit; and that is your soul; and it well signifies the Holy Ghost, which goes forth from the Father and the Son, and reigns in the whole Father; for the soul of man reigns in the whole body.

[Aur. 3:99] But the body or the bestial flesh in man signifies the dead corrupted earth, which man through his fall has so framed to himself; of which more shall be spoken in its due place.

[Aur. 3:100] (“The soul contains the first principle; and the soul’s spirit the second principle in Ternario sancto, in the holy Ternary; and the outward spirit, viz. the astral, contains the third Principle of this world.”)

[Aur. 3:101] Thus you find also the Ternary of the Deity in beasts; for as the spirit of man is, and exists, so is it also in a beast, and therein is no difference.

[Aur. 3:102] But the difference lies in this, that man is made by God himself out of the best kernel or pith of nature, to be his angel or similitude, and God rules in man with his Holy Spirit; so that man can speak, discourse, distinguish and understand all things.

[Aur. 3:103] But a beast is made of the wild nature of this world; the stars and elements have generated beasts through their motion, according to the will of God.

[Aur. 3:104] So exists the spirit in birds, fowls and worms also; and all has its threefold source in similitude to the Ternary in the Deity.

[Aur. 3:105] You see also the Ternary of the Deity in wood and stones, as also in herbs, in leaves and in grass, only these are all earthly.

[Aur. 3:106] However, nature generates nothing in this world, be it what it will, and though perhaps it should stand or continue but scarce a minute, yet it is all generated in the Ternary, or according to the similitude of God.

Now observe:

[Aur. 3:107] In wood, stone or herbs there are three things contained, nor can anything be generated or grown if but one of the three should be left out.

[Aur. 3:108] First, there is the power, from which a body comes to be, whether wood, stone or herbs. After that, there is a sap in that thing, which is the heart of the thing. Thirdly, there is in it a springing, flowing power, smell or taste, which is the spirit of the thing, whereby it grows and increases. Now if any of these three fail, the thing cannot subsist.

[Aur. 3:109] Thus you will find in everything a similitude of the Ternary in the divine being, look upon what you will; let no man make himself so stark blind as to think otherwise, or to think that God has no Son and no Holy Ghost.

[Aur. 3:110] I shall make this more plain and clear when I come to write of the creation; for I do not borrow of other men in my writings: And though indeed I quote many examples and testimonies of God’s saints, yet all is written by God in my mind, so that I absolutely and infallibly believe, know and see it; yet not in the flesh, but in the spirit, in the impulse and motion of God.
[Aur. 3:111] It is not so to be understood that my reason is greater or higher than that of other men living; but I am the Lord's twig or branch, and am a very mean and little spark of his; he may set me where he pleases, I cannot hinder him in that.

[Aur. 3:112] Nor is this my natural will, that I could do it by my own small ability; for if the spirit were withdrawn from me, then I could neither know nor understand my own writings; and I must on every side fight and struggle with the Devil, and lie open to temptation and affliction as well as other men.

[Aur. 3:113] But in the following chapters you will soon see the Devil and his kingdom laid naked; his pride and reproach shall suddenly be discovered.
CHAPTER 4

Of the Creation of the Holy Angels.

An Instruction or open Gate of Heaven.

[Aur. 4:1] The learned, and almost all writers, have very much encumbered and mightily troubled their heads, to search, contrive and conceive in nature (and have brought forth many and sundry opinions) concerning how and of what the holy angels were created: And on the other side, what was that horrible fall of the great prince Lucifer, or how he became so base a wicked and fierce wrathful devil, from which that evil quality should spring, or what drove him to it.

[Aur. 4:2] And though this ground and great mystery has remained hidden from the beginning of the world, and that human flesh and blood is not able to conceive or apprehend it,

[Aur. 4:3] Yet God, who created the world, will reveal himself now at the end; and all great mysteries will be manifested or revealed, to intimate that the great Day of Revelation and final Judgment is near, and daily to be expected.

[Aur. 4:4] On which will be restored again all that which has been lost through Adam, and in which the kingdom of heaven, and the kingdom of the Devil, in this world, shall be severed asunder.

[Aur. 4:5] But how all this will be done God will reveal in the highest plainness and simplicity, so that no man will be able to oppose him.

[Aur. 4:6] Therefore everyone should lift up his eyes, for his redemption draws near, and not seek after riotous living and vain show, supposing it to be the best life here; whereas in their arrogance they sit in the midst of hell, to wait upon Lucifer as his guard.

[Aur. 4:7] Which they themselves shall suddenly be sure to see, with great terror, anguish and eternal despair, as also to their shame and scorn: of which the devils are a terrible example, who were once the fairest and brightest angels in heaven, as I shall reveal, write and manifest here following. I will suffer God's impulse, I am not able to withstand it.

Of the Divine Quality.

[Aur. 4:8] Since you have perceived, in the third chapter, the ground of the Ternary in the divine being, I shall here show plainly the power and operation, as also the qualities or qualification, in the divine being; or from what the angels were properly and peculiarly created, or what their body and power are.

[Aur. 4:9] As I said before, all the powers or virtues are in God the Father, and no man with his sense and thoughts can reach to apprehend it. But in the stars and the elements, as also by all the creatures in the whole creation of this world, a man may clearly know it.

[Aur. 4:10] All power and virtue is in God the Father; and proceeds also forth from him, as light, heat, cold, soft, gentle, sweet, bitter, sour, astringent or harsh, sound or noise, and much more that is not possible to be spoken or apprehended. All these are in God the Father, one in another as one power, and yet all these powers move in his exit or going forth.

[Aur. 4:11] But the powers in God do not operate or qualify in the same manner as in nature in the stars and elements, or in the creatures.
[Aur. 4:12] No, you must not conceive it so: For lord Lucifer by his elevation made the powers of impure nature thus burning, bitter, cold, astringent, sour, dark and unclean.

[Aur. 4:13] But in the Father all powers are mild and soft like heaven, and very full of joy, for all the powers triumph in one another, and their voice or sound rises up from eternity to eternity.

[Aur. 4:14] There is nothing in them but love, meekness, mercy, friendliness or courtesy; even such a triumphing, rising source or fountain of joy, wherein all the voices of heavenly joyfulness sound forth, so that no man is able to express it, nor can it be likened to anything.

[Aur. 4:15] But if a man will liken it to anything, it may nearest be likened to the soul of a man, when kindled or enlightened by the Holy Ghost.¹⁸

[Aur. 4:16] For then it is thus joyful and triumphing, and all powers rise up in it and triumph, and so raise the bestial body that it trembles: This is a true glimpse of the divine quality, as the quality is in God. But in God all is spirit.

[Aur. 4:17] In God the quality of water is not of such a running and qualifying condition or manner as it is in this world, but is a spirit, very bright, clear and thin, wherein the Holy Ghost rises up, a mere power.

[Aur. 4:18] The bitter quality qualifies in the sweet, and in the astringent (or harsh and sour) quality, and the love rises up therein from eternity to eternity.

[Aur. 4:19] For the love in the light and clarity or glorious brightness goes forth from the Heart or Son of God, in all the powers of the Father, and the Holy Ghost moves in them all.

Of the Divine Salitter

[Aur. 4:20] And this, in the deep of the Father, is like a divine SALITTER,¹⁹ which I must necessarily liken to the earth, which before its corruption was even such a Salitter.

[Aur. 4:21] But not so hard, cold, bitter, sour and dark, but like the deep, or like heaven, very clear and pure, wherein all powers were good, fair and heavenly; but that prince Lucifer thus spoiled them, as you will perceive here following.

[Aur. 4:22] This heavenly Salitter or powers one in another generate heavenly joyful fruits and colors; all manner of trees and plants, on which grow the fair, pleasant and lovely fruits of life.

[Aur. 4:23] There spring up also in these powers and virtues all manner of blossoms and flowers, with fair heavenly colors and smells.

[Aur. 4:24] They are of several tastes, each according to its quality and kind, very holy, divine and full of joy.

[Aur. 4:25] For every quality bears its own fruit: as in the corrupted murderous den or dark valley and dungeon of the earth there spring up all manner of earthly trees, plants, flowers and fruits, [Aur. 4:26] Also within the earth grow curious precious stones, silver and gold; and these are a type of the heavenly generating or production.

[Aur. 4:27] Nature labors with its utmost diligence upon this corrupted dead earth, that it might generate heavenly forms and species or kinds; but it generates only dead, dark and hard fruits, which are no more than a mere shadow or type of the heavenly.
Moreover, its fruits are altogether fierce or biting, bitter, sour, astringent or harsh and hot, also cold, hard and naught; they have scarce any spark or spice of goodness in them.

Their sap and spirit is mixed with hellish quality, their scent or smell is a very stink. Thus has lord Lucifer caused them to be; as I shall clearly show hereafter.

Now when I write of tress, plants and fruits, you must not understand them to be earthly, like those that are in this world; for it is not my meaning that there shall grow in heaven such dead, hard trees of wood, or such stones as consist of an earthly quality.

No, but my meaning is heavenly and spiritual, yet truly and properly such: I mean no other thing than what I set down in the letter.

In the divine pomp and state two things are especially to be considered: First, the Salitter or the divine powers, which are moving, springing powers.

In that same power grows up and is generated fruit according to every quality and species or kind, viz. heavenly trees and plants, which without ceasing bear fruit, blossom fairly, and grow in divine power, so joyfully that I can neither speak it nor write it down;

But stammer it like a child that is learning to speak, and can by no means rightly call it forth to be known as the spirit gives it.

The second form or property of heaven in the divine pomp or state is Mercurius or the sound, as in the Salitter of the earth there is the sound, where there grows gold, silver, copper, iron and the like; of which men make all manner of musical instruments for sounding or for mirth, as bells, organ-pipes and other things that make a sound: There is likewise a sound in all the creatures upon earth, else all would be in stillness and silence.

By that sound all powers are moved in heaven, so that all things grow joyfully, and generate very beautifully: And as the divine power is manifold and various, so also the sound or Mercurius is manifold and various.

For when the powers spring up in God they touch and stir one another, and move one in another, and so there is a constant harmony, mixing or concert, from which go forth all manner of colors.

In those colors grow all manner of fruits, which rise or spring up in the Salitter, and the Mercurius or sound mingles itself therewith, and rises up in all the powers of the Father, and then sounding and tunes rise up in the heavenly joyfulness.

If you should in this world bring many thousand sorts of musical instruments together, and all should be turned in the best manner, most artificially, and the most skilful masters of music should play on them in concert together, all would be no more than the howlings and barkings of dogs, in comparison with the divine music, which rises up through the divine sound and tunes from eternity to eternity.

Further, if you will consider the heavenly divine pomp, state and glory, and conceive how it is, and what manner of sprouting, branching, delight and joy there is in it,

View this world diligently, and consider what manner of fruit, sprouts, and branches grow out of the Salitter of the earth, from trees, plants, herbs, roots, flower, oils, wine, corn and whatever else there is that your heart can find out; all is a type of the heavenly pomp.

For the earthly and corrupt nature has continually labored from the beginning of its creation to this day to bring forth heavenly forms or shapes in the earth, as also in man and beasts; as men very well see that every new arts are invented and brought to light, which has been constantly so from the beginning to this time.
[Aur. 4:43] But yet nature has not been able to bring forth heavenly power, virtue and qualities, therefore its fruit is half dead, corrupt and impure.

[Aur. 4:44] You must not think that in the divine pomp there come forth beasts, worms and other creatures in flesh, as in this world they do: No; but I mean only the wonderful proportion, power, virtue and comeliness of feature in them.

[Aur. 4:45] Nature labors with the utmost diligence in its power to produce heavenly figures, shapes or forms; as we see, in men, beasts, fowls and worms, as also in the increase or growth of the earth, that all things are done, show and appear most perfectly and ingeniously.

[Aur. 4:46] For Nature would fain be delivered from this vanity, that it might procreate heavenly forms in the holy power.

[Aur. 4:47] For in the divine pomp go forth likewise all manner of sprouting and vegetation of trees, plants and all manner of fruit; and every one bears its own fruit, yet not in an earthly quality and kind, but in a divine quality, form and kind.

[Aur. 4:48] Those fruits are not of so dead, hard, bitter, sour and astringent a relish for food; nor do they rot and grow stinking, as those in this world do, but all consist in holy divine power.

[Aur. 4:49] Their constitution or composition is from divine power, from the Salitter and Mercurius of the divine pomp, and they are the food of the holy angels.

[Aur. 4:50] If man's abominable fall had not spoiled it he would have been feasted in such a manner in this world, and would have eaten in a twofold manner such fruits as indeed were presented to him in Paradise.

[Aur. 4:51] But the infectious lust, evil attraction or impulse of the Devil, who had infected and spoiled the Salitter of which Adam was made, that brought man into an evil longing or lust to eat both the qualities, the evil and the good, whereof I will write clearly here following, and demonstrate it.

Of the Creation of Angels.

[Aur. 4:52] The spirit shows plainly and clearly that, before the creation of angels, the divine being, with its rising and qualifying, was from eternity, and remained so in the creation of angels, as it is also at this day, and will so continue in and to eternity.

[Aur. 4:53] The space, room or place of this world, together with the creaturely heaven, which we behold with our eyes, as also the space or place of the earth and stars, together with the deep, was in such a form as still at this day it is in, aloft, above the heavens, in the divine pomp.

[Aur. 4:54] But it was or became in the creation of the angels, the kingdom of the great prince Lucifer: (“Understand according to the second Principle, out of which he was thrust forth into the outermost, which also is the very innermost of all.”)

[Aur. 4:55] Who, by his proud elevation in his kingdom, kindled the qualities or the divine Salitter out of which he was made; (“Understand the center of his nature, or the first Principle;”) and set it on fire.

[Aur. 4:56] Supposing thereby he would grow hugely and highly light and qualifying above the Son of God. But he became a fool; therefore this place or space, in its burning quality, could not subsist in God, whereupon the creation of this world ensued.

[Aur. 4:57] But this world at the end, in God's appointed time, will be set again into its first place, as it was before the creation of angels; and lord Lucifer will have a hole or dungeon for his eternal habitation therein, and he will remain eternally in his kindled quality, which will be an eternal, base, filthy, reproachful habitation, an empty, void dark valley or dungeon, a hole of fierceness or wrath.

Now observe,

[Aur. 4:58] God in his moving created the holy angels at once, not out of a strange matter, but out of himself, out of his own power and eternal wisdom.

[Aur. 4:59] But the philosophers had this opinion: as if God had made the angels out of the light only; but they erred therein, for the angels were made not only out of the light, but out of all the powers of God.

[Aur. 4:60] As I have shown before, there are two things especially to be observed in the deep of God the Father; first, that the power, or all the powers of God the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, are very lovely, pleasant and various, and yet are all one in another as one power.

[Aur. 4:61] As the powers of all the stars rule in the air, so also in God; But with its operation every power in God shows itself severally and distinctly.

[Aur. 4:62] Then afterwards, that the sound is in every power, and the tone or tune of the sound is according to the quality of every power; and therein consists the total heavenly kingdom of joy. From this divine Salitter and Mercurius all angels are made, viz. out of the body of nature.

Question.

[Aur. 4:63] But you may here ask, How are they made or generated, or in what way and manner?

Answer.

[Aur. 4:64] If I had the tongue of an angel, and you had an angelical understanding, we might very finely discourse of it. But the spirit only sees it, and the tongue cannot advance towards it. For I can use no other words than the words of this world; but now the Holy Ghost being in you, your soul will well apprehend it.

[Aur. 4:65] For behold, the total holy Trinity has with its moving composed, compacted or figured a body or image out of itself, like a little god, but not so fully or strongly going forth as the whole Trinity, yet in some measure according to the extent and capacity of the creatures.

[Aur. 4:66] For in God there is neither beginning nor end; but the angels have a beginning and end, but not circumscriptive, apprehensive, palpable or conclusive; for an angel can sometimes be great, and suddenly little again; their alteration is as swift as man's thoughts are. All qualities and powers are in an angel, as they are in the whole Deity.

[Aur. 4:67] But you must rightly understand this: They are made and compacted together, or figured, out of the Salitter and Mercurius, that is, out of the exit or excrescence.

[Aur. 4:68] Consider this similitude: Out of the sun and stars go forth the elements, and they make in the Salitter of the earth a living spirit, and the stars remain in their circle or sphere, and that spirit likewise gets the quality of the stars.

[Aur. 4:69] But now the spirit, after its compaction, is a severed distinct thing, and has a substance of its own, as all the stars have; and the stars also are and remain severed and distinct things, each of them is free to itself.
[Aur. 4:70] Nevertheless the quality of the stars reigns in the spirit; yet the spirit can and may raise or immerse itself in its own qualities, or may live in the influences of the stars, as it pleases: It is free, for it has got for its own the qualities which it has in itself.

[Aur. 4:71] And though it had them at the beginning from the stars, yet they are now its proper own: Just as a mother when she has the seed in herself, as long as she has it in her, and that it is a seed, it is hers; but when the seed is become a child, then it is no more the mother's, but is the child's proper own.

[Aur. 4:72] And though the child be in the mother's house, and the mother nourish the child with her food, and the child could not live without the mother, yet both the body and the spirit, which are generated out of the seed of the mother, are the child's proper own, and it retains its corporeal right to itself.

[Aur. 4:73] And in this manner it is with the angels, they also are all composed, framed or figured out of the divine seed, but everyone has its own body to itself. Though they are in God's house, and feed on the fruit of their mother, out of which they were made, yet the bodies are their proper own.

[Aur. 4:74] But the quality externally without them, or externally without their bodies, viz. their mother, is not their propriety, as also their mother is not the child's propriety; also the mother's food is not the child's propriety; but the mother gives it to the child out of love, seeing she has generated the child.

[Aur. 4:75] She may well also thrust the child out of her house, when the child is stubborn, and will not be obedient, and may withdraw her food from it, which also thus befell the principality of Lucifer.

[Aur. 4:76] Thus God may withdraw his divine power, which is externally without the angels, when they elevate themselves against him; but when that is done, a spirit must pine away and perish.

[Aur. 4:77] As when the air, which also is man's mother, is withdrawn from a man, he must inevitably die; so the angels cannot live without their mother.
CHAPTER 5

Of the Corporeal Substance, Being and Propriety of an Angel.

Question.

[Aur. 5:1] Now here the question is, What manner of body, form or shape has an angel, or what figure is it of?

Answer.

[Aur. 5:2] As man is created to be the image and similitude of God, so also are the angels, for they are the brethren of men, and men in the resurrection will have no other form or image than the angels have, as our King CHRIST himself testifies. (Mat. 22:30)

[Aur. 5:3] Besides, the angels never showed themselves in any other form or shape to men here on earth, than in a human form and shape.

[Aur. 5:4] Therefore seeing that in the resurrection we shall be like the angels, the angels must of necessity be shaped and figured like us, or else we must assume to ourselves another image or shape in the resurrection, which would be against and contrary to the first creation.

[Aur. 5:5] Thus also, on mount Tabor, Moses and Elias appeared, in their own form and shape, to the disciples of Christ, though they had been a long time in heaven before. [Mat. 17]

[Aur. 5:6] And Elias was taken up into heaven alive, with his living body [2 Kings 2:12], and yet had now no other form or shape than he had when he was on earth.

[Aur. 5:7] Also when Christ went to heaven, two angels hovered in the clouds, and said to the disciples, Ye men of Israel, what do you look after? This JESUS shall come again, as you have seen HIM go away to heaven.

[Aur. 5:8] Thus it is plain and clear enough that he will come again in the same form at the last day, with a divine and glorified body, as a Prince of the holy angels, which will be the men-angels.

[Aur. 5:9] The spirit also testifies clearly that angels and men have one and the same image; for out of the same place wherein Lucifer sat, and out of which he was made, God has made another angel instead of expelled Lucifer and his legions, which angel was ADAM, if he had but persevered in his clarity, brightness or glory.

[Aur. 5:10] But there is yet a sure hope of resurrection, and then we shall get the angelical clarity or glory and purity again.

Question.

[Aur. 5:11] Now you will ask, How then are the angels created according to the image of God?

Answer.

[Aur. 5:12] First, the compacted, figured body is indivisible and incorruptible, and not to be felt by man's hands; for it is constituted or composed out of the divine power, and that power is so knit and bound together that it can never be destroyed again.
[Aur. 5:13] For as none, no not anything, can destroy the whole Deity, so also there is not anything that can destroy an angel; for every angel is formed, figured, set together or composed out of all the powers of God, not with flesh and blood, but out of the divine power.

[Aur. 5:14] First, the body is out of all the powers of the Father, and in those powers is the light of God the Son; now the powers of the Father and of the Son, which are in an angel creaturely, generate an understanding spirit, which rises up in that angel.

[Aur. 5:15] First of all, the powers of the Father generate a light, whereby an angel sees into the whole Father, whereby he can see the outward power and operation of God, which is externally without its own body, and thereby can see its fellow-brethren, and can see and enjoy the glorious fruit of God, and therein consists its joy.

[Aur. 5:16] At first that light came out of the Son of God in the powers of the Father, into the angelical body creaturely, and is the body's proper own, which cannot be withdrawn from it by anything, unless itself extinguishes it, as Lucifer did.

[Aur. 5:17] Now all the powers, which are in the whole angel, generate that light; and as God the Father generates his Son to be his Heart, so the power of the angel also generates its son and heart in itself, and that again enlightens all powers in the whole angel.

[Aur. 5:18] After that there goes forth out of all the powers of the angel, and also out of the light of the angel, a fountain, which springs or wells up in the whole angel; and that is its spirit, which rises up into all eternity; for in this same spirit is all perception and all knowledge [i.e. understanding] of all powers and of all types and modes [of life] which are in the whole [universal] God.

[Aur. 5:19] For that spirit springs up out of all the powers of the angel, and goes up into the mind, where it has five open doors; there it can look round about and see whatsoever is in God, and also whatsoever is in itself.

[Aur. 5:20] And so it goes forth from all the powers of the angel, as also from the light of the angel; as the Holy Ghost goes forth from the Father and the Son, and fills the whole corpus or body.

Now observe the great Mystery.

[Aur. 5:21] There are two things to be observed in God; the first is the Salitter, or the divine powers, out of which is the body or corporeity; and the second is the Mercurius, tone, tune or sound: thus also it is, in like manner and form, in an angel.

[Aur. 5:22] First there is the power, and in the power is the tone or tune, which, in the spirit, rises up into the head, into the mind, as in man in the brain; and in the mind it [the tone] has its open doors or gates; but in the heart it has its seat and its origin, where it springs [or arises] from all the powers.

[Aur. 5:23] For the fountain of all powers flows in the heart, as it does also in man, and in the head it has its princely seat, where it sees all, smells all, and feels all.

[Aur. 5:24] And now when it sees and hears the divine tone, tune and sound rise up, which is externally without it, then is its spirit affected and kindled with joy, and elevates itself in its princely seat, and sings and rings forth very joyful words concerning God’s holiness, and concerning the fruit and vegetation of the eternal life.

[Aur. 5:25] Also concerning the ornament, colors and beauty of the eternal joy, and concerning the amiable blessed glance or gracious aspect and countenance of God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost; also concerning the excellent fraternity, fellowship and communion of angels, concerning the continual everlasting joyfulness, concerning the holiness of God, and concerning the angels' own princely government.

[Aur. 5:26] In brief, concerning all powers, and that which proceeds from all God's powers; which, in regard of the untowardness of my corruption in the flesh, I cannot write, I would much rather be there present myself.

[Aur. 5:27] But what I cannot write here I will commit to your soul to consider further of it, and at the Day of the Resurrection you shall see it most plainly and clearly.

[Aur. 5:28] You should not here scorn my spirit, for it is not sprung forth from the wild beast, but is generated from my power and virtue, and enlightened by the Holy Ghost.

[Aur. 5:29] Here I write not without knowledge; but if you, like an epicure and fatted swine of the Devil, from the Devil's instigation, should mock at these things and say:

[Aur. 5:30] The fool surely has not gone up to heaven and seen or heard them, these are mere fables; then, in the power of my knowledge, I would have you warned, and cited before the severe judgment of God.

[Aur. 5:31] And though in my body I am powerless to bring you there, yet That from which I have my knowledge is mighty and potent enough to cast you even into the abyss of hell.

[Aur. 5:32] Therefore take warning, and consider that you also belong to the angelical choir, and read the following hymn with longing delight, and then the Holy Ghost will be awakened and stirred up in you, and you also will get a desire and longing after the heavenly chorus and choir of dancing. Amen.

[Aur. 5:33] The musician has wound up his pegs, and tuned his strings; the Bridegroom comes. When the round begins take heed you do not get the hellish gout in your feet; lest you be found incapable or unfit for the angelical dance, and so be thrust out from the wedding, seeing you have on no angelical garment.

[Aur. 5:34] Surely the gate will be locked upon you, and so you will not enter in anymore, but will dance with the hellish wolves in the hellish fire; truly you will then forget to mock, and sorrow will gnaw you.

Of the Qualification of an Angel.

Question.

[Aur. 5:35] The question now is, What manner of qualification has an angel?

Answer.

[Aur. 5:36] The holy soul of a man, and the spirit of an angel, are and have one and the same substance and being, and there is no difference therein, but only in the quality itself, or in their corporeal government; that which qualifies outwardly, or from without, in man by the air has a corrupt earthly quality, yet on the other side, hidden from the creatures, it has also a divine and heavenly quality.

[Aur. 5:37] But the holy soul understands it well, as the kingly prophet David said, The Lord rides on the wings of the wind. In the angel the divine property qualifies only in perfect holiness, divinity and purity.
Question.

[Aur. 5:38] But a simple man may ask, What do you mean by the world qualifying, or what is that?

Answer.

[Aur. 5:39] I mean thereby the power, which in the body of the angel enters in from without, and comes forth again; as in a similitude, when a man fetches breath and breathes it forth again; for therein stands the life both of the body and of the spirit.

[Aur. 5:40] The quality from without kindles the spirit in the heart, in the first fountain, whereby all the powers in the whole body become stirring, and then that quality in the corporeal spirit, which is the natural spirit of an angel or a man, rises up into the head, where it has its princely seat or throne and government, and there it has its counselors, whose advice it takes.

[Aur. 5:41] The first counselor is the eyes; they are affected with everything they look upon, for they are the light.

[Aur. 5:42] For as the light goes forth from the Son of God in the whole Father into all the powers, and affects all the powers of the Father, and on the other side all the powers of the Father affect the light of the Son of God wherefrom arises the Holy Spirit:

[Aur. 5:43] So do the eyes work in the thing they look upon, and the thing works again in the eyes, and the counselor, the eyes, brings it into the head before the princely seat or throne; and there it is to be approved of.

[Aur. 5:44] Now if the spirit is pleased therewith, then it brings the same to the heart, and the heart gives it to the passages or issuings forth of the powers or fountain-veins in the whole body; and then the mouth and hands and feet fall to work.

[Aur. 5:45] The second counselor is the ears, which have their rise also from all the powers in the whole body through the spirit; their fountain is Mercurius or the sound, which arises from all the powers.

[Aur. 5:46] And as in all the powers of God the Mercurius rises and sounds, wherein the heavenly tone, tune or joy consists, and the tone or tune goes forth out of all the powers, and so in the attraction of the spirit in God is elevated or raised up:

[Aur. 5:47] And when one power touches or stirs the other, and tunes or sounds, then the tune or sound goes forth, and rises up again in all the powers of the Father; and so all the powers of the Father are again affected therewith, whereby they are always impregnated with the tune, and continually generate it again in every power:

[Aur. 5:48] Thus the second counselor in the head is the ears, they stand open, and in all that sounds the sound goes forth through them.

[Aur. 5:49] Now where the Mercurius sounds and is elevated or predominant, there the Mercurius of the spirit goes also in, and is thereby affected, and brings it [the sound] before the princely throne in the head, where it is to be approved by the other four counselors.

[Aur. 5:50] And if the spirit is pleased therewith, then it [the spirit] brings the same before its mother into the heart, and the heart, or the fountain of the heart, gives it [the sound] to all the powers in the whole body; and then the mouth and hands lay hold on it.

[Aur. 5:51] But if the whole princely council in the head be not pleased, so that it [the sound] is approved, then it [the princely council] lets that go again, and brings it [the sound] not to the mother, the heart.
[Aur. 5:52] The third princely counselor is the nose; there the fountain rises up from the body in the spirit into the nose, and there it has two open doors or gates.

[Aur. 5:53] As the excellent, precious and amiable blessed savour or smell goes forth from all the powers of the Father and of the Son, and tempers itself with all the powers of the Holy Ghost, where the Holy Spirit and most precious savour rises up from the fountain of the Holy Ghost; and flows or boils in all the powers of the Father, and kindles all the powers of the Father, whereby they are impregnated again with the amiable blessed savour or saving smell, and so generate it in the Son and Holy Ghost:

[Aur. 5:54] So also in angels and men, the power of the smell rises up out of all the powers of the body by and through the spirit, and comes forth at the nostrils of the nose, and is affected with all smells or savors, and brings them through the nostrils of the nose, which is the third counselor, into the head, before the princely seat or throne.

[Aur. 5:55] And there it is to be proved whether the smell be a good smell or savour, pleasing to man's constitution and complexion, or no: If it be good, then the counselor brings the same to its mother, that the smell may be brought to effect; if it be not good, then is it expelled and thrust away.

[Aur. 5:56] And this counselor of the smell, which is generated out of the Salitter, is also mixed with Mercurius, and so belongs to the heavenly joyfulness, and is a glorious, excellent and fair fountain in God.

[Aur. 5:57] The fourth princely counselor is the taste on the tongue, which also arises from all the powers of the body through the spirit into the tongue: for all fountain-veins of the whole body go into the tongue, and the tongue is the sharpness or taste of all the powers:

[Aur. 5:58] Just as the Holy Ghost goes forth from the Father and the Son, and is the sharpness or proof of all powers, and in his moving or rising up brings all that which is good again into all the powers of the Father, whereby the powers of the father are impregnated again, and so continually generate the taste.

[Aur. 5:59] But that which is not good the Holy Ghost spews out, as a loathsome abomination, as it is written in the Apocalypse; and as he spewed out the great prince Lucifer in his pride and perdition; for the Holy Ghost could no more endure to taste the fiery proud stinking quality. And thus it happens to all proud stinking men.

[Aur. 5:60] O man, let this be told you, for the spirit is earnestly jealous in this thing especially: Desist from pride; or else it will be with you as it befell the devils. There is no jesting or trifling herein; the time is very short, you will suddenly taste it, I mean the hellish fire.

[Aur. 5:61] Now as the Holy Ghost proves all, so the tongue also proves all tastes: and if the same pleases the spirit, then the spirit brings the same into the head, to the other four counselors before the princely seat, and there it is proved whether it be profitable or wholesome for the qualities of the body.

[Aur. 5:62] If so, then is it brought to the mother, the heart, which gives it to all the veins or powers of the body, and then the mouth and hands lay hold of it.

[Aur. 5:63] But if it be not good, then the tongue spits or spews it out, before it comes to the princely council.

[Aur. 5:64] But though the taste be pleasant to the tongue, and is a good taste, but yet is not serviceable and useful for the whole body, then it is rejected nevertheless, when it comes before the council, and the tongue must spit or spew it out, and touch it no more.
[Aur. 5:65] The fifth princely counselor is the feeling; which fifth counselor arises also from all the powers of the spirit, into the head.

[Aur. 5:66] As all powers go forth from God the Father and Son, in the Holy Ghost, so one touches another, from which exists the tune or Mercurius, so that all the powers sound and move themselves.

[Aur. 5:67] Else if one did not touch another, nothing would stir at all, and so this touching makes the Holy Ghost stir, so that he rises up in all the powers, and touches all the powers of the Father, wherein then exists the heavenly joyfulness or triumphing, as also tuning, sounding, generating, blossoming and vegetation or springing, all which has its rising from this, that one power touches another.

[Aur. 5:68] For Christ said in the Gospel, I work, and my Father works also.25 And he means this very touching and working, in that every power goes forth from him, and generates the Holy Ghost, and in the Holy Ghost all the powers are already clearly stirred, by the going forth of the Father.

[Aur. 5:69] Therefore the Holy Ghost flows, boils and rises up from eternity to eternity, and kindles again all the powers of the Father, and makes them stirring, so that they are always impregnated.

[Aur. 5:70] In such manner it is also in angels and men: for all powers in the body (Corpus) arise, and touch one another, or else angels and men could feel nothing.

[Aur. 5:71] But if one member be too much stirred, it cries to the whole body for help, and the whole body stirs, as if it were in a great commotion or uproar, as if the enemy were at hand, and comes to help that member, and to deliver and release it from the pain.

[Aur. 5:72] This you may see if a finger be but hurt, crushed or wounded, or any other member of the body, be it which it will; presently the spirit in that place runs suddenly to the mother, the heart, and complains to the mother; and if the pain do but a little exceed, then the mother rouses up and awakens all the members of the body, and all must come to help that member.

Now observe,

[Aur. 5:73] Thus one power continually touches and stirs another in the whole body, and all the powers rise up into the head before the princely council, which princely council proves the stirring of all the powers.

[Aur. 5:74] Now if one member stirs too much, and at any time hurts a princely counselor; (as by seeing, it would be in love with that which it ought not to be in love with):

[Aur. 5:75] As lord Lucifer did, who saw the Son of God, and fell in love with that high light, and moved and stirred himself so very much, intending to be equal with him, or indeed to be higher and brighter than he; such stirring or meddling the counselors reject.

[Aur. 5:76] Or if one member would stir and move too vehemently by hearing, and would fain hear false and wicked tongues in talking lies and fictions, and bring that to the heart, this also is rejected by the counselors.

[Aur. 5:77] Or if it would by the smelling get a longing or lusting after that which is none of its own. As lord Lucifer did also, who longed after the holy savour or sweet smell of the Son of God, and intended in his elevation and kindling to smell and savour yet more pleasantly.

[Aur. 5:78] In that manner he also deceived our mother Eve, saying, If she did but eat of the forbidden tree, then she should be wise or witty, and be like God;26 but this smelling or stirring the council likewise reject.
[Aur. 5:79] Or if by tasting it should fall into a desire and longing to eat that which is not of the quality of the body, or is none of its own; as mother Eve in Paradise fell a longing to eat of the Devil’s crab-apples, and did eat thereof; such stirring in lust the council also reject.

[Aur. 5:80] In short, there are therefore five in the princely council, that one should advise another, and everyone is of a peculiar sundry quality; and that compacted or concreted spirit which is generated out of all the powers is their king or prince, and he sits in the head in the brain of a man, and in an angel in that power which is instead of the brain of a man, and in the head also, upon his princely throne, and executes everything which was concluded and decreed by the whole princely council.

How an Angel, and how a Man, is the Similitude and Image of God.

[Aur. 6:1] BEHOLD! as the being or essence in God is, so also is the being in man and in angels; and as the divine body is, so also is the angelical and human body or corporeity.

[Aur. 6:2] But with this difference alone, that an angel, and a man, is a creature, and not the whole being, but a son of the whole being, whom the whole being has generated; and therefore it is fit that it should be in subjection to the whole being, seeing that it is the son of the body of the whole being.

[Aur. 6:3] Now if the son resist and oppose the father, it is but right that the father should cast him away out of the house, seeing the son gets himself against him that has generated him, and from whose power he is become a creature.

[Aur. 6:4] For if anyone make somewhat out of that which is his own, he may, if it does not prove according to his will, do with it what he pleases, and make it either a vessel of honor or of dishonor; which was done even so to Lucifer.

Now observe:

[Aur. 6:5] From all qualities the whole divine power of the Father speak forth the WORD; that is, the Son of God.

[Aur. 6:6] Now that voice, or that WORD which the Father speaks, goes forth from the Father's Salitter or powers, and from the Father's Mercurius, sound or tune: This the Father speaks forth in himself, and that WORD is the very splendour or glance proceeding from all his powers.

[Aur. 6:7] But when it is spoken forth it stays or sticks no more in the powers of the Father, but sounds or tunes back again in the whole Father in all powers.

[Aur. 6:8] Now that WORD which the Father pronounces or speaks forth has such a sharpness, that the tone of the WORD goes swiftly in a moment through the whole deep of the Father, and that sharpness is the Holy Ghost.

[Aur. 6:9] For the WORD which is spoken forth or outspoken abides as a splendour or glorious edict before the king.

[Aur. 6:10] But the tone or sound, which goes forth through the Word, executes the edict of the Father, which he had outspoken through the Word; and that is the birth or geniture of the holy Trinity.

[Aur. 6:11] Now behold! An angel, and a man also, is thus: The power in the whole body has all the qualities, as it is in God the Father.

[Aur. 6:12] And as all the powers in God the Father rise up from eternity to eternity so all the powers rise up also in an angel, and in a man, into the head; for higher they cannot rise; for they are but creatures that have a beginning and end.

[Aur. 6:13] And in the head is the divine council-seat or throne, and [the throne] signifies God the Father, and the five senses or qualities are the counselors, which have their influences out of the whole body, out of all the powers.
[Aur. 6:14] The five senses always hold counsel in the power of the whole body, and when a conclusion is formed, the same is uttered [or pronounced] by the united council [lit. judge] in its [the council’s] center, or in the midst of the body, as a word, in the heart; for the heart is the fountain-spring of all powers, from which the word itself takes its rise [or arises].

[Aur. 6:15] Then the word stands in the heart as a self-subsisting person, compacted from all the powers [combined]; it is a word and represents or denotes God the Son. Then [also] it rises up from the heart into the mouth and upon the tongue, which [latter] is the sharpness, and sharpens the word, so that it sounds, and differentiates it according to the five senses.

[Aur. 6:16] From what quality soever the word takes its original, in that quality it is thrust forth upon the tongue, and the power of the distinction or difference goes forth from the tongue; and that signifies the Holy Ghost.

[Aur. 6:17] For as the Holy Ghost goes forth from the Father and the Son, and distinguishes and sharpens all, and effects or produces that which the Father speaks through the Word:

[Aur. 6:18] So also the tongue sharpens, articulates and distinguishes all that which the five senses in the head bring through the heart on to the tongue; and the spirit goes forth from the tongue through the Mercurius or tone in that place, as it was decreed or concluded by the council of the five senses, and executes it all.

Of the Mouth.

[Aur. 6:19] The mouth signifies that you are an un-almighty son of your Father, whether you are an angel or a man. For through the mouth you must draw into you the power of your Father, if you will live.

[Aur. 6:20] An angel must do so, as well as a man, though indeed he needs not to use the element of air in that manner as a man does; yet he must attract into himself, through the mouth, the spirit from which the air in this world exists.

[Aur. 6:21] For in heaven there is no such air, but the qualities are very meek and joyful, like a pleasant cheering breath of wind, and the Holy Ghost is among all the qualities in the Salitter and Mercurius.

[Aur. 6:22] This the angel also must make use of, or else he cannot be a moveable creature, for he must also eat of the heavenly fruit through the mouth.

[Aur. 6:23] You must not understand this in an earthly manner; for an angel has no guts, neither flesh nor bones, but is constituted or composed by the divine power in the shape, form and manner of a man, and has all members like man, except the members of generation, and the fundament or going out of the draf; neither has an angel need of them.

[Aur. 6:24] For man first got his members of generation and fundament in his doleful and lamentable fall. An angel sends forth nothing but the divine power, which he takes in at his mouth, wherewith he kindles his heart, and the heart kindles all the members, and that he sends forth from himself again at the mouth, when he speaks and praises God.

[Aur. 6:25] But the heavenly fruits which he eats are not earthly; and though they are in such a form and shape as the earthly, yet they are mere divine power, and have such a pleasant lovely taste and smell that I cannot liken it to anything in this world; for they taste and smell of the Holy Trinity.

[Aur. 6:26] You must not think that they are there only as it were a type or shadow of things; no; for the spirit shows plainly that in the heavenly pomp, in the heavenly Salitter and Mercurius, grow divine trees, plants, flowers, and all sorts of whatever is in this world but as a type and resemblance: As the angels are, so are the vegetation and fruits, all from the divine power.

[Aur. 6:27] These heavenly sprouts and springings you must not wholly liken to this world: For there are two qualities in this world, a good and an evil; and many things grow through the power of the evil quality, which do not so in heaven.

[Aur. 6:28] For heaven has but one form or manner: nothing grows there which is not good. Lord Lucifer alone has deformed and dressed this world in that manner: Therefore was mother Eve ashamed, when she had eaten of that which was dressed by the evil quality; in like manner also she was ashamed of her members of generation, which she had caused by the biting of this apple.

[Aur. 6:29] The angelical and heavenly fruit has not such [an evil quality or] substance: Indeed it is most certain and true that there are all manner of fruits in heaven, and not types and shadows merely: Also that the angels pluck them with their hands, and eat them, as we that are men do, but they need not any teeth to do it with, neither have they any, for the fruit is of a divine power.

[Aur. 6:30] Now all this, whatsoever an angel makes use of, which is externally without him, for the supporting his life, is not his corporeal propriety, as if he had it by a natural right, but the heavenly Father gives it to the angels in love.

[Aur. 6:31] True it is that their body is their own propriety, for God has given it to them for a propriety. Now whatsoever is given to any one for his own, or for propriety, that is his by right of nature, and he does not deal righteously who takes it from him again, unless [he does so] upon condition and agreement; and thus neither does God [take things away again]. Therefore an angel is an eternal incorruptible creature, which stands or subsists in all eternity.

[Aur. 6:32] But what would the body profit him, if God did not feed it, for then it would have no mobility, and would lie still like a dead block. Now, therefore, the angels are obedient to God, and humble themselves before the powerful God; they honor, laud and praise him in his great deeds and works of wonder, and sing continually of God’s holiness, because he feeds them.

Of the Gracious, Blessed, and Joyful Love of the Angels towards God

[Aur. 6:33] The right love in the divine nature comes from the fountain of the Son of God. Behold, you child of man, let this be told you: The angels know already what is the right love toward God, but you need it in your cold heart.

[Aur. 6:34] Observe, when the gracious, amiable, blessed, joyful glance and light, together with the sweet power out of the Son of God, shines into all powers in the whole Father, then all the powers are kindled by the gracious, amiable, blessed, lovely light and sweet power, in a triumphing and joyful manner.

[Aur. 6:35] So also when the gracious, amiable, blessed and joyful light of the Son of God shines on the loving angels, and casts its beams into their heart, then all the powers in their body are kindled, and there rises up such a joyful love-fire, that for great joy they sing and ring forth praises, and [there rises up] that which neither I nor any other creature is able to express.

[Aur. 6:36] With this song I would have the Reader cited into the other life, where he will have experience thereof: I am not able to set it down in writing.
[Aur. 6:37] But if you will have experience of it in this world, give over your hypocrisy, bribery and deceit, and your scorning; and turn your heart in all seriousness to God: Repent you of your sins, with a true intention and resolution to live holy, and pray to God for his Holy Spirit.

[Aur. 6:38] Wrestle with him, as the holy patriarch Jacob did, who wrestled with him all the night, till the dawning of the day, or morning redness broke forth, and would not give over till God had blessed him. Do you so likewise with him, and the Holy Ghost will get a form in you.

[Aur. 6:39] If you hold on in your earnestness, and will not give over, then will this fire come suddenly upon you, like lightening, and shine into you; and then you will well experience that which I have here written, and will easily believe that which is in my book.

[Aur. 6:40] You will also become quite another man, and will think thereon all the days of your life; your delight will be more in heaven than on earth.

[Aur. 6:41] For the conversation of the holy soul is in heaven, and though indeed it converses in the body on earth, yet it is always continually with its Redeemer JESUS CHRIST, and eats as a guest with him. Note this!
CHAPTER 7

Of the Court, Place and Dwelling, also of the Government of Angels, how these things stood at the Beginning, after the Creation, and how they became as they are.

[Aur. 7:1] Here the Devil will oppose like a snarling dog, for his shame will be discovered; and he will give the Reader many a sore stroke, and always put him in doubt that these things are not so.

[Aur. 7:2] For nothing does torment the Devil more than when his glory is upbraided to him, by signifying what a glorious king and prince he has been: When this is objected to him, then he is in a rage and madness, as if he would storm and overflow all the world.

[Aur. 7:3] If this chapter should be lighted upon by a Reader in whom the fire of the Holy Spirit should be somewhat weak, I fear the Devil would be very busy to set upon him, tempting him to doubt whether the things set down here be so or no, that the Devil’s kingdom might not stand so very naked, nor his shame be so quite discovered.

[Aur. 7:4] Now if he can but suppose that he will bring it to pass to be doubted of in any heart, he will not fail to use his utmost skill, pains and labor therein. Already I see very well that he has it in his purpose.

[Aur. 7:5] Therefore I would have the Reader warned that he be diligent in the reading hereof, and patient so long till he comes to the reading of the creation and of the government of this world, then he will find it plainly and clearly demonstrated from nature.

Now observe:

[Aur. 7:6] When God Almighty had decreed in his council that he would make angels or creatures out of himself, then he made them out of his eternal power and wisdom, according to the form and manner of the Ternary in his Deity, and according to the qualities in his divine being.

[Aur. 7:7] At first he made three kingly governments or dominions, answerable to the number of the Holy Trinity, and each kingdom had the order or ordinance, power and quality of the divine being.

[Aur. 7:8] Now elevate your sense, thoughts and spirit into the deep of the Deity, for here a gate is opened. The place or space of this world, the deep of the earth, and above the earth even to heaven, as also the created heaven, which was made out of the midst of the waters, which moves above the stars, and which we behold with our eyes, whose depth we cannot sound or reach with our sense, all this place or room together was one kingdom, and Lucifer was king therein, before his being thrust out.

[Aur. 7:9] The other two kingdoms, that of Michael and that of Uriel, are above the created heaven, and are like that other kingdom.

[Aur. 7:10] These three kingdoms together contain such a deep as it is not of any human number, nor can they be measured by anything.

[Aur. 7:11] Yet you must know that these three kingdoms have a beginning and an end; but that God, who has made these three kingdoms out of himself, is infinite, and has no end.
Yet without and beyond and besides these three kingdoms there is likewise the power of the Holy Trinity, for God the Father has no end.

But you are to know this Mystery: that in the center or midst of these three kingdoms is generated the splendour or Son of God.

("This needs explanation: Read the second and the third part of these writings, where it is described more fundamentally: for nothing that is divisible, measurable or circumscriptive is here meant or understood, only it was in simplicity and plainness so set down at the first, because of the slow and dull apprehension.")

And the three kingdoms are circular round about the Son of God, neither of them is farther from or nearer to the Son of God, for one is equally as near about the Son of God as another.

From this foundation and from all the powers of the Father, goes forth the Holy Ghost, together with the light and power of the Son of God, in and through all angelical kingdoms or dominions, and without, beyond and besides all the angelical kingdoms; which no angel or man is able to dive or search into.

Neither have I any purpose to consider of it further, much less to write; but my revelation reaches even into the three kingdoms, like an angelical knowledge.

But not in my reason or apprehension, nor in perfection like an angel, but in part, and so long only as the spirit tarries in me, further I know it not.

When he parts from me I know nothing but the elementary and earthly things of this world: but the spirit sees even into the depth of Deity.

Now one may ask, What manner of substance or thing is it, that the Son of God is thus generated in the center or midst of these three kingdoms? Surely one angelical host must necessarily be nearer unto him than another, seeing their kingdom has so great a deep?

Then, also, the glory, clarity or brightness and power of the Son of God would not be so great without, beyond or besides those kingdoms, as in, with and among those that are near him, and as in the angelical circuit or court.

The holy angels were made to be creatures from God, that they should praise, sing, ring forth and jubilate before the Heart of God (which is the Son of God), and increase the heavenly joy.

Where else then should the Father place them, than before the gate of his Heart? Does not all joy of man, which is in the whole man, arise from the fountain of the heart? So then in God also there arises the great joy out of the fountain of his Heart.

Therefore has he created the holy angels out of himself, which are as it were little gods, answerable to the being and qualities of the whole God, that in the divine power they should act forth the praise, and sing and ring forth in the power, and increase the arising joy from the Heart of God.

But the splendour and the power of the Son of God, or Heart of God, which is the light or source and fountain of joy, takes up his fairest and most joyful original in the center or midst of these kingdoms, and shines into and through all the angelical gates.
You must understand this properly, what the meaning of it is: For when I speak by way of similitude, and liken the Son of God to the sun, or to a round globe, it has not that meaning as if he were a circumscribed fountain, which can be measured, or whose depth, beginning or end could be fathomed. I write so by way of similitude only, till the Reader can come to the true understanding.

For the meaning here is not that the Son of God should be generated in the center or midst of these angelical gates only, and nowhere else without, beyond or besides these angelical gates.

For the powers of the Father are everywhere, from and out of which the Son is generated, and from which the Holy Ghost goes forth; how then should he be generated in the center of these angelical gates only?

This therefore is the only ground and meaning, that the holy Father, who is ALL, would have in these angelical gates his most joyful and most richly loving qualities, out of which is generated the most joyful and most richly loving light, word, heart, or fountain of powers; and therefore has he created his holy angels in this place for his joy, honor and glory.

(“In the abyssal or bottomless eternity indeed, it is [the same] in one place as in another; but where there are no creatures nothing can be known, except by the spirit in its wonders.”)

And this is the select place of the glory of God, which God the Father, in himself, has made choice of, wherein his holy WORD or Heart is generated in highest glory, clarity or brightness, power and triumphing joy.

For observe this mystery: The light, which is generated out of the powers of the Father, who is the true fountain of the Son of God, is generated also in an angel, and in a holy man, so that in the same light and knowledge he [the Son of God] triumphs in great joy.

How then is it, that the light should not be generated everywhere in the whole Father? For its power is ALL, and everywhere, even there, where our heart and senses or thoughts cannot reach.

So now, where the Father is, there also is the Son and the Holy Ghost; for the Father everywhere generates the Son, his holy WORD, power, light and sound, and the Holy Ghost goes everywhere forth from the Father and the Son, even within all the angelical gates, and also without, beside or beyond the angelical gates.

Now if a man likens the Son of God to the globe of the sun, as I have often done in the foregoing chapters, that is spoken in the way and manner of natural similitudes; and I was constrained to write so, because of the lack of understanding of the Reader, that so he might raise his sense or thoughts in these natural things, and climb from step to step, from one degree to another, till he might come into the high Mysteries.

But it has not this meaning, that the Son of God is a circumscribed, compacted, figured image, like the sun.

For if it were so, then must the Son of God have a beginning, and the Father must have generated him in time, and then he could not be the eternal, almighty Son of the Father; but the Son would be like a king, who had yet a greater king above him, who had generated him in time, and in whose power it was to alter and change him.

This would be such a Son as had a beginning and his power and splendour would be like the power of the sun which goes forth from the sun, the body or globe of the sun standing still in its place: If this were so, then indeed one angelical gate would be nearer to the Son of God than another.
But here I will show to you the highest gate of the divine Mystery, and you need seek no higher; for there is no higher.

Observe:

The Father’s power is all, in and above all heavens, and the same power everywhere generates the light. Now this UNIVERSAL POWER is, and is called, the universal power of the Father; and the light which is generated out of that universal power is, and is called, the Son.

But it is therefore called the Son, in that it is generated out of the Father, so that it is the Heart of the Father in his powers.

And being generated, it is another person than the Father is; for the Father is the power and the kingdom, and the Son is the light and the splendour in the Father, and the Holy Ghost is the moving or exit out of the powers of the Father and of the Son, and forms, figures, frames and images all.

As the air goes forth from the power of the sun and stars, and moves in this world, and causes that all creatures are generated, and that the grass, herbs and trees spring and grow, and causes all whatsoever is in this world to be:

So the Holy Ghost goes forth from the Father and the Son, and moves or acts, forms or frames and images all that is in the whole God.

All growing or vegetation and forms in the Father, arise and spring up in the moving of the Holy Ghost; therefore there is but ONE only GOD, and three distinct Persons in one divine being, essence or substance.

Now if a man should say the Son of God were an image, circumscriptive or measurable like the sun, then the three Persons would be only in that place where the Son is, and his splendour or shining would be without or beyond him, and as gone forth from the Son; and the Father would be one, only externally, without or beside the Son, and then the power of the Father which would be afar off and wide distant from the Son, would not generate the Son and Holy Ghost, externally, without and beyond the angelical gates; and so there would be an un-almighty being, externally, without or beside this place of the Son; and, moreover, the Father would be a circumscribed or measurable being.

Which is not so: But the Father everywhere generates the Son out of all his powers, and the Holy Ghost goes everywhere forth from the Father and the Son, and so there is but ONE only GOD, and three distinct Persons in one divine being, with three distinct persons.

Of which you have a similitude in the precious gold ore, or a gold-stone unseparated. First there is the matter, that is, the Salitter and Mercurius, which is the mother or the whole stone, which generates the gold everywhere in the whole stone; and in the gold is the glorious power or virtue of the stone.

Now the Salitter and Mercurius signify the Father, the gold signifies the Son, and the power or virtue signifies the Holy Ghost: In such a manner also is the Ternary in the holy Trinity, only that all moves and goes forth therein universally.

In a gold-stone men find also a little piece of it in some place, wherein there is more and purer gold, than in another not discerned, though there is gold in the whole stone or ore.

Thus also is the place or space in the center or midst of the angelical gates a more pleasant, more gracious, amiable and blessed place to the Father, wherein his Son and Heart is generated in the most richly and fully loving manner, and wherein the Holy Ghost goes forth from the Father and the Son in the most richly and fully loving manner.

[Aur. 7:52] Thus you have the right ground of this Mystery, and you ought not to think that the Son of God was generated of the Father at once, at a certain time, as one that has a beginning, and that he stands now as a king, and would be worshipped.

[Aur. 7:53] No; this would not be an eternal Son, but one that had a beginning, and was under, beneath or inferior to the Father that had generated him.

[Aur. 7:54] Neither would he be all-knowing, for he could not know how it was before his Father had generated him.

[Aur. 7:55] But the Son is generated continually from eternity unto eternity, and shines continually from eternity into the powers of the Father again, whereby the powers of the Father are always from eternity to eternity continually impregnated with the Son, and generate him continually.

[Aur. 7:56] Out of which the Holy Ghost continually exists from eternity to eternity, and so continually from eternity to eternity goes forth from the Father and the Son, and has neither beginning nor end.

[Aur. 7:57] And this being is not so in one place only of the Father, but everywhere in the whole Father, who has neither beginning nor end; into which no creature can reach with its senses or thoughts.

Of the Nativities or Genitures of the Angelical Kings, And how they came to be.

[Aur. 7:58] (“This also is more fundamentally described in the second and in the third book, The Three Principles, and The Threefold Life.”)

[Aur. 7:59] The person or the body of a king of angels is generated out of all the qualities, and out of all the powers of his whole kingdom, through the moving, welling-up spirit of God; and therefore such a one is their king, in that his power reaches into all the angels of his whole kingdom, and he is the head and general or leader, the most beautiful and most powerful Cherubim or throne angel. Such a one was lord Lucifer also before his fall.

[Aur. 7:60] (“This also is more fundamentally described in our second and third book.”)

Of the Ground or Foundation, and Mystery.

[Aur. 7:61] If a man would find out the Mystery, and the deepest ground, he must diligently and exactly view and consider the creation of this world, the government or dominion, and rule or order, as also the qualities of the stars and the elements.

[Aur. 7:62] Although these are of a corrupted and twofold being, which is not living, nor has understanding; for it is but the corrupt Salitter and Mercurius, in which king Lucifer kept house, wherein is both evil and good; though it be indeed the real power of God, which before its corruption was bright and pure, as now it is, in heaven.

[Aur. 7:63] These powers of the stars and elements, did the Creator, after the horrible fall of Lucifer's kingdom, bring together again into the same order as that in which the kingdom of the angels stood in the divine pomp before this fall.

[Aur. 7:64] Only you must not think that the angelical kingdom with its creatures was so rolled, wheeled and turned round about, as now the stars are, which are only powers, and in regard of the birth or geniture of this world are thus wheeled or turned about, whose birth or geniture stands in the moving, boiling anguish in evil and good, in corruption and redemption, till the end of this enumeration, or till the last day.

Now observe:

[Aur. 7:65] The sun stands in the center or midst of the deep, and is the light or heart which proceeded out of all stars: For when, in the kingdom of Lucifer, before the creation of the world, the Salitter and Mercurius was thin or dim, and had qualified the one with the other, then God extracted the heart out of all the powers, and made the sun thereof.

[Aur. 7:66] Therefore the sun is the most shining and the brightest of all, and re-enlightens all the stars again; all the stars work in its power, and it itself has the power of all the stars; it kindles all the powers of the stars with its splendour and heat, and so every star receives from the sun, according to its power and condition or kind.

[Aur. 7:67] Thus also is the frame and constitution of the angelical kingdom: The sun signifies the supreme throne-angel, the Cherubim or king in an angelical kingdom: such as one as lord Lucifer was before his fall: He had his seat in the center or midst of his kingdom and reigned by his power in all his angels.

[Aur. 7:68] Just as, in the Salitter and Mercurius, the sun rules in all the powers of this world, that is, in softness and hardness, in sweetness and sourness, in bitterness and astringency, in heat and cold, in air and water.

[Aur. 7:69] As is apparent in winter, when there is so hard cold or frost that the water becomes ice; though the sun shines somewhat warm through all the cold frost, yet for all its beams, by which it shines on them, water freezes into snow and ice.

[Aur. 7:70] But here I will show you the right Mystery. Behold, the sun is the heart of all powers in this world, and is compacted, framed or composed out of all the powers of the stars, it re-enlightens all the stars, and all the powers in this world, and all powers grow active, operative or qualifying in its power.

[Aur. 7:71] (“Understand it magically: for it is a mirror, looking-glass, or similitude of the eternal world.”)

[Aur. 7:72] As the Father generates his Son, that is, his heart or light out of all his powers, and that light which is the Son generates the life in all the powers of the Father, so that in the same light, in the Father's powers, goes forth all manner of growing, vegetation, springing, ornaments and joy; so is the kingdom of angels also constituted, all according to the similitude and being of God.

[Aur. 7:73] A Cherubim or leader of a kingdom of angels is the fountain or heart of his whole kingdom, and is made out of all the powers out of which his angels are made, and is the most powerful and the brightest of them all.

[Aur. 7:74] (“The angelical king is the center or fountain; as Adam's soul is the beginning and center of all souls. And, as from the place of the sun was created and generated the planetic wheel or sphere, wherein each star is desirous of the splendour and power of the sun, so the angels are desirous of their Cherubim or prince; all according to God, and to his similitude.”)

[Aur. 7:75] For the Creator has extracted the heart out of the Salitter and Mercurius of the divine powers; (“Understand he has composed it by the Fiat, viz. the center of nature.”)

[Aur. 7:76] And the Creator has formed out of that the Cherubim or king, that the Cherubim or king might press or penetrate again with his power into all the angels, and affect them all with his power.
[Aur. 7:77] Just as the sun with its power presses into all the stars, and affects them all; or as the power of God the Son presses into all the powers of God the Father, whereby they are all affected, wherein the birth or geniture of the heavenly joyfulness springs up.

[Aur. 7:78] In this form condition and manner it is with the angels also. All the angels of one kingdom signify the many and various powers of God the Father; the angelical king signifies the Son of the Father, or the heart out of the powers of the Father, out of which the angels are made; the exit out of the king of angels, or his going forth into his angels, or his affecting of his angels, signifies God the Holy Ghost.

[Aur. 7:79] As the Holy Ghost goes forth from the Father and the Son, and affects all the powers of the Father, as also all heavenly fruits and forms, from which all has its rising, and wherein the heavenly joyfulness does consist:

[Aur. 7:80] Just in such manner is the operation or power of a Cherubim or throne-angel, which works or operates in all his angels, as the Son and Holy Ghost operate in all the powers of the Father; or as the sun operates in all the powers of the stars.

[Aur. 7:81] Whereby all angels obtain the will of the throne-angel, and are all obedient to him; for they all work in his power which is in them all.

[Aur. 7:82] For they are the members of his body; as all the powers of the Father are members of the Son, and he is their heart; and as all heavenly forms and fruits are members of the Holy Ghost, and he is their heart, in whom they rise up.

[Aur. 7:83] Or as the sun is the heart of all the stars, and as all stars are members of the sun, and work one among another as one star, and yet the sun is the heart therein; though indeed there are many and various powers, yet all work in the power of the sun, and all has its life from the power of the sun; look on what you please, be it in animals, in metals or in vegetables of the earth.

Of the whole Corpus or Body of an Angelical Kingdom. The Great Mystery in the other writings called, Mysterium Magnum.

[Aur. 8:1] The angelical kingdoms are throughout formed according to the Divine Being, and they have no other form or condition than the Divine Being has in its Trinity.

[Aur. 8:2] This only is the difference: that their bodies are creatures, which have a beginning and an end, and that the kingdom where their locality, habitation or court is, is not their corporeal propriety, or proper own, having it for their natural right, as they have their bodies for a natural right.

[Aur. 8:3] But the kingdom belongs to God the Father, who has made it out of his powers, and he may set it and dispose it which way he pleases; otherwise their body is made according to all, and out of all, the powers of the Father.

[Aur. 8:4] Their power generates the light and knowledge in them. As God generates his Son out of all his powers; and as the Holy Ghost goes forth out of all the powers of the Father and the Son; so also in an angel: the spirit goes forth from their heart, from their light and from all their powers.

Now observe:

[Aur. 8:5] As the condition and constitution of an angel is, in his corporeal body, with all the members thereof, such also is the condition of a whole kingdom, which together is as it were but one angel.

[Aur. 8:6] If a man rightly considers all circumstances, he will find that the whole government in its locality, circumference or region in a kingdom, is of the same condition or constitution as the body (Corpus) of an angel, or as is the Holy Trinity.

Observe here the Depth.

[Aur. 8:7] All power is in God the Father, and he is the fountain of all powers in his deep: in him are light and darkness, air and water, heat and cold, hard and soft, thick and thin, sound and tone, sweet and sour, bitter and astringent, and that which I cannot number or rehearse.

[Aur. 8:8] I conceive of it only in my body, for that is originally, from Adam to this time, made out of all powers, and according to the image of God.

[Aur. 8:9] But here you must not think that the powers in God the Father are in such wise, or qualify in such a corrupt manner and kind, as in man, which lord Lucifer has so brought to pass; no, it is all very lovely, pleasant, delicious and joyful, very gentle, and meek or mild.

[Aur. 8:10] First there is the light (as I may naturally compare or resemble it) like the light of the sun, but not so intolerable as the light of the sun is to our corrupted perished eyes, but very lovely, pleasant and delightful, an aspect or glance of love.

[Aur. 8:11] But the darkness is hidden in the center of the light, that is, when a creature, who is made out of the power of the light, would move and boil higher and faster in that light than God Himself does, then in that creature that light would go out and be extinguished.
[Aur. 8:12] (“Understand, the creature kindles the fire, if its spirit elevates itself beyond the humility that is from love: Read the second and third books, viz. The Three Principles, and The Threefold Life of Man.”)

[Aur. 8:13] And instead of light it has darkness, and therein the creature is sensible, by experience, that there is a darkness hidden in the center.

[Aur. 8:14] As when a man kindles a wax candle it gives light, but when it is put out, then is the snuff or candle darkness: Thus also the light shines from all the powers of the Father; but when the powers are perished or corrupted, then the light is extinguished, and the powers would remain in darkness, as is apparent by Lucifer.

[Aur. 8:15] In God the air also is not of such a kind, but is a lovely, pleasant, still breath or moving; that is, the exit, going forth or moving of the powers is the original of the air, in which the Holy Ghost rises up.

[Aur. 8:16] Neither is the water of such a kind in God, but it is the source or fountain in the powers, not of an elementary kind, as in this world; if I should liken it to anything, I must liken it to the sap or juice in an apple, but very bright and lightsome, like heaven, which is the spirit of all powers.

[Aur. 8:17] It is lord Lucifer who has thus spoiled it, that it rages and raves so in this world, which so runs and flows, and is so thick and dark, and moreover if it runs not, it becomes stinking; of which I shall treat more largely when I shall write of the creation.

[Aur. 8:18] In God the heat is a most lovely, pleasant, soft, gentle, mild, meek warmth, an effluence or going forth of light, which expands itself, rising up from the light, wherein the source or fountain of love springs up.

[Aur. 8:19] The cold also in God is not of such a kind, but is a cooling or refreshing of the heat, a mollifying or allaying of the spirit, a rising up, boiling or moving of the spirit.

Note here the Depth.

[Aur. 8:20] In Moses God said, when he gave the Law to the Children of Israel, I am an angry jealous God to those that hate me; afterwards he also calls himself a merciful God to them that fear him.

Question.

[Aur. 8:21] Now the question is, What in heaven is the wrath of God? And whether God be angry in himself; or how is God moved to anger? Here there are chiefly seven sorts of qualities or circumstances to be observed.

I. Of the First Species or Circumstance.

[Aur. 8:22] First: In the divine power there is, hidden in secret, the astringent quality, which is a quality of the kernel, pith or hidden being, a sharp compaction or penetration in the Salitter, very sharp and harsh or astringent, which generates hardness, and also coldness; and when the astringent quality is kindled it generates a sharpness like unto salt.

[Aur. 8:23] This astringent quality is one species or source of wrath in the divine Salitter; and when this source is kindled, which may be done by great motion or elevation, touching or stirring, then the astringent causes, or qualifies in, great coldness, which is very sharp, like unto salt, very hard, binding, knitting and attracting together like a stone.
[Aur. 8:24] But in the heavenly pomp or state it is not so elevating; for it does not elevate itself, neither does it kindle itself; king Lucifer alone has kindled this quality in his kingdom, through his elevation and pride, by which this quality is burning even till the last day.

[Aur. 8:25] And by this now, in the creation of this world, the stars and the elements, as also the creatures, tremble and burn; out of it exists also the house of death and of hell, also an eternal, base, loathsome habitation for the kingdom of Lucifer, and for all Godless men.

[Aur. 8:26] In the heavenly pomp this quality generates the sharpness of the spirit, out of which, and whereby, the creaturely being is so formed or constituted that a heavenly body may be framed, as also all manner of colors, forms and sprouts or vegetation.

[Aur. 8:27] For it is the contraction, compacting or imaging of a thing, and therefore it is the first quality and a beginning of the angelical creatures, and of all images or likenesses which are in heaven, and all which are in this world, and all whatsoever that can be named or expressed.

[Aur. 8:28] But if it be kindled through exaltation, which those creatures that are created out of the divine Salitter alone can do (and only in their own kingdom), then it is a burning source-vein of the wrath of God.

[Aur. 8:29] For it is one of the seven spirits of God, in whose power stands the diving being or essence in the whole divine power and heavenly pomp.

[Aur. 8:30] So if it be kindled, then it is a fierce source of wrath, and a beginning of hell, and a torment and woe of the hellish fire, also a quality of darkness; for therein are extinguished the divine love, and also the divine light.

[Aur. 8:31] (“It is a key which locks in to the chamber of death, and generates death, form which proceed earth, stones and all hard things.”)

II. Of the Second Species or Circumstance.

[Aur. 8:32] The Second quality, or second spirit of God in the divine Salitter, or in the divine power, is the sweet quality, which works in the astringent, and mitigates the astringent, so that it is altogether lovely, pleasant and mild or meek.

[Aur. 8:33] For it is the overcoming of the astringent quality, and is the very source or fountain of the mercy of God, which overcomes the wrath, whereby the astringent harsh source is mollified, and God's mercy rises up.

[Aur. 8:34] Of this you have a similitude in an apple, which at first is astringent, harsh or choky, but when the sweet quality forces and overcomes it, then it is very soft, lovely and pleasant to eat: Thus it is in the divine power also.

[Aur. 8:35] For when men speak of the mercy of God the Father, they speak of his power, of his fountain spirits, of the qualities which are in the Salitter, out of which his most richly loving Heart or Son is generated.

Observe here:

[Aur. 8:36] The astringent or harsh quality is the heart, pith or kernel in the divine power, the contraction, compaction or imaging, forming or impression; for it is the sharpness and cold, as it is seen that the harsh astringent cold dries the water, and makes it sharp ice.

[Aur. 8:37] The sweet quality is the allaying or warming, whereby the harsh or astringent and cold quality becomes thin and soft, from which the water takes its original.
[Aur. 8:38] Thus the astringent quality is and is called the heart; and the sweet is called barm or warm, or softening or mitigating,\textsuperscript{37} they are the two qualities out of which the Heart or Son of God is generated.

[Aur. 8:39] For the astringent or harsh quality, in its stock or kernel, when it qualifies or operates in its own power, is a darkness: The sweet quality, in its own power, is a moving, boiling, warming and rising light, a source or fountain of meekness and well-doing.

[Aur. 8:40] But while both of them qualify or operate the one in the other, in the divine power, as if they were but one power, they are meek, mild, lovely, pleasant, merciful qualifying.

[Aur. 8:41] These two qualities are two of the spirits of God, among the seven qualifying or fountain-spirits in the divine power.

[Aur. 8:42] Whereof you have an image in the Revelation of John, where he sees seven golden candle-sticks\textsuperscript{38} or lights before the Son of God, which signify the seven spirits of God, which shine in great clarity, brightness or luster before the Son of God, out of which the Son of God is continually generated from eternity to eternity, and is the Heart of the seven spirits of God, and which I will here describe in order one after another.

[Aur. 8:43] You must here elevate your sense or mind in the spirit, if you intend to understand and apprehend it; or else in your own sense or mind you will be an astringent, hard, blind stock.

III. Of the Third Circumstance or Species.

[Aur. 8:44] The Third quality, or the third spirit of God in the Father's power, is the bitter quality; which is a penetrating or forcing of the sweet and the astringent or harsh qualities, and which is trembling, penetrating and rising up.

Observe here:

[Aur. 8:45] The astringent or harsh quality is the kernel or stock, and is sour or attractive; and the sweet is the light, mollifying and softening; and the bitter is penetrating or triumphing, which rises up and triumphs in the astringent or harsh quality, and in the sweet.

[Aur. 8:46] This is the source of joy, or the cause of the laughing, elevating joy, whereby a thing trembles and jubilates for joy; by which the heavenly joy exists.

[Aur. 8:47] Moreover, it is the imaging or forming of all sorts of red colors in its own quality; in the sweet it images or forms all sorts of white and blue; in the astringent, or harsh and sour, it forms all sorts of green, dusky and mixed colors, with all manner of forms or figures and smells.

[Aur. 8:48] The bitter quality is the first spirit from which mobility takes its original, by which the life becomes stirring, and is well called Cor or the heart, for it is the trembling, shivering, elevating, penetrating spirit, a triumphing or joy, an elevating source of laughing; in the sweet quality the bitter is mollified, so that it becomes very richly loving and joyful.

[Aur. 8:49] But if it be moved, elevated and kindled too much, then it kindles the sweet and the astringent or harsh qualities, and is like a tearing, stinging and burning poison, as when a man is tormented with a raging plague-sore, which makes him cry out for woe and misery.

[Aur. 8:50] In the divine power this quality, when it is kindled, is the spirit of the zealous or jealous and bitter wrath of God, which is unquenchable, as may be seen by the legions of Lucifer.

[Aur. 8:51] Yet further: this quality, when it is kindled, is the bitter hellish fire, which puts out the light, turning the sweet quality into a stink, causing a sharpness and tearing, a hardness and coldness in the astringent or harsh quality.
[Aur. 8:52] In the sour quality it causes a rankness and brittleness, a stink, a misery, a house of mourning, a house of darkness, of death and of hell; an end of joy, which therein can no more be thought upon: For it cannot be quieted or stilled by anything, nor can it be enlightened again by anything; but the dark, astringent, or harsh, stinking, sour, torn, bitter, fierce quality rises up to all eternity.

Now observe:

[Aur. 8:53] In these three species or qualities stands the corporeal being, or the creatural being of all creatures in heaven and in this world, whether it be angel or man, beast or fowl or vegetable, of a heavenly or of an earthly form, quality and kind, as also all colors and forms.

[Aur. 8:54] Briefly, whatsoever images itself, stands in the power and authority of these three head qualities, and is formed by them, and also is formed out of their own power.

[Aur. 8:55] First, the astringent and sour quality is a body or source which attracts the sweet power, and the cold in the astringent or harsh quality makes it dry.

[Aur. 8:56] For the sweet quality is the heart of the water, for it is thin and light or bright, and is like heaven: and the bitter quality makes it separable or distinct, so that the powers form themselves into members, and cause mobility in the body.

[Aur. 8:57] And when the sweet quality is dried, then it is a corpus or body, which is perfect, but wanting reason.

[Aur. 8:58] And the bitter quality penetrates into the body, into the astringent or sour and into the sweet qualities, and frames all sorts of colors according to that quality to which the body is most eagerly inclined, or according to that quality which is strongest in the body, according to that [strongest quality] the bitter quality frames the body, with its colors, and according to that [same] quality and the creature has its greatest impulse and inclination, motion, boiling and will.

IV. Of the Fourth Circumstance or Species.

[Aur. 8:59] The Fourth quality, or the fourth fountain-spirit in the divine power of God the Father, is the heat, which is the true beginning of life, and also the true spirit of life.

[Aur. 8:60] The astringent or harsh and sour quality, and the sweet are the Salitter, which belongs to the body, out of which the body is framed.

[Aur. 8:61] For coldness and hardness stand in the astringent quality, and are a contraction and drying; and in the sweet quality stand the water, and the light or shining-ness, and the whole matter of the body.

[Aur. 8:62] And the bitter quality is the separation and forming, and the heat is the spirit, or the kindling of the life, whereby the spirit exists in the body, which [spirit] springs or moves in the whole body, and shines out from the body, and also makes the living motion in all the qualities of the body.

[Aur. 8:63] Two things chiefly are to be eyed in all the qualities: If you look upon a body you first see the stock or pith, or the kernel of all the qualities, which is framed or composed out of all the qualities; for to the body belong the astringent or harsh, sour, sweet, bitter and hot qualities; these qualities being dried together, make the body or stock.

The Great Mystery of the Spirit.

[Aur. 8:64] Now in the body these qualities are mixed, as if they all were but one quality; yet each quality moves or boils in its own power, and so goes forth.
[Aur. 8:65] Each quality goes forth from itself into the others, and touches or stirs the others, that is, it affects the others, whereby the other qualities get the will of this quality; that is, they prove the sharpness and spirit of this, as to what is in it, and always mix with it continually.

[Aur. 8:66] Now the astringent or harsh quality (together with the sour), always contracts or attracts the other qualities together, and so apprehends and retains the body and dries it.

[Aur. 8:67] For it dries all the other powers, and retains them all through its infection or influence; and the sweet softens and moistens all the others, and so blends and tempers itself with all the others, whereby they become daintily pleasant and mild or soft.

[Aur. 8:68] The bitter makes all the others stirring and moveable, and parts or distinguishes them into members; so that every member in this tempering obtains the fountain of all the powers, by which mobility exists.

[Aur. 8:69] The heat kindles all the qualities, out of which the light rises up and expands itself aloft in all the qualities, so that they see one another: For when the heat works in the sweet moisture, then it generates the light in all the qualities, so that one quality sees the others.

[Aur. 8:70] From which the senses and thoughts exist, so that one quality sees the others, which are also in it, and tempered with itself, and proves them with its sharpness, so that there comes to be but one will; which in the body rises up in the first fountain-source or well-spring in the astringent or harsh quality.

[Aur. 8:71] There the bitter quality penetrates in the heat through the astringent, and the sweet in the water lets it easily or gently through; and there the bitter in the heat goes through the sweet water forth from the body and makes two open gates, which are the eyes, the first sense or sensibility.

[Aur. 8:72] You have an example and type or resemblance of this, if you behold and consider this world, especially the earth, which is of the kind and condition of all qualities, and all manner of figures or shapes are formed and imaged therein.

[Aur. 8:73] First the astringent quality is therein, which attracts the Salitter together, and fixes or makes the earth firm and compact, so that it comes to be a solid body, which holds together and does not break asunder, and [the astringent quality] images, frames or forms therein all manner of bodies, according to the kind of each quality, viz. all manner of stones and ores of minerals, and all manner of roots, according to the condition or kind of each quality.

[Aur. 8:74] Now when these are imaged or formed, there it [the astringent quality] lies as a corporeal, springing, boiling mobility, for it moves or boils through and in the bitter quality in itself, as in its own imaged, formed or framed body; but without the heat, which is the spirit of nature,39 it has as yet no life to growing, vegetation, springing or spreading abroad.

[Aur. 8:75] But when the heat of the sun shines upon the earth, then there spring and grow in the earth all manner of images or figures of ores or minerals, herbs, roots and worms, and all whatsoever is therein.

Understand this aright.

[Aur. 8:76] In the earth the heat of the sun kindles the sweet quality of water, in all imaged or framed figures; and then through the heat the light comes to be in the sweet water, and that enlightens the astringent or sour quality, and the bitter, so that they see in or by the light; and in that seeing the one rises up into the other, and proves the other, that is, in that seeing the one tastes of the other's sharpness, from which comes the taste.
[Aur. 8:77] When the sweet quality perceives the taste of the bitter quality, it caggs at it, and gives back; even as a man, when he tastes astringent, harsh or bitter gall, opens both the gums of his palate in his cagging, and widens his palate more than it is of itself; and just so does the sweet quality against the bitter.

[Aur. 8:78] When the sweet quality thus stretches or widens itself, and retires from the bitter, then the astringent always presses after it, and would also fain taste of the sweet: and always makes the body, that is behind it, and in it to be dry; for the sweet quality is the mother of the water, and is very meek, mild, soft and gentle.

[Aur. 8:79] Now when the astringent or harsh and the bitter qualities get their light from the heat, then they see the sweet quality, and taste of its sweet water, and then they continually make haste after the sweet water, and drink it up, for they are very hard, rough and thirsty, and the heat dries them quite up.

[Aur. 8:80] And the sweet quality always flies from the bitter and the astringent, and always stretches its palate wider, and the bitter and the astringent continually hasten after the sweet, and refresh themselves from the sweet, and dry up the body.

[Aur. 8:81] Thus is the true springing or vegetation in nature, be it in man, beast, wood, herbs or stones.

Now observe the End of Nature in this World.

[Aur. 8:82] When the sweet quality thus flies from the bitter, and from the sour and astringent, then the astringent and the bitter make all the haste they can after it, as their best treasure; and the sweet presses vehemently from them, and strives so much that it drives and penetrates through the astringent or harsh quality, and rends the body, and goes forth from the body, out above the earth, and hastens so fast, till a long stalk grows up.

[Aur. 8:83] Then the heat above the earth presses upon the stalk, and so the bitter quality is then kindled by the heat, and it receives a repulse from the heat, so that it is terrified, and the astringent quality dries it.

[Aur. 8:84] Therein the astringent, the sweet, the bitter and the heat struggle together, and the astringent quality in its coldness continually makes their dryness, and so the sweet withdraws on the sides, and the others hasten after it.

[Aur. 8:85] But when it sees that it is like to be taken or captivated (the bitter quality from within pressing so hard upon it, and the heat from without pressing upon it also), it makes the bitter fervent or burning, and inflames it, and there it [the sweet quality] leaps, springing up through the astringent quality, and rises up again aloft; so there comes to be a hard knot behind it in that place where the struggle was, and the knot gets a hold or orifice.

[Aur. 8:86] But when the sweet quality leaps or springs up through the knot, then the bitter quality had so much affected or wrought upon it that it was all in a trembling; and as soon as it comes above the knot it suddenly stretches itself forth on all sides, striving to fly from the bitter quality; and in that stretching forth its body keeps hollow in the middle, and in the trembling, leaping or springing up through the knot, it still gets more stalk or leaves, and now is merry or cheerful that it has escaped the battle.

[Aur. 8:87] So when the heat from without thus presses upon the stalk, then the qualities become kindled in the stalk, and press through the stalk, and so become affected or wrought upon in the external light of the sun, and generate colors in the stalk, according to the kind of its quality.
[Aur. 8:88] But so long as the sweet water is in the stalk, the stalk retains its greenish color according to the kind of the sweet quality.

[Aur. 8:89] Such substance the qualities always bring to pass with the heat in the stalk, and the stalk always grows farther, and always one storm or assault is held after another, whereby the stalk always gets more knots, and still spreads forth its branches farther and farther.

[Aur. 8:90] In the meanwhile the heat from without always dries the sweet water in the stalk, and the stalk is always smaller at the top; the higher it grows the smaller it is, growing on so long till it can escaper or run no farther.

[Aur. 8:91] And then the sweet quality yields to be taken captive, and so the bitter, the sour, the sweet and the astringent reign jointly together, and the sweet stretches itself a little forth, but it can escape no more, for it is captivated or caught.

[Aur. 8:92] And then from all the qualities which are in the body, there grows a bud or head, and there is a new body in the bud or head, which is formed or figured answerable or like to the first root in the earth, only now it gets another more subtle form.

[Aur. 8:93] And then the sweet quality extends itself gently or mildly, and there grow little subtle leaves in the head, which are of the kind of all the qualities, and then the sweet water is as it were a pregnant woman new with child, having conceived the seed, and it always presses onward, till it opens the head.

[Aur. 8:94] And then also the sweet quality presses forth in little leaves, like a woman who is in travail and bringing forth, but the little leaves or blossoms have no more its color and form, but the form of all the qualities; for now the sweet quality must bring forth the children of the other qualities.

[Aur. 8:95] And when this sweet mother has brought forth the fair, green, blue, white, red and yellow flowers, blossoms or children, then she grows quite weary, and cannot long nourish or nurse these children, neither can she have them long, seeing they are but her step-children, which are very tender.

[Aur. 8:96] And so when the outward heat presses upon these tender children, all the qualities in the children come to be kindled, for the spirit of life qualifies or flows in them.

[Aur. 8:97] And seeing they are too weak for this strong spirit, and cannot elevate themselves, they yield or surrender their noble power, and that smells so lovely and with so pleasant a savour that it rejoices the very heart, and makes it laugh; but they must wither and fall off, because they are too tender for this spirit.

[Aur. 8:98] For the spirit draws from the head or bud into the blossoms, and the head or bud is formed according to the kind of all the qualities; the astringent quality attracts or collects the body of the bud or head, and the sweet quality softens it and spreads it abroad, and the bitter quality parts or distinguishes the matter into members, and the heat is the living spirit therein.

[Aur. 8:99] Now all the qualities labor or work therein, and bring forth their fruit or children, and every child is qualified or conditioned according to the kind and property of all the qualities.

[Aur. 8:100] This they drive and act so long, till all the matter is quite dried, till the sweet quality or sweet water is dried up, and then the fruit falls off, and the stalk dries also and falls down.

And this is the End of Nature in this World.
Concerning this, much higher things are to be written, which you will find concerning the creation of this world: This is only brought in for a similitude, and described in the briefest manner.

Now the other form of the qualities, or of the divine powers, or of the seven spirits of God, is especially to be observed or known by the instance or example of heat.

First there is the ground, or the corporeal being, although in the Deity, or in the creatures, it [the heat] has no peculiar or several body, for all the qualities are one in another as one, however the operation of every quality is perceived in particular and severally.

Now in the body or fountain is the heat, which generates the fire, and which is a form or kind of thing that a man can search into; and out of the heat goes the light through all the spirits and qualities; and the light is the living spirit, which a man cannot search into.

A man can search into its will, and know what it wills, or how it is: For it proceeds in the sweet quality, and the light rises up in the sweet quality in the sweet water, but not in the other qualities.

For example: If the sweet quality has the predominance, you can kindle all things in this world, and so make them burn and give light, but where the other qualities are predominant you can kindle nothing; for though you may bring heat into a thing yet you cannot bring the spirit into it, to make it give light. Therefore all qualities are the children of the sweet quality, or of the sweet water, because the spirit rises up only in the water.

Are you a rational man, in whom is the spirit and understanding? Then look all about in the world, for there you will find it thus.

You can kindle wood that it give light, for the water is chief upper regent, or predominant therein; so likewise in all sorts of herbs on earth, wherein the sweet water is predominant.

You cannot kindle light in a stone, because the astringent or harsh quality is chief or predominant therein: neither can you kindle light in earth, unless the other qualities be first vanquished and boiled out of it, which is seen in gunpowder; yet this light is but a flash or a spirit of terror, wherein the Devil in the anger of God represents himself, which I will describe and demonstrate more largely in another place.

Objection.

But you will say, that a man cannot kindle the water to make it give light.

Answer.

Yes, dear man, here lies or sticks the Mystery. The wood which you kindle is not very fire, but a dark or opaque stock, still the fire and light take their original from there.

But you must understand this concerning the sweet quality of the water, and not concerning the stick or block; but it is to be understood concerning the unctuosity of fatness which is the spirit therein.

Now in the elementary water on earth the sweetness is not the chief or upper regent, but the astringent, bitter and sour quality; else the water were not mortal, but were as that water is out of which heaven is created.

That I will demonstrate to you thus, viz. that the astringent, sour and bitter quality is predominant in the elementary water on earth.
[Aur. 8:115] Take rye, wheat, barley, oats, or what you will, wherein the sweet quality is predominant, soak or steep it in the elementary water, afterwards distil it; then the sweet quality will take away the predominancy from the others; and afterwards kindle that water, and then you will see the spirit which is remaining in the water of the unctuosness or fatness of the corn, which overcame the water.

[Aur. 8:116] This you see also in flesh: The flesh neither burns nor shines nor gives light, but its fat burns and shines or gives light.

Question.

[Aur. 8:117] You may perhaps ask, How comes that to pass, or in what manner is it so?

Answer.

[Aur. 8:118] Behold, in flesh the astringent or sour, and the bitter qualities are predominant; and in the fat the sweetness is chief and predominant; therefore fat creatures are always merrier and cheerful than the lean, because the sweet spirit flows more abundantly in them than in the lean.

[Aur. 8:119] For the light of nature, which is the spirit of life, shines more in them than in the lean: For in that light in the sweet quality stands the triumphing or the joy, for the astringent or harsh and bitter qualities triumph therein, for they rejoice that they are refreshed, fed, given to drink and enlightened from the sweet and light quality.

[Aur. 8:120] For in the astringent or harsh quality there is no life, but an astringent, cold, hard death; and in the bitter quality there is no light, but a dark, bitter and raging pain, a house of trembling, horror, and fierce, wrathful, fearful misery.

[Aur. 8:121] Therefore when they are guest feasting at the sweet and light quality, then are they affected, and pleasant, very joyful and triumphing in the creature.

[Aur. 8:122] Therefore no lean creature is merry, unless it be that heat is predominant therein: That is, though it be lean, and has little of the fat or oil in it, yet perhaps sweetness is very abundant there.

[Aur. 8:123] On the other side, many creatures have much fatness, and yet are very melancholy or sad, which is because their fatness is inclined to the condition of the elementary water, wherein the astringent or harsh, and bitter qualities are somewhat strong.

Of the Language of Nature.

[Aur. 8:124] Are you a rational man? Then observe this: The spirit which moves on high, aloft from the heat, takes its exit, rising and shining in the sweet quality; therefore the sweet quality is its friendly or kind will, and reigns in meekness; and meekness and humility are its proper house or habitation.

[Aur. 8:125] This is the pith or kernel of the Deity, and therefore IT is called GOTT, GOD, because it is sweet, meek, friendly and bounteous or good, GUTIG; and therefore is IT called Barm-hertz-ig (warm-heart-ed or merciful), because its sweet quality rises up in the astringent or sour and bitter qualities, and refreshes, moistens and enlightens them, that they might not remain a dark valley.

[Aur. 8:126] For understand but your mother tongue aright; you have as deep a ground therein as there is in the Hebrew or Latin: Though the learned elevate themselves in these, like a proud arrogant bride, it is no great matter, their art is now on the lees, or bowed down to the dust.
The spirit shows and declares, that yet before the end, many a layman will know and understand more than now the wittiest or most cunning doctors know; for the gates of heaven set themselves open; those that do not blind themselves shall and will see it very well; the Bridegroom crowns his bride.

AMEN.

B A R M - H E R T Z - I G.\(^5\)

[Aur. 8:127] Observe, the word BARM- is chiefly formed upon your lips, and when you pronounce BARM- then you shut your mouth, and snarl in the hinder part of the mouth; and this is the astringent quality, which environs or encloses the word; that is, it figures, compacts or contracts the word together, that it becomes hard, or sounds, and the bitter quality separates or cuts or distinguishes it.

[Aur. 8:129] That is, when you pronounce BAR, the last letter R snarls and murmurs like a trembling breath, and thus does the bitter quality, which is a trembling.

[Aur. 8:130] Now the word BARM- is a dead word, void of understanding, so that no man understands what it means; which signifies that the two qualities, astringent, and bitter, are a hard, dark, cold and bitter being, which have no light in them: And therefore a man cannot understand their power without the light.

[Aur. 8:131] But when a man said BARM-HERTZ, he fetches or presses the second syllable out from the deep of the body, out from the heart, for the right spirit speaks forth the word Hertz, which rises up aloft from the heat of the heart, in which the light goes forth and flows.

[Aur. 8:132] Now observe, when you pronounce BARM, then the two qualities, the astringent and the bitter, form, frame or compact together the word BARM, very leisurely or slowly; for it is a long, impotent, feeble syllable, because of the weakness of the qualities.

[Aur. 8:133] But when you pronounce -HERTZ- then the spirit in the word -HERTZ- (heart) goes forth suddenly, like a flash of lightening, and gives the distinction\(^5\) and understanding of the word.

[Aur. 8:134] But when you pronounce -IG, then you catch or captivate the spirit in the midst of the other two qualities, so that it must stay there and form the word.

[Aur. 8:135] Thus is the divine power also; the astringent and bitter qualities are the Salitter of the divine omnipotence, the sweet quality is the pith or kernel of the Barm-hertz-ig-keit, warm-heart-ed-ness, or mer-ci-ful-ness, according to which the whole being, with all the powers, is called GOTT (GOD).

[Aur. 8:136] The heat is the kernel of the spirit, out of which the light goes and kindles itself in the midst or center of the sweet quality, and becomes captivated by the astringent and bitter qualities, as in the midst or center wherein the Son of God is generated, and that is the very Hertz (heart) of God.

[Aur. 8:137] The light’s flame or flash, which in the twinkling of an eye, or in a moment, shines into all the powers, even as the sun does in the whole world is the Holy Ghost, which goes forth from the clarity or brightness of the Son of God and is the flash of lightning and sharpness; for the Son is generated in the midst of center of the other qualities, and is caught by the other qualities.

Understand this high thing rightly.

[Aur. 8:138] When the Father speaks or pronounces the WORD, that is, generates his Son (which is always done forever and eternally), then that Word first takes its original in the astringent quality; therein it fixes, conceives or compacts itself; and in the sweet quality it takes its fountain, spring or source, and in the bitter quality it sharpens and moves itself, and in the heat it rises up and kindles the middle sweet fountain or source.

[Aur. 8:139] Now it burns jointly or equally alike in all the qualities of the kindled fire, and the fire burns forth from the qualities; for all qualities burn, and that fire is one fire, and not many several fires.

[Aur. 8:140] That fire is the very Son of God, who is thus generated always from eternity to eternity: This I can demonstrate by the heaven and the earth, the stars and the elements, and by all the creatures, stones, leaves and grass, yea in the Devil himself; and that, not with dead, slight, insignificant arguments, void of understanding, but with clear, quick, living and invincible firm arguments, even above, beyond and to the refutation of all men's reason, convincingly and undeniably; and lastly, in opposition against all the devils and the gates of hell; and I would do it here, if it would not take up too much room.

[Aur. 8:141] Yet it shall be treated of all along in this whole book, in all the articles and parts thereof; but you shall find it more particularly in that part concerning the creation of the creatures, as also concerning the creation of heaven and earth and of all things, which will be fitter to be done then, and more easily apprehended by the Reader.

Now observe:

[Aur. 8:142] Out of that fire goes forth the flash or the light, and moves or boils in all the powers, and has or contains in itself the fountain and sharpness of all the powers, because it is generated, through the Son, out of all the powers of the Father; and so then it reciprocally makes all the powers in the Father living and moving; and through that spirit are all the angels formed and imaged out of the Father's powers.

[Aur. 8:143] That spirit forms and preserves and supports all, all vegetation, all colors and all creatures, both in heaven and in this world, and above the heaven of heavens. For the birth or geniture of the holy Trinity above all is thus and no otherwise, neither will it be otherwise in all eternity.

[Aur. 8:144] But when the fire is kindled in a creature, that is, when a creature elevates itself too high or too much (as Lucifer and his legions did), then the light extinguishes or goes out, and the fierce, wrathful and hot source, the source of the hellish fire, rises up, that is, the spirit of the fire rises up in the fierce quality.

[Aur. 8:145] Observe here the circumstances how this is done, or how it can come to be done. Therefore consider: an angel is formed, figured, composed or compacted together out of all powers, as I have described at large.

[Aur. 8:146] Now when he elevates himself, he elevates himself first in the astringent quality, which he grips close together, as a woman who is in travail, and presses himself, whereby the hard quality becomes so hard and sharp that the sweet water can force or prevail with it no more, and so can rise up no more meekly or mildly in the creature, but is captivated and dried up by the astringent quality, and changed into a hard, sharp, fierce coldness.

[Aur. 8:147] For it becomes too empty and dry by the astringent contraction, and loses its bright luster, and its unctuosity, fatness or oiliness (wherein the light spirit rises up, which is the spirit of the holy angelical and divine life) becomes so hard compacted and pressed together by the astringent quality, whereby it is dried up like sweet dry wood.

[Aur. 8:148] So when the bitter quality rises up in the exsiccated or dried sweet quality, then the sweetness cannot mollify it, and saturate it with its sweet light water, because it is dried up.
There the bitter quality raves and rages, and seeks for rest and food, and finds it not, and moves or boils in the body as a lingering poison.

Now when the heat kindles the sweet quality, and would mitigate its heat in the sweet water (by which it rises up and shines in the whole body), there it finds nothing but a hard, dry, sweet source or quality, there is no sap or moisture, the sap being quite exsiccated or dried up by the astringency.

Then the heat kindles the sweet source or quality with an intent to be refreshed, but there is no sap left, the sweet source or quality is now burning and glowing only, even as a hard, dried or burnt stone, and can not more kindle its light. And so the whole body remains now a dark valley, in which there is nothing but a fierce hard coldness in the astringent quality, and in the sweet quality a hard glowing fire only, wherein the fierce wrathful heat rises up in all eternity, and in the bitter quality there is a raving, a raging, a stinging and a burning.

Thus you have here the true description of an expelled angel or of a devil, as also the cause thereof, and that not written in a similitude only, but in the spirit, through that power out of which all things are come to be.

O man! behold yourself herein; look before you and behind you, nothing is in vain.

This great history or action, of how it came to pass and how it went, you will find in at large concerning the fall of the Devil.

V. Of the Fifth Circumstance or Species.

The Fifth quality, or the fifth spirit of God among the seven spirits of God, in the divine power of the Father, is the gracious, amiable, blessed, friendly and joyful love.

Now observe what is the fountain of the gracious, amiable, blessed and friendly love of God; observe it exactly, for it is the very pith, marrow or kernel.

When the heat in the sweet quality rises up, and kindles the sweet source, fountain or spring, then that fire burns in the sweet quality; now seeing the sweet quality is a thin or transparent lovely pleasant sweet fountain or spring-water, it allays the heat and quenches the fire, and so there remains in the sweet fountain-spring of the sweet water only the joyful light.

The heat is only a gentle soft warming, even as it is in a man who is of a sanguine complexion, wherein also the heat is only a friendly, cheerful warming, if the party lives temperately, and keeps a due measure.

That friendly courteous love-light-fire goes along in the sweet quality, and rises up into the bitter and astringent qualities, and so kindles the bitter and the astringent qualities, feeding them with its sweet love-sap, refreshing, quickening and enlightening them, and making them living or lively, cheerful and friendly.

And when the sweet, light, love-power comes to them, so that they taste thereof and get its life, O, there is a friendly meeting, saluting and triumphing, a friendly welcoming and great love, a most friendly and gracious, amiable and blessed kissing, and well-relishing taste.

There the Bridegroom kisses his bride: O gracious amiable blessedness and great love! How sweet are you? How friendly and courteous are you? How pleasant and lovely is your relish and taste? How ravishingly sweet do you smell? O noble light and bright glory, who can apprehend your exceeding beauty? How comely adorned is your love? How curious and dainty are your colors? And all this eternally! Who can express it?
[Aur. 8:162] Or why and what do I write, I, whose tongue does but stammer like a child that is learning to speak? With what shall I compare it? Or to what shall I liken it? Shall I compare it with the love of this world? No, that is but a mere dark valley to it.

[Aur. 8:163] O immense greatness! I cannot compare you to anything, but only to the resurrection from the dead; there will the love-fire rise up again in us, and embrace man courteously and friendly, and kindle again our astringent, bitter and cold, dark and dead quality, and embrace us most friendly.

[Aur. 8:164] O noble guest! O, why did you depart from us! O fieriness, wrath and astringency or severity, you are the cause of it! O fierce wrathful devil! O, what have you done, who have sunk down yourself and your beautiful bright angels into darkness? Woe, woe forever!

[Aur. 8:165] O, was not the gracious, amiable, blessed and fair love in you also? O you high and lofty-minded devil! Why would you not be contented? Were you not a Cherubim? And was there anything so beautiful and bright in heaven as you? For what did you seek? Would you be the whole or total God? Did you not know that you were a creature, and had not the fan and casting-shovel in your own hand or power?

[Aur. 8:166] O, why do I pity you, you stinking goat? O you cursed stinking devil! How have you spoiled us? How will you excuse yourself? What will you object to me?

Objection.

[Aur. 8:167] You say, if your fall had not been, man would never have been thought of. O you lying devil! Though that should be true, yet the Salitter out of which man is made (which is also from eternity, as well as that out of which you are made), had stood in an eternal joy and bright glory, and had likewise risen up in God, and had tasted of the gracious, amiable, blessed love in the seven spirits of God, and enjoyed the heavenly joy.

[Aur. 8:168] O you lying devil, stay but a little, the spirit will discover your shame to you; tarry but a little while longer, and your pomp, pride and pageantry will be at an end. Stay, the bow is bent, the arrow will hit you, and then where with you fall? The place is ready provided and prepared, it wants only to be kindled; will you bring fuel lustily to it, that you be not frozen with cold? You will sweat very hard: Do you suppose you shall obtain the light again? No, but hell fire. Smell your sweet love, guess at it, what is that called? Gehenna; yes, that will be in love with you eternally.

[Aur. 8:169] Woe, woe, poor miserable blinded man, why suffer the Devil to make your body and soul so dark and blind? O temporal good, and the pleasure and voluptuousness of this life! You blind whore, why do you go a wooing and a whoring to the devil?

[Aur. 8:170] O security! The Devil watches for you. O high-mindedness! You are a hellish fire. O beauty, pomp or bravery! You are a dark valley. O potency of dominion! You are a raging and a tearing of the hellish fire. O self-vindiccation or vengeance! You are the fierce wrath of God.

[Aur. 8:171] O Man! Why will the world be too narrow for you? You will needs have it all for yourself; and if you had it, you would not have room enough. O, this is the Devil’s high-mindedness, who fell out of heaven into hell.

[Aur. 8:172] O man! Alas, O man! Why do you dance with the Devil who is your enemy? Are you not afraid that he will thrust you into hell? Why do you go on so securely? Is it not a very narrow stick on which you dance? Under that small narrow bridge is hell! Do you not see how high you are, and how dangerously and desperately you go? You dance between heaven and hell.
Oh you blind man! How does the Devil mock at you? O, why do you trouble heaven? Do you think you will not have enough in this world? O blind man! Is not heaven and earth yours? Nay, God himself too? What do you bring into this world, or what do you take along with you at your going out of it? You bring an angelical garment into this world, and with your wicked life you turn it into a devil's mask or visor.

O you miserable man, return, the heavenly Father has stretched forth both his arms and calls you. Do but come; he will take you into his love. Are you not his child? He does love you. If he did hate you, he must be at odds with himself. O no, it is not so: there is nothing in God but a merciful, amiable love and bright glory.

O watchmen of Israel! Why do you sleep? Awake from the sleep of whoredom, and dress or trim your lamps: The Bridegroom comes, sound your trumpets.

O you covetous, stiff-necked and drunken roisterers! How do you woo and go a whoring after the covetous devil? Thus says the LORD, Will you not feed my people, which I have committed to your charge?

Behold I have set you upon Moses' chair and entrusted you with my flock; but you mind nothing but the wool, and mind not my sheep, and therewith you build your great palaces. But I will set you on the stool of pestilence, and my own Shepherd shall feed my sheep eternally.

O fair world, how does heaven complain of you? How do you trouble the elements? O wickedness and malice! When will you leave, and give over? Awaken! Awaken, and bring forth, you sorrowful woman; behold your Bridegroom comes, and requires fruit at your hands: Why do you sleep? Behold, he knocketh!

O gracious, amiable, blessed love and clear bright light, tarry with us, I pray you, for the evening is at hand. O truth! O justice and righteous judgment! What is become of you? Does not the spirit wonder, as if he had never seen the world before now? O, why do I write of the wickedness of this World? I must do it, and the world curses me for it. Amen.
CHAPTER 9

Of the Gracious, amiable, blessed, friendly and merciful Love of God. The Great, Heavenly and Divine Mystery.

[Aur. 9:1] Because I write here of heavenly and divine things, which are altogether strange to the corrupted, perished nature of man, the Reader doubtless will wonder at the simplicity of the author, and be offended at it.

[Aur. 9:2] Because the condition and inclination of the corrupted nature is to gaze on high things alone, like a proud, wild, wanton and whorish woman, who always gazes in her heat or burning lust after handsome men, to act wantonness with them.

[Aur. 9:3] Thus also is the proud, corrupted, perished nature of man. It stares only upon that which is glittering and in fashion in this world, and supposes that God has forgotten the afflicted, and therefore plagues them so, because he minds them not.

[Aur. 9:4] Corrupt nature imagines that the Holy Ghost regards only high things, the high arts and sciences of this world, the profound studies, and great learning.

[Aur. 9:5] But whether it be so or no, look but back, and then you will find the true ground. What was Abel? A shepherd. What were Enoch and Noah? Plain, simple men. What were Abraham, Isaac and Jacob? Herdsmen.

[Aur. 9:7] What were the great and small prophets? Vulgar, plain and mean people: some of them but country people and herdsmen, counted the underlings or footstools of the world: Men counted them but mere fools.

[Aur. 9:8] Though they did miracles and wonders, and showed great signs, yet the world gazed on high things alone, and the Holy Ghost must be as the dust under their feet: For the proud devil always endeavoured to be king in this world.

[Aur. 9:9] How came our King JESUS CHRIST into this world? Poor, and in great trouble and misery, and had not where to lay his head.55

[Aur. 9:10] What were his Apostles? Poor, despised, illiterate fishermen. And what were they that believed their preaching? The poorer and meamer sort of the people. The High Priests and Scribes were the executioners of Christ, [they] who cried out, Crucify him, crucify him.56

[Aur. 9:11] What were they that in all ages of the Church of Christ stood by it most stoutly and constantly? The poor, contemptible, despised people, who shed their blood for the sake of Christ.

[Aur. 9:12] But who were they that falsified and adulterated the right, pure Christian doctrine, and always fought against and opposed it? Even the learned doctors and scribes, popes, cardinals, bishops, and great dons or masters and teachers. And why did the world follow after them, and depend on them? But because they had great respect, were in great authority and power, lived stately, and carried a port in the world. Even such a proud whore is the corrupt, perished human nature.
Who was it that purged out of the Churches in Germany the Pope's greediness of money, his idolatry, bribery, deceit and cheating? A poor despised monk or friar. By what power and might? By the power of God the Father, and by the power and might of God the Holy Ghost.

What remains Hidden since the Beginning of the World.

Question.

Then what is yet concealed or remains hidden, the true doctrine of Christ? No; but the philosophy, and the deep ground of God; the heavenly delightful habitation and pleasure; the revelation of the creation of angels; the revelation of the horrible fall of the Devil; from which evil proceeds; the creation of this world; the deep ground and mystery of man, and of all creatures in this world; the Last Judgment and change of this world; the mystery of the resurrection of the dead; and of eternal life.

This shall arise in the depth, in great plainness and simplicity. But why not in the height in art? [In order] that no man should dare to boast that he himself has done it, and that hereby the Devil's pride should be discovered and brought to nothing.

But why does God so? Of his great love and mercy towards all people and nations, and to show hereby that now is near at hand the time of the restitution of all whatsoever is lost, wherein men shall behold and enjoy the perfection, and move in the pure light and deep knowledge of God.

Therefore, beforehand, will arise the dawning of the day, or morning redness, whereby the day may be known or taken notice of.

He that will now sleep, let him sleep still; and he that will awake and trim his lamp, let him awake still: Behold the Bridegroom comes, and he that is awake and is ready accompanies him into the eternal heavenly wedding: But he that sleeps at his coming, he sleeps forever, eternally in the dark prison of fierceness or wrath.

Therefore I would have the Reader warned that he read this book with diligence, and not be offended at the meanness or simplicity of the author, for God looks not to high things, for He alone is high: But he cares for the lowly, how to help them.

If you come so far as to apprehend the spirit and sense of the Author, then you will need no admonition, but will rejoice and be glad in this light, and your soul will laugh and triumph therein.

Now observe, The gracious, amiable, blessed love, which is the fifth fountain-spirit in the divine power, is the hidden source, fountain or quality which the corporeal being cannot comprehend or apprehend, but only when it rises up in the body and then the body triumphs therein, and behaves itself friendly, lovely and courteously; for that quality or spirit belongs not to the imaging or framing of a body, but rises up in the body, as a flower springs up out of the earth.

Now this fountain-spirit takes its original at first out of the sweet quality of the water.

Understand this, how it is, and observe it exactly.

The Wrath: the Original of Hell-Fire

First there is the astringent quality, then the sweet, and next the bitter: The sweet is in the midst between the astringent and the bitter. Now the astringent causes things to be hard, cold and dark; and the bitter tears, drives, rages and divides or distinguishes. These two qualities rub and drive each other so hard, and move so eagerly, that they generate the heat, which now in these two qualities is dark, even as heat in a stone is.

[Aur. 9:24] As when a man takes a stone, or any hard thing, and rubs it against wood, these two things are heated: Now this heat is but a darkness, having no light therein: And so it is, in the divine power also.

[Aur. 9:25] Now the astringent and the bitter qualities, without the sweet water, rub and drive themselves so hard the one against the other, that they generate the dark heat, and are so kindled in themselves.

[Aur. 9:26] And this [process] together [with the agents therein] is the wrath or anger of God, the source and original of the hellish fire. As we see by Lucifer, who elevated and compressed himself so hard together with his legions, that the sweet fountain-water in him was dried up, wherein the light kindles, and wherein the love rises up.

[Aur. 9:27] Therefore now he is eternally an astringent, hard, cold, bitter hot and sour stinking fountain-source: For when the sweet quality in him was dried up, it became a sour stink, a valley of misery, and a house of perdition and woe.

Now further into the Depth.

[Aur. 9:28] When the astringent and the bitter qualities rub themselves so hard the one upon the other that they generate heat (the sweet quality, the sweet fountain-water, being therein in the midst or center, between the astringent and bitter qualities), the heat becomes generated between the astringent and the bitter qualities in the sweet fountain-water, through [by means of] the astringent and the bitter qualities:

[Aur. 9:29] There the light kindles in the heat in the sweet fountain-water, and this is the beginning of life: For the astringent and bitter qualities are the beginning and the cause of the heat and of the light also, and thus the sweet fountain-water becomes a shining light, like the blue or azure light of heaven.

[Aur. 9:30] And that bright light fountain-water kindles the astringent and the bitter qualities, and the heat (which is generated by the astringent and the bitter qualities in the sweet water), rises up out of the sweet fountain-water through the astringent and bitter qualities, and in the astringent and bitter qualities the light first then becomes dry and shining, as also moveable and triumphing.

[Aur. 9:31] And when the light rises up out of the sweet fountain-water in the heat, in the astringent and bitter qualities, then the bitter and astringent qualities taste the light and sweet water, and the bitter quality catches the taste of the sweet water, and in the sweet water is the light, but only of a sky-color or azure, which is blue.

[Aur. 9:32] And then the bitter quality trembles, and dissolves the hardness in the astringent quality, and the light becomes dry in the astringent, and shines clear, much brighter than the light of the sun.

[Aur. 9:33] In this rising up the astringent quality becomes meek, light, thin or transparent and pleasant or lovely, and obtains its life, whose original rises up out of the heat in the sweet water, and this now is the true fountain or well-spring of love.

Observe this in the deep Sense.

[Aur. 9:34] How should love and joy not be there, where life is generated in the very center or midst of death, and light in the midst of darkness.
Question.

[Aur. 9:35] You ask, How comes that to pass? If my spirit indeed did sit in your heart, and spring up in your heart, then your body would find, feel and apprehend it.

[Aur. 9:36] But otherwise I cannot bring it into your sense. Neither can you apprehend or understand it, unless the Holy Ghost kindles your soul, so that this light itself shines in your heart.

[Aur. 9:37] Then will this light itself be generated in you, as in God, and rise up in your astringent and bitter qualities, in your sweet water, and triumph, as in God: Now when this is done, then will you first understand my book, and not before.

Observe:

[Aur. 9:38] When the light is generated in the bitter quality, that is, when the bitter and dry fountain-sources catch the sweet fountain-water of life, and drink it, then the bitter spirit becomes living in the astringent spirit, and the astringent spirit, which is as a spirit impregnated with child, is impregnated with life, and must continually generate the life.

[Aur. 9:39] For the sweet water, and the light in the sweet water, rise up continually in the astringent quality, and the bitter quality triumphs continually therein, and so there is nothing else but mere laughing and joy, and mere existing in love.

[Aur. 9:40] For the astringent quality loves the sweet water.

[Aur. 9:41] First, because in the sweet water the spirit of light is generated, and saturates or moistens the astringent, hard and cold qualities; also it enlightens them and warms them; for in water, light and heat the life consists.

[Aur. 9:42] Secondly, the astringent quality loves the bitter, because the bitter quality in the sweet water, that is, in water, heat and light, triumphs in the astringent quality, and makes the astringent moveable or stirring, wherein the astringent also can triumph.

[Aur. 9:43] Thirdly, the astringent quality loves the heat, because in the heat the light is generated, whereby the astringent quality is enlightened and warmed.

[Aur. 9:44] And the sweet quality also loves the astringent.

[Aur. 9:45] First, because the astringent dries it up, that it becomes not thin or dim like the elementary water, and that its quality consists in power; and because in the astringent quality the light, which is [thus] generated therein, becomes shining and dry.

[Aur. 9:46] Besides, the astringent quality is a cause of the heat which is generated in the sweet water, wherein the light rises up, and wherein the sweet water stands in great clarity, brightness or glory.

[Aur. 9:47] Secondly, the sweet quality also loves the bitter, because it is a cause of the heat, and also because the bitter spirit triumphs and trembles in the sweet water, heat and light, and so makes the sweet water moveable or stirring and living.

[Aur. 9:48] Thirdly, the sweet quality loves heat exceedingly, so very much that I cannot compare it to anything; but you may take this for a similitude, though it comes very short of it: Suppose that in two young people of a noble complexion, these being kindled in the heat and fervor of burning love the one to the other, there is such a fire as this: that if each could creep into the body and heart of the other, or if they could transmute themselves into one body, they would do it.
[Aur. 9:49] But this earthly love is only cold water, and is not true fire: A man cannot find any full similitude of it in this half-dead world. In all divine things that receive the true love-fire, the resurrection of the dead at the last day alone is a perfect similitude.

[Aur. 9:50] But the sweet quality does thus love the heat because it generates therein the light-spirit, which is the spirit of life. For life exists in the heat, for if the heat were not, all would be a dark valley: Now, so dear as the life is, so dear also is the heat to the sweet spirit, and the light in the heat.

[Aur. 9:51] And the bitter quality also loves all the other fountain-spirits. And first the sweet. For in the sweet water the bitter spirit is refreshed, and therein it quenches its great thirst; and its bitterness is therein mitigated; also it obtains its light-life therein: In the astringent it has its body, wherein it triumphs, cools and mitigates itself; and in the heat it has its power and strength, wherein its joy stands.

[Aur. 9:52] And the hot quality also loves all the other qualities; and the love is so great therein towards and in the others that it cannot be likened to anything, for it is generated from and out of the others.

[Aur. 9:53] The astringent and bitter qualities are the father of the heat, and the sweet fountain-water is its mother, which conceives, retains and generates it: For the heat exists through the astringent and bitter hard driving, which rises up in the sweet quality, as in wood or fuel.

[Aur. 9:54] Will you not believe this? Then open your eyes, and go to a tree, look upon it, and bethink yourself; there you see first the whole tree, take a knife and cut a gash in it, and taste how it is; then you first taste the astringent, harsh, choky quality, which draws your tongue together, and that also draws and holds together all the powers of the tree.

[Aur. 9:55] Then you taste the bitter quality, which makes the tree moveable or stirring, so that it springs and grows green and flourishes, and so gets its branches, leaves and fruit.

[Aur. 9:56] After that you taste the sweet, which is very gentle and sharp; for it gets the sharpness from the astringent and bitter qualities.

[Aur. 9:57] Now these three qualities would be dark and dead, if the heat were not therein: But as soon as the spring time comes, that the sun with its beams reaches and warms the earth, the spirit becomes living by the heat in the tree, and the spirits of the tree begin to grow green, flourish and blossom.

[Aur. 9:58] For the spirit rises up in the heat, and all the spirits rejoice therein, and so there is a hearty love between them.

[Aur. 9:59] But the heat is generated through the power and impulse of the astringent and bitter qualities in the sweet water.

[Aur. 9:60] But they must use the heat of the sun to their kindling, because the qualities in this world are half dead, and are too weak; of which king Lucifer was the cause, which you will find, here following, concerning his fall, and concerning the creation of this world.

Of the friendly Love, gracious, amiable Blessness and Unity of the Five Qualifying or Fountain-Spirits of God.

[Aur. 9:61] Though it be impossible for the hands of men to describe this sufficiently, yet the enlightened spirit of man sees it; for it rises up just in such a form and birth as the light [does] in the divine power, and also in [such a form and birth as] the qualities which are in God [rise up].
[Aur. 9:62] Only this is to be lamented concerning man, that his qualities are corrupted, perished, and half dead; and therefore it is that man's spirit [in its] or his qualities [in their] rising or kindling in this world, can come or attain to no perfection.

[Aur. 9:63] On the other hand, it is highly to be rejoiced at, that man's spirit, in his necessity, becomes enlightened and kindled by the Holy Ghost: [just] as the sun kindles the cold heat in a tree or herb, whereby the cold chilled heat becomes living.

Now observe:

[Aur. 9:64] As the members of a man's body love one another, so do the spirits also in the divine power; there is nothing else but a mere longing, desiring, and fulfilling, as also a triumphing and rejoicing the one in the other: For through these spirits come the understanding and distinction in God, in angels, in men, in beasts, in fowls and in everything that lives.

[Aur. 9:65] For in these five qualities rise up the seeing, smelling, tasting and feeling; and so a rational spirit comes to be.

[Aur. 9:66] When the light rises up, then one spirit sees another.

[Aur. 9:67] When the sweet spring or fountain-water rises up in the light, through all the spirits, then the one tastes the other; and then the spirits become living, and the power of life penetrates through all.

[Aur. 9:68] In that power the one smells the other; and through this qualifying influence and penetration the one feels the other.

[Aur. 9:69] So there is nothing else but a hearty, loving and friendly aspect or seeing, a pleasant smell, a good relishing or tasting, and a lovely feeling, a gracious, amiable, blessed kissing, a feeding upon and drinking of one another, and a lovely walking and conversing together.

[Aur. 9:70] This is the gracious, amiable, blessed BRIDE, which rejoices in her BRIDEGROOM; herein is love, joy and delight; here is light and brightness or clarity; here is a pleasant and lovely smell; here is a friendly and sweet taste.

[Aur. 9:71] And this forever without end! How can a creature sufficiently rejoice therein? O dear love and gracious amiable blessedness! Surely you have no end. No man can see any end in you, your profound deep is unsearchable, you are everywhere all over thus; only in the fierce devils are you not thus, they have spoiled and perished you in themselves.

Question.

[Aur. 9:72] Now you will say, Where then are these gracious, amiable and blessed spirits to be met with? Do they dwell only in themselves in heaven?

Answer.

[Aur. 9:73] This is the other open gate of the Deity, here you must set your eyes wide open, and rouse up or awaken the spirit in your half-dead heart: for this is not an obscure fiction, contrivance or phantasy.

Observe:

[Aur. 9:74] The seven spirits of God, in their circumference and space, contain or comprehend heaven and this world; also the wide breadth and depth without and beyond the heavens, even above and beneath the world, and in the world, yea the whole Father, who has neither beginning nor end.
They contain also all the creatures both in heaven and in this world; and all the creatures in heaven and in this world are imaged, fashioned or framed out of these spirits, and live in them as in their own propriety.

Their life and their reason is generated in them in such a manner as the divine being is generated, and also in the same power.

Out of and from the same body of the seven spirits of God are all things made and produced, and all angels, all devils, the heaven, the earth, the stars, the elements, men, beasts, fowls, fishes; all worms, wood, trees, also stones, herbs and grass, and all whatsoever is.

Question.

Now you will ask, Seeing God is everywhere, and is himself All, how comes it then that there is in this world such cold and heat, and such biting and striking among all creatures, and that there is almost nothing else but mere fierceness or wrath in this world?

Answer.

("The cause is, that without [apart from, outside of] the light the first four forms of nature are one at enmity against the other; and yet they are the causes of life.")

Behold here the wickedness and malice which is the cause; viz. when king Lucifer did sit in his kingdom, like a high-minded proud bride, then his circuit, circle or orb contained or comprehended the place or space where now is the created heaven, which is made out of the water:

And also the place of the created world, even unto heaven, as also the deep where now the earth is, all that was a pure and holy Salitter, wherein the seven spirits of God were complete and pleasant, as now [they are] in heaven, although they are still complete and full in this world. But observe the circumstances rightly.

When king Lucifer elevated himself, then he elevated himself in the seven qualifying fountain-spirits, and kindled them with his elevation, so that all was wholly burning, and the astringent quality was so hard and compact, that it generated stones; and it was so cold, that it made the sweet spring or fountain-water turn into ice.

And the sweet spring water became very thick and stinking, and the bitter quality became very raging, tearing and raving, from which poison was generated, and the fire or heat was violently and zealously or fervently burning and consuming, and so there was a very great distemper and confused mixture.

Upon this king Lucifer was thrust out of his royal place or kingly throne, which he had in that place where now is the created heaven, and thereupon instantly ensued the creation of this world.

And the hard, spoiled or corrupt matter, which had wrought forth itself in the kindled seven qualifying or fountain-spirits, was driven together, from which the earth and stones came to be, and, after that, all the creatures were created out of the kindled Salitter of the seven spirits of God.

Now the qualifying or fountain spirits became so fierce and wrathful in their kindling, that the one continually spoils the other with its evil corrupt quality or source, and so also now do the creatures, which were made out of the qualifying or fountain spirits, and live in the same impulse, the one biting, beating, worrying and annoying the other, all according to the kind or disposition of the qualities.
90  The Aurora by Jacob Boehme

[Aur. 9:87] Upon this now the total or universal God has decreed the Last Judgment, wherein he will separate the evil from the good, and set the good again in the meek, mild and pleasant delight, as it was before the horrible kindling of the Devil, and will give that which is fierce or wrathful to king Lucifer for an everlasting habitation.

[Aur. 9:88] And then there will be two parts or divisions of this kingdom, the one men will get, with their King JESUS CHRIST; the other the devils shall have with all ungodly men and wickedness.

[Aur. 9:89] This is a short introduction, that the Reader might better understand the divine Mystery; when I write concerning the fall of the Devil, and concerning the creation of this world, you will find all more at large, particularly described. Therefore I would have the Reader admonished that he read all in order, and so he will come to the true ground.

[Aur. 9:90] It is true, that from the beginning of the world it was not so fully revealed to any man; but seeing God will have it so, I submit to his will, and will see what God will do with it.

[Aur. 9:91] For this way which is before him is for the most part hidden from me: But following after him the spirit sees, even into the highest and profoundest depth.
CHAPTER 10

Of the Sixth Qualifying or Fountain Spirit in the Divine Power, the Sound.

[Aur. 10:1] The Sixth qualifying or fountain spirit in the divine power is the sound, tone, tune or noise, wherein all sounds and tunes; from which ensued speech, language, and the distinction of everything, as also the ringing melody and singing of the holy angels, and therein consists the forming or framing of all colors, beauty and ornament, as also the heavenly joyfulness.

Question.

[Aur. 10:2] But you will ask, What is the tone or sound? Or how takes this spirit its source and original?

Answer.

[Aur. 10:3] All the seven spirits are generated one in another, the one continually generates the other, not one of them is the first, nor is any one of them the last; for the last generates as well the first as the second, third, fourth, and so on to the last.

[Aur. 10:4] But why one is called the first, another the second, and so on, that is in respect to that which is the first in order to the imaging, framing and forming of a creature.

[Aur. 10:5] For all the seven are equally eternal, and none of them has either beginning or end; and therefore, in that the seven qualities are continually generating one another, and that none is without the other, it follows that there is ONE Only Eternal Almighty GOD.

[Aur. 10:6] For, if anything be generated out of or in the divine being, that thing is not formed or framed by or through one spirit alone, but by all the seven.

[Aur. 10:7] And if a creature, which is like or as the whole being of God, spoils, elevates and kindles itself in a qualifying or fountain spirit, it kindles not one spirit alone, but all the seven spirits.

[Aur. 10:8] And therefore that creature is a loathsome abomination before the total God, and before all his creatures, and must stand in eternal enmity and ignominy or shame before God, and before all the creatures.

[Aur. 10:9] The tone or Mercurius takes its original in the first, that is, in the astringent and hard quality.

Observe the Depth:

[Aur. 10:10] Hardness is the fountain or well-spring of the tone, but it alone cannot generate the same, yet it is the father thereof, and the whole Salitter is the mother; otherwise, if the hardness were both father and mother of the tone, then a hard stone also must have a ringing sound. But a hard stone does make only a noise, like a knocking, as a seed or beginning of a tone, and that it is, certainly.

[Aur. 10:11] But the tone of voice rises up in the middle center, in the flash or lightning, where the light is generated out of the heat, where the flash or lightning of life rises up.
Observe how this is done:

[Aur. 10:12] When the astringent quality rubs itself with the bitter, so that the heat rises up in the sweet spring or fountain-water, then the heat kindles the sweet spring or fountain-water, like a flash of lightning, and that flash is the light; which in the heat goes into the bitter quality, and there the flash is distinguished according to all the powers.

[Aur. 10:13] For all powers are discerned or distinguished in the bitter, and the bitter receives the flash of the light, as if it were horribly terrified, and goes with its trembling and terror into the astringent and hard quality, and there it is bodily captivated.

[Aur. 10:14] And the bitter quality is now impregnated: with the light, and trembles in the astringent and hard quality, and stirs therein, and is captivated in the astringent quality, as in a body.

[Aur. 10:15] And now when the spirits do move and would speak, the hard quality must open itself; for the bitter spirit with its flash breaks it open, and then there the tone goes forth, and is impregnated with all the seven spirits, which distinguish the word, as it was decreed in the center, that is, in the middle of the circle, while it was yet in the council of the seven spirits.

[Aur. 10:16] And therefore the seven spirits of God have created a mouth for the creatures, that when they [the creatures] would utter their voice, which is their speaking, or [when they would] make a noise, they need not first tear themselves open; and therefore it is that all the veins and powers or qualifying fountain spirits go into the tongue, that the tone or noise may come forth gently.

Here observe exactly the Sense and Mystery.

[Aur. 10:17] When the flash rises up in the heat, then first the sweet water catches or captivates it, for therein it becomes shining. Now when the water catches the flash, that is, the birth of the light, then the sweet water is terrified, and being so thin and pliant or feeble, it yields, very much trembling; for the heat rises up in the light.

[Aur. 10:18] Now when the astringent quality, which is very cold, catches the heat and the flash, then it is terrified, as in a tempest of lightning; for when the heat comes with the light into the hard cold, then it makes a fierce flash, of a very fiery and light color.

[Aur. 10:19] Then that flash retires back, and the sweet water catches it, and rises up in that fierceness, and in that rising and terrifying changes itself into a green or azure or blue color, and trembles because of the fierce flash.

[Aur. 10:20] And the flash in itself keeps its fierceness, from which exists the bitter quality, or the bitter spirit, which now rises up in the astringent quality, and inflames or kindles the hardness with its fierce quality, and the light or flash dries itself in the hardness, and shines clear and bright, far brighter than the light of the sun.

[Aur. 10:21] But it is caught in the hard quality, so that it subsists in a bodily manner, and must shine so eternally, and the flash trembles in the body, like a fierce rising up, whereby all the qualities are stirred, always and eternally.

[Aur. 10:22] And the flash of fire in the light trembles and triumphs thus continually, and the sweet water softens [or quenches] the fire also continually, and the hardness is always the body, which retains, preserves, and dries it.

[Aur. 10:23] And this stirring in the hardness is the tone, so that [there is a] sound; and the light or flash makes the ringing, and the sweet water makes the ringing soft: so that a man can use the sound to the distinction of speech, or articulation of syllables.
Here observe yet more plainly the Nativity or Birth of the bitter Quality.

[Aur. 10:24] The original of the bitter quality is when the flash of life in the heat rises up in the astringent quality; and now when the flash of fire in the mixture of the water comes into the astringent quality, then the spirit of the fiery flash catches the astringent and hard spirit, and both these together are an earnest severe fierce quality, which rages and tears vehemently, like a fiery violent fierceness.

[Aur. 10:25] I can liken it to nothing else but to a thunder-clap, when the fierce fire first falls down, so that it dazzles the sight; that fierce fire is like the manner of the conjunction of these two.

Now observe:

[Aur. 10:26] When the fire-spirit and the astringent-spirit struggle and wrestle thus together, then the astringent makes a vehement hard cold astriction, and the fiery makes a terrible fierce heat.

[Aur. 10:27] Now the rising up of the heat and of the astriction makes a trembling, fierce, terrible spirit, which raves and rages, as if it would tear the Deity asunder.

But you must understand this, exactly and properly.

[Aur. 10:28] This is thus in the original of the quality in itself; but in the midst, in the rising up of this fierce spirit, this [same] spirit is caught and mitigated in the sweet water, where its fierce source or fountain is changed into a trembling, bitter, and greenish color, like a greenish duskiness, and it retains in itself the condition and property of all three qualities, viz. of the fiery, the astringent and the sweet; and so from these three exists the fourth quality, viz. the bitter.

[Aur. 10:29] For from the fiery quality the spirit becomes trembling and hot, and from the astringent it becomes severe, astringent, hard and corporeal, so that it is a spirit which always subsists; and from the sweet it becomes meek or mild, and the fierceness changes it into a gentle bitterness; which stands now in the fountain or well-spring of the seven spirits of God, and helps continually to generate the other six spirits.

Understand this rightly.

[Aur. 10:30] It does as well generate its father and mother, as its father and mother do generate it, for after that it is corporeally generated, it then, with the astringent quality, always generates the fire again, and the fire generates light, and the light is the flash, which always generates the life again in all the qualifying or fountain spirits; by which the spirits have life, and always generate one another again.

[Aur. 10:31] But here you must know that one spirit alone cannot generate another, neither can two of them do it, but the birth of a spirit stands in the operation of all the seven spirits, six of them always generate the seventh, and so if one of them were not, then the others would not be either.

[Aur. 10:32] But that I sometimes take only two or three to the nativity or birth of a spirit, I do that because of my own weakness, for in my corrupted brain I cannot bear them all seven at once in their perfection.

[Aur. 10:33] I see them all seven very well, but when I speculate into them, then the spirit rises up in the middlmost fountain or well-spring, where the spirit of life generates itself, which goes now upwards, now downwards, it cannot apprehend all the seven spirits in one thought, or at once, but only in part.
Every spirit has its own quality or source, though indeed it is generated of the others; and so it is with the apprehension of man; he has indeed the fountain of all seven spirits in him, but in what quality or fountain soever the spirit rises up, the qualifying or fountain spirit thereof, wherein that same spirit is most strongly imaged, is that [one] which he comprehends most sharply in that rising up.

For even in the divine power one spirit, in its rising up, does not go through all the spirits equally at once; for when it rises up, then indeed it touches or stirs them all at once, but it is caught in its rising up, so that it must lay down its stateliness and pomp, and not triumph over all the seven.

(“It is the being or substance of the senses and thoughts, otherwise, if a thought through the center of nature could penetrate all the forms, then it were free from the band of nature.”)

Thus also in man: When one qualifying or fountain spirit rises up, then it touches all the others, and sees all the others, for it rises up in the middle or central fountain or well-spring of the heart, where, in the heat, the flash of light kindles itself, wherein the spirit in its rising up, in the same flash, sees through all the spirits.

What in men shall arise in Heavenly joy or in Hellish torment, the Salitter.

But in our corrupted flesh it [the rising up] is only like a tempest of lightning: for if I could in my flesh comprehend the flash (which I very well see and know how it is), I could clarify or transfigure my body therewith, so that it would shine with a bright light and glory. (“For from the flash comes the light of the Majesty.”) And then it would no more resemble and be conformed to the bestial body, but to the angels of God.

But hear me friend, tarry yet a little while, and then give the bestial body for food to the worms: But when the total God shall kindle the seven spirits of God in the corrupted earth, then, if that same Salitter which you sow in the earth will not be capable of the fire, then your qualifying or fountain spirits, which you did sow in your life-time, and which are sown in your departure from here, will rise again in the same Salitter which you have sown, and will triumph therein, and become a body again.

But he that will be capable of the kindled fire of the seven spirits of God, he shall abide therein, and his qualifying or fountain spirits shall rise in hellish pain, which I shall demonstrate clearly in its due place.

I cannot describe unto you the whole Deity by the circumference or extent of a circle, for it is immeasurable; but to that spirit which is in God’s love it is not incomprehensible: That spirit comprehends it well, yet but in part; therefore take one part after another, and then you will see the whole.

In this corruption we cannot get higher than with such a revelation, neither does this world enclose itself any higher, both as to the beginning and the end.

“I would very fain see somewhat higher in this my anxious generating or birth, whereby my sick Adam might be refreshed.

“But I look round about me in all the world, and can find out nothing; all is sick, lame and wounded: moreover, blind, deaf and dumb.”

I have read the writings of very high masters, hoping to find therein the ground and true depth; but I have found nothing, but a half dead spirit, which in anxiety travails and labors for health, and yet, because of its great weakness, cannot attain perfect power.
[Aur. 10:46] Thus I stand yet as an anxious woman in travail, and seek perfect refreshing, but find only the scent or smell or savour in its rising up, wherein the spirit examines what power sticks in the true cordial, and in the meanwhile refreshes itself in its sickness with that perfect smell or savour, till the true Samaritan does come, who will dress and bind up its wounds and heal it, and bring it to the eternal inn or lodging, then shall it enjoy the perfect taste.

[Aur. 10:47] This herb, which I mean here, from whose fragrancy my spirit takes its refreshing, every country ploughman does not know it, nor every doctor, the one is as ignorant of it as the other; it grows indeed in every garden, but in many it is quite spoiled and bad: for the quality of the soil or ground is in fault. And therefore men do not know it, nay the children of this Mystery do hardly know it; although this knowledge has been very rare, dear and precious, from the beginning of the world to this time.

[Aur. 10:48] Though in many men a source or fountain and quality has risen up, but then suddenly pride pressed after it, and spoiled all; whereupon it [pride] was loath to write it down in its mother-tongue; it supposed that was too childish a thing to do, it must show it in a deeper language, that the world should see that it is manly; and for its advantage it kept it [the source or fountain and quality] in secret, and daubed it with deep strange names, that men might not know it; such a beast is the Devil’s disease of pride.

[Aur. 10:49] But hear, you simple mother, who bring all the children into this world, who afterwards in their rising up are ashamed of you and despise you, and yet are your children whom you have brought forth.

[Aur. 10:50] Thus says the spirit, which rises up in the seven spirits of God, which is your Father: Despair not, behold, I am your strength, and your power, I will fill to you a mild draught in your age.

[Aur. 10:51] Seeing all your children despise you, whom you did bear, and have given them suck in their childhood, and who will not give you any attendance, or minister to you in your high or old age:

[Aur. 10:52] Therefore I will comfort you, and will give unto you a young SON in your high or old age; he shall abide in your house as long as you live, and attend you or minister to you, and comfort you against all the raving and raging of your proud children

Now here observe further concerning the Mecurius, Tone or Sound.

[Aur. 10:53] All qualities take their beginning-origin in their middle or center: Therefore observe where the fire is generated; for there rises up the flash of the life of all the qualities, and it is caught in the water, so that it remains shining; and it is dried in the astringency, so that it remains corporeal, and becomes shining, bright and clear.

Observe here:

[Aur. 10:54] For instance: Kindle some wood, and then you will see the mystery: The fire kindles itself in the hardness of the wood; and this is now the astringent hard quality, the quality or source Saturnus, which makes the wood hard and dry.

[Aur. 10:55] But now the light, that is, the flash, does not consist in the hardness, otherwise a stone also would burn and give light, but the light subsists only in the sap of the wood, that is, in the water.

[Aur. 10:56] Whilst there is sap in the wood the fire shines as a shining light; but when the sap is consumed in the wood the shining light goes out, and the wood becomes a glowing coal.
[Aur. 10:57] Now behold: the fierceness which rises up in the light consists not in the water of the wood, but when the heat rises up in the hardness, then is the flash generated, which the sap in the wood first catches, whereby the water becomes shining.

[Aur. 10:58] The fierceness or bitterness is generated in the midst or center of the hardness, and the heat is generated in the flash, and therein also it subsists; and so far as the flash, that is, the flame of the fire reaches, so far also reaches the fierceness of the bitterness, which is the son of the hardness and heat.

[Aur. 10:59] But you must know this mystery, that the bitterness is already in the wood, else the fierce bitterness would not so suddenly generate itself like lightning in the natural fire.

[Aur. 10:60] For as, when wood is kindled, the body of the fire generates itself, in such a manner likewise is the wood generated in and above the earth.

[Aur. 10:61] But if the fierceness should be generated in the shining light, then surely it would reach as far also as the splendour or shining of the light, but it does not so.

[Aur. 10:62] But thus it is; the flash is the mother of the light; for the flash generates the light, and is the father of the fierceness, for the fierceness abides in the flash as a seed in the father; and that flash generates also the tone or sound.

[Aur. 10:63] When it goes from the hardness and heat, then the hardness makes a thumping, knocking sound in the flash, and the heat rings forth, and the light in the flash makes the ringing clear, and the water mitigates or softens it, and then in the astringency and hardness it is caught and dried up, so that it is a corporeal spirit in all the qualities.

[Aur. 10:64] For every spirit in the seven spirits of God is impregnated with all the seven spirits, and they all are one in another as one spirit, not one of them is without the others.

[Aur. 10:65] Only the birth therein is thus, and so the one generates the other, in and through itself, and the birth lasts or continues thus from eternity to eternity.

[Aur. 10:66] Here I will have the Reader warned that he rightly consider the divine birth. You must not think that one spirit stands by another, as you see the stars of heaven stand one by another.

[Aur. 10:67] But all the seven are one in another as one spirit; as this may be conceived in man, who has several thoughts, because of the operation of the seven spirits of God, which keep and reside in the human body.

[Aur. 10:68] But you may say to me, You are foolish in this; for any member of the whole body has the power of the other.

[Aur. 10:69] Yet in what quality soever you excite or awaken the spirit, and make it operative or qualifying, according to that same quality the thoughts rise up, and govern the mind.

[Aur. 10:70] If you stir or awake the spirit in the fire, then there rises up in you the bitter and harsh anger; for as soon as the fire is kindled, which is done in the hardness and fierceness, then springs up the bitter fierceness or wrath in the flash.

[Aur. 10:71] For when you, in your body, lift yourself against anything whatsoever, be it in love or wrath, you kindle the quality of that against which you lift yourself; and that [kindled quality] burns in the corporeal whole of your spirit; but in the flash this same fountain-spirit awakens.

[Aur. 10:72] For when you look upon anything which does not please you, but is against or contrary to you, then you raise up the fountain of your heart, as when you take a stone, and therewith strike fire on a steel, and so when the spark catches fire in the heart, then the fire kindles.

[Aur. 10:73] At first it glows, but when you stir the source or fountain of the heart more violently, then it is as when you blow the fire, so that the flame is kindled; and then it is high time to quench it, else the fire will be too great, and then it burns and consumes, and does hurt to its neighbor.

How a man may quench the kindled wrath of God in his life, in himself.

Question.
[Aur. 10:74] You ask, How can a man quench this kindled fire?

Answer.
[Aur. 10:75] Hear me, you have the sweet water in you, pour that into the fire, and then the fire goes out: If you let it burn, then it consumes in you the sap that is in all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, so that you will become dry.

[Aur. 10:76] When that is done, then you are a hellish fire-brand, and a billet or faggot to lay upon the hellish fire, and then there is no remedy for you eternally.

[Aur. 10:77] But when you look upon a thing which pleases you, and awaken the spirit in your heart, then you kindle the fire in your heart, which burns first in the sweet water like a glowing coal.

[Aur. 10:78] Whilst it is but glimmering it is only a gentle, soft, longing delight or pleasing lust in you, and does not consume you; but if you exalt your heart still more, and you kindle the sweet quality or fountain, so that it becomes a burning flame, then you kindle all the qualifying or fountain spirits, and then the whole body burns, and so mouth and hands fall on to work.

[Aur. 10:79] This fire is the most dangerous and hurtful, and has spoiled most since the world began, and it is a very hard matter to quench it; for when it is kindled it burns in the sweet water in the flash of life, and must be quenched through bitterness, which is scarce a water, but much rather is a fire.

[Aur. 10:80] Therefore also there follows a heavy, sad, sorrowful mind, when one is to forsake that which burns in his love-fire in the sweet fountain water.

[Aur. 10:81] But you must know, that you, in the government of your mind, are your own lord and master, there will rise up no fire to you in the circle or whole circumference of your body and spirit, unless you awaken it yourself.

[Aur. 10:82] It is true that all your spirits spring and move in you, and rise up in you, and indeed always one spirit has more power in you than [in] another [man].

[Aur. 10:83] For if the government of the spirits were the same in one man as in another, then we should all have one will and form; but all seven are in the power of your compacted incorporated spirit, which spirit is the SOUL.

[Aur. 10:84] (“It has in it the first Principle; the spirit of the soul has the second; and the astral or starry spirit in the elements has the third, viz, this world.”)

[Aur. 10:85] Now if a fire rises up in one qualifying or fountain spirit, then that is not concealed or hidden from the soul, and it may instantly awaken the other qualifying or fountain spirits, which are contrary to the kindled fire, and may quench it.
[Aur. 10:86] But if the fire will be or becomes too big, then has the soul a prison, wherein it may shut up the kindled spirit, viz. in the hard astringent quality, and the other spirits must be the jailers, till their wrath is allayed, and the fire is extinguished.

Observe what that is.

[Aur. 10:87] When one qualifying or fountain spirit drives you too strongly, or presses you too hard to a thing which is against the law of nature, then you must turn your eyes away from it: If that will not help, then take that spirit and cast it into prison.

[Aur. 10:88] That is, turn your heart away from temporal pleasure and voluptuousness, from fullness of eating and drinking, from the riches of this world, and think that to-day is the last day of the end of your body; turn away from the wantonness of the world, and call earnestly to God, and yield or submit yourself to him.

[Aur. 10:89] When you do so, then the world mocks you, and you are a fool to them. But bear this cross patiently, and let not the imprisoned spirit get out of prison again, but trust in God, and he will set upon you the crown of the divine joy.

[Aur. 10:90] But if the spirit breaks out of prison, then put it in again, make good your part against it as long as you live, and if you get so much advantage, that it does not wholly kindle the source or fountain of your heart, whereby your soul would become a dry fire-brand of wood, each fountain or source having yet its sap, when you depart from here:

[Aur. 10:91] Then that kindled fire at the Last Judgment Day will not hurt you; nor will it cleave or stick in your sappy spirits; but after this anxious affliction and trouble you will be, in the resurrection, a triumphant angel of God.

Question.

[Aur. 10:92] But now you may say, Is there in God also a contrary will or opposition among or between the spirits of God?

Answer.

[Aur. 10:93] No: Though I show here their earnest birth, how earnestly and severely the spirits of God are generated, whereby every one may very well understand the great earnest severity of God:

[Aur. 10:94] Yet it does not therefore follow that there is a disunion or discord among them: for the very innermost, deepest birth or geniture in the heart or kernel is only and altogether so, which no creature can apprehend in the body; but in the flash, where the hidden spirit is generated, there it will be apprehended; for that is also generated in such a manner, and in such a power as is here mentioned.

[Aur. 10:95] But unto me is opened the gate of my mind, so that I can see and discern it, else it would indeed remain concealed with me, and hidden to me, till the day of the resurrection from the dead; yea, it has been concealed from all men since the beginning of the world; but I submit my will to God’s will, let him do what he pleases.

[Aur. 10:96] In God all the spirits do triumph as one spirit, and one spirit always mitigates or softens and loves the others, so there is nothing but mere joy and delight: But their severe birth or geniture, which is effected or done in secret, must be so: for life, understanding, and omniscience are thus generated; and this is an eternal birth or geniture, which is never otherwise.

[Aur. 10:97] You must not think that perhaps in heaven there is some manner of body which only is thus generated, which above all other things is called God.
[Aur. 10:98] No; but the whole divine power which itself is heaven, and the heaven of all heavens, is so generated, and that is called GOD the Father; of whom all holy angels are generated, and live also in the same power; also the spirit of all angels in their body is always continually and eternally thus generated; in like manner also is [generated] the spirit of all men.

[Aur. 10:99] For this world belongs as well to the body or corpus of God the Father as the heaven does; but in the locality or space of this world the spirits were kindled through king Lucifer, in his elevation, so that all things in this world are as it were languid and half dead: And therefore it is that we poor men are so very much blinded, and live in such great and desperate danger.

[Aur. 10:100] Yet you must not therefore think that the heavenly light in this world, in the qualifying or fountain spirits of God, is quite extinct: No; there is only a darkness or dim obscurity upon it, so that we cannot apprehend it with our corrupted eyes.

How near to us is God and the whole Trinity.

[Aur. 10:101] But if God did [but] once put away that darkness, which moves about the light, and that your eyes were opened, then in that very place where you stand, sit or lie you would see the glorious countenance or face of God, and the whole heavenly gate.

[Aur. 10:102] You need not first to cast your eyes up into heaven, for it is written: The Word is near you, viz, on your lips, and in your heart.69

[Aur. 10:103] Yea, God is so near you, that the birth or geniture of the Holy Trinity is done or wrought even in your heart, yea, all the three Persons are generated in your heart, even God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost.

[Aur. 10:104] Now when I write here concerning the midst or center, that the fountain of the divine birth or geniture is in the midst or center, the meaning is not that in heaven there is a peculiar or several place, or a peculiar several body, wherein the fire of the divine life rises up, out of which the seven spirits of God go forth into the whole deep of the Father.

[Aur. 10:105] No; but I speak in a corporeal or angelical or human way that the Reader may the better understand it, in such a manner as the angelical creatures were imaged or framed, and as it is in God everywhere universally.

[Aur. 10:106] For you cannot nominate any place, either in heaven or in this world, wherein the divine birth or geniture is not thus, be it in an angel, or in a holy man, or anywhere else.

[Aur. 10:107] Wheresoever one qualifying or fountain spirit in the divine power is touched or stirred, let the place be where it will or the thing what it will (except in the devils, and all wicked, damned men), there is the fountain of the divine birth or geniture directly at hand, and there already are all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of God.

[Aur. 10:108] As when you would make a spacious, creaturely, circumscribed circle, and had the whole Deity peculiarly apart therein. Just as the Deity is generated in a creature, so it is also in the whole deep of the Father in all places and parts thereof, and in all things.

Note.

[Aur. 10:109] And in such a manner is God an almighty, all-knowing, all-seeing, all-hearing, all-smelling, all-tasting, all-feeling God, who is everywhere, and proves the hearts and reins of the creatures.

[Aur. 10:110] And in such a manner heaven and earth are his; also in such a manner all the devils, together with all wicked men, must be his eternal prisoners; and in the Salitter, which they have corrupted and kindled in their place or space, must endure eternal pain and torment, and moreover eternal shame and reproach.
For the total glorious face of God, together with all the holy angels, will shine bright and gloriously above them and under them, and round about them on every side.

And all holy angels, together with all holy men, will eternally triumph above them, below them and round about them, and for great joy, delight and pleasantness will sing of God’s holiness, of their royal kingly government or regimen, and of the gracious, amiable, blessed fruit of the heavenly spring or vegetation; and that will go forth according to the qualities of the seven spirits of God, in many various voices.

On the contrary, the devils, with all wicked men, will be forced into a hole, where a hellish stink will well up and rise up, and the hellish fire, and the hellish coldness and bitterness, will burn after the manner of the kindled spirits of God, eternally in their body, as also in their courts, dominions, regions, space or circumference.

Nay, if they could be locked in or barred up in a hole, that the angry face of God might not touch them, then they might be quiet and contented, and would not be necessitated to endure eternal ignominy, shame and reproach.

But here is no help, their torment increases and becomes but the greater; the more they bewail it, the more does the hellish fierceress or wrath kindle itself, they must lie in hell, as dead bones, like singed scorched sheep in the fire, their stink and abomination gnaws them.

They dare not lift up their eyes for shame, for they see in their circumference, courts or regions, nothing else but only a severe judge; and above them, and on all sides of them, they see the eternal joy.

("Not that they apprehend and behold it, but they have a kind of knowledge thereof in the Center.")

Here is lamentation and woe, yelling and crying, and no deliverance; it is with them as if it did continually thunder and lighten tempestuously.

For the kindled spirits of God generate themselves thus:

I. The hardness generates a hard, raw, rough, cold and astringent quality.

II. The sweetness is grown faint, and gasps, like a glowing coal splits when there is no more sap in the wood, and there is no refreshment for it.

III. The bitterness tears like a hot plague, and is as bitter as gall.

IV. The fire burns as a fierce wrathful Sulphur.

V. Love is an enmity here.

VI. The sound is a mere beating, rumbling or cracking, like the noise of a fire breaking forth out of a hollow place, as if it were great claps of thunder.

VII. The circuit, region, court or residence of the body of the seven is a house of mourning.

Their food is abomination, and grows from the fierceress of all qualities: Lamentation and woe, and that forever without end; there is no time there; another king sits on their throne, which keeps or holds a judgment forever; they are only his footstool.

O beauty, pleasure and voluptuousness of this world! O riches and proud statefulness! O might and power! Your unrighteous judgment and great pomp, with all your pleasure and voluptuousness, lie all together on a heap, and are become a hellish fire!
[Aur. 10:122] Now eat and drink, now trim and dress yourself therewith, and domineer therein, you fair goddess, how are you become a whore, and your shame and reproach continue forever!
CHAPTER 11

VII. Of the Seventh Qualifying or Fountain Spirit in the Divine Power, the Divine Salitter.

[Aur. 11:1] The Seventh spirit of God in the divine power is the corpus or body, which is generated out of the other six spirits, wherein all heavenly figures subsist, and wherein all things image and form themselves, and wherein all beauty and joy rise up.

[Aur. 11:2] This is the very spirit of nature, yea nature itself, wherein apprehensibility or comprehensibility consists, and wherein all creatures are formed in heaven and on earth. Yea heaven itself is therein formed; and all naturality in the whole God consists in this spirit.

[Aur. 11:3] If it were not for this spirit there would be neither angel nor man, and God would be an unsearchable being, subsisting only in an unsearchable power.

Question.

[Aur. 11:4] Now the question is: How is this form? Or in what manner is this so? If you are a rational mercurial spirit, which presses through all the seven spirits of God, and beholds, proves and examines them, how they are, then you will, by the explanation of this seventh spirit, conceive and understand the operation and the being of the whole Deity, and apprehend it in your sense or mind.

[Aur. 11:5] But if you understand nothing by this spirit, then let this book alone, and judge neither of the cold nor of the warmth therein: For you are too hard bound and captivated in Saturnus, and are not a philosopher in this world.

[Aur. 11:6] Let your judging alone, or else you will receive your evil wages for it; therefore I will have you faithfully warned of it. Tarry till you come into the other life, for then the heavenly gate will be opened to you, and then you also will understand this.

Now observe the Depth.

[Aur. 11:7] Here I must lay hold on the whole divine body in the midst or center at the heart, and explain the whole body, how nature is or exists, and there you will see the highest ground, how all the seven spirits of God continually generate one another, and how the Deity has neither beginning nor end.

[Aur. 11:8] Therefore behold and see the longing, desired pleasure of your spirit, the eternal divine joyfulness, and the heavenly delight and corporeal joy, which in all eternity has no end.

Now observe:

[Aur. 11:9] When the flash rises up in the center, then the divine birth stands in its full operation: In God it is continually and eternally thus; but not so in us poor fleshly children.

[Aur. 11:10] In this life the triumphing divine birth lasts in us men only so long as the flash lasts, therefore our knowledge is but in part, whereas in God the flash stands unchangeably, always eternally thus.

[Aur. 11:11] Behold, all the seven spirits of God are generated alike together at once; none of them is the first, and none of them is the last; but we must have an eye to the kernel, and consider how the divine birth or geniture rises up, otherwise man understands it not.
[Aur. 11:12] For the creatures cannot comprehend at once all the seven spirits, one in another, but they look upon them; but when one spirit is touched or stirred, then that touches or stirs all the others, and then the birth or geniture stands in full power.

[Aur. 11:13] Therefore it has a beginning in man, but none in God; and therefore I must also write in a creaturely manner, or else you cannot understand it.

[Aur. 11:14] Behold, without the flash all the seven spirits were a dark valley, but when the flash rises up between the astringent and bitter qualities, in the heat, then it becomes shining in the sweet water, and in the flames of the heat it becomes bitter, and triumphing and living, and in the astringent it becomes corporeal, dry and bright.

[Aur. 11:15] Now these four spirits move themselves in the flash, for all the four become living therein, and so now the power of these four rises up in the flash, as if the life did rise up, and the power which is risen up in the flash is the love, which is the fifth spirit.

[Aur. 11:16] That power moves so very pleasantly and amiably in the flash, as if a dead spirit did become living, and was suddenly in a moment set into great clarity or brightness.

[Aur. 11:17] Now in this moving one power touches or stirs another: First the astringent beats or strikes, and the heat makes in that beating or stroke a clear ringing sound, and the bitter power divides the ringing, and the water makes it mild and soft, and mitigates it; and this is the sixth spirit.

[Aur. 11:18] Now the tone in all the five spirits rises up like a melodious pleasant music, and remains so standing; for the astringent quality exsiccates it or dries it up.

[Aur. 11:19] So now, in the same sound that is gone forth (which now subsists, being dried) is the power of all the six qualifying or fountain spirits, and it is as it were the seed of the other six spirits, which they have there compacted or incorporated together, and made one spirit thereof, and which has the quality of all the spirits: and that is the seventh spirit of God in the divine power.

[Aur. 11:20] Now this spirit subsists in its color like azure or heaven-blue, for it is generated out of all the six spirits; and when the flash, which stands in the midst or center in the heat, shines into the other spirits, so that they rise up in the flash and generate the seventh spirit, then the flash rises up also in the birth of the six spirits together in the seventh.

[Aur. 11:21] But because the seventh has no peculiar quality in itself, therefore the flash in the seventh cannot be brighter, but it receives from the seventh the corporeal being of all the seven spirits, and the flash stands in the midst or center of these seven spirits, and is generated from all the seven.

[Aur. 11:22] The seven spirits are the father of the light, and the light is their son, which they always continually generate thus from eternity to eternity, and the light enlightens and always eternally makes the seven spirits living and joyful, for they all receive their rising and life in the power of light.

[Aur. 11:23] Again, they all generate the light, and all are together alike the father of the light, and the light generates no one spirit, but makes them all living and joyful, that they always continually stand in the birth.

[Aur. 11:24] Behold, I will show it you once more, that so by any means you may apprehend it, that this high work may not take place in vain without profit to you.
[Aur. 11:25] The astringent quality is the first spirit, and that attracts or draws together and makes all dry. The sweet quality is the second spirit, and that softens or mitigates the astringent: Now the third spirit is the bitter spirit, which exists from the fourth and the first.

[Aur. 11:26] So when the third spirit in its rage rubs itself in the astringent, then it kindles the fire, and then the fierceness in the fire rises up in the astringent. In that fierceness now the bitter spirit becomes self-subsisting; and in the sweet it becomes meek or mild; and in the hard it becomes corporeal; and so now it subsists, and is also the fourth spirit.

[Aur. 11:27] Now the flash in the power of these four goes forth in the heat, and rises up in the sweet spring water or fountain; the bitter makes it triumphing; the astringent makes it shining, dry and corporeal; and the sweet makes it meek and mild; and so it receives its first shining and luster in the sweet; and here now the flash, or the light, subsists in the midst or center, as a heart.

[Aur. 11:28] Now when that light, which stands in the midst or center, shines into the four spirits, then the power of the four spirits rises up in the light, and they become living, and love the light; that is, they take it into them, and are impregnated with it, and that spirit which is so taken in is the love of the life, which is the fifth spirit.

[Aur. 11:29] Now when they have taken the love into them, then they qualify, act or operate for great joy; for the one sees the other in the light, and so the one touches or stirs the other.

[Aur. 11:30] Then the tone rises up; and the hard spirit beats, strikes or thumps; but the sweet makes that beating or striking mild; and the bitter divides it according to the condition or kind of every quality; the fourth causes the ringing; the fifth causes joyfulness; and the compacted incorporated sounding is the tone or tune, or the sixth spirit.

[Aur. 11:31] In this tone rises up the power of all the six spirits, and becomes a palpable body, to speak after an angelical manner, and subsists in the power of the other six spirits, and in the light; and this is the body of nature, wherein all heavenly creatures, ideas, figures and sprouts or vegetation are imaged or fashioned.

The Holy Gates. What the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit is, whom we Christians worship

[Aur. 11:32] But the light, which subsists in the midst or center in all the seven spirits, and wherein stands the life of all the seven spirits, whereby all seven become triumphing and joyful, and wherein the heavenly joyfulness rises up:

[Aur. 11:33] This is that which all the seven spirits generate, and that is the son of all the seven spirits, and the seven spirits are its father, which generate the light; and the light generates in them the life; and the light is the heart of the seven spirits.

[Aur. 11:34] This light is the true Son of God, whom we Christians worship and honor, as the second Person in the Holy Trinity.

[Aur. 11:35] All the seven spirits of God together, are God the Trinity.

[Aur. 11:36] For no one spirit of them is alone or without the others; they all seven generate one another; for if one were wanting the others could not be.

[Aur. 11:37] But the light is another Person, for it is continually generated out of or from the seven spirits, and the seven spirits rise up continually in the light; and the powers of these seven spirits go forth continually in the glance or splendour of the light in the seventh nature-spirit, and do form and image all in the seventh spirit; and this out-going or exit in the light is the Holy Ghost.
The Aurora by Jacob Boehme 105

[Aur. 11:38] The flash or stock or pith or the heart, which is generated in the powers, remains standing in the midst or center, and that is the Son; and the splendour or glance in all the powers goes forth from the Father and the Son, in all the powers of the Father, and forms and images all in the seventh nature-spirit, according to the power and operation of the seven spirits, and according to their distinction and impulse. This is the true Holy Ghost, whom we Christians honor and adore for the third Person in the Deity.

[Aur. 11:39] Thus, O blind Jew, Turk, and Heathen, you see that there are three Persons in the Deity, you cannot deny it, for you live and are or have your being in the three Persons, and you have your life from them and in them, and in the power of these three Persons you are to rise from the dead at the last day, and live eternally.

Note.

[Aur. 11:40] Now if you have lived well and holily in this world, according to the law of nature, and have not extinguished the clear flash, which is the Son of God, which teaches you the law of nature in your seven qualifying or fountain spirits, and have not put it out through a fierce elevation, which runs on contrary to the knowledge of nature, then will you with all Christians live in eternal joy.

What the Law of Nature is.

[Aur. 11:41] (“The law of nature is the divine ordinance out of the center of nature, he that can live therein needs no other law, for he fulfills the will of God.”)

[Aur. 11:42] For it lies not in your unbelief to hinder it; your unbelief does not take away or make void the truth of God: but faith blows up the spirit of hope, and testifies that we are God’s children. The faith is generated in the flash, and wrestles so long with God till it overcomes and gets the victory.

[Aur. 11:43] You judge us, and thereby you judge yourself, in that you blow up the zealous or jealous spirit in anger and wrath, which extinguishes your light. But if you are grown on a sweet tree, and suppress the evil influence or suggestions, and live well and holily in the law of nature, that shows you very well what is right, if you are not indeed grown out from a fierce or wrathful twig or branch.

[Aur. 11:44] (“Here is meant or understood out of or from a quite Godless seed, whereout there often grows a thistle; though yet there were a remedy, if the will were but once broken; but it is a rare and precious thing; however, indeed on a good tree it is often so, that some branches do also wither.”)

Note.

[Aur. 11:45] Moreover, you are blind. For who shall separate you from the love of God, in which you are born or generated, and wherein you live, if you persevere and continue therein till the end? Who shall separate you from God, in whom you have lived here?

[Aur. 11:46] That which you have sown in the ground, that will spring up, be it rye, wheat, barley, tares or thorns; that which is not combustible or capable of the final or last fire, that will not burn at all: But God will not himself corrupt or spoil his good seed, but will husband, till and manure it, that it may bear fruit in the eternal life.

[Aur. 11:47] Seeing then all live and have their being in God, why do the weeds glory and boast against the wheat? Do you think that God is a dissembler, and that he regards or respects any man’s person or name?
Why he only that sins shall be punished.

[Aur. 11:48] What man was the father of us all? Was it not Adam? And when his son Cain lived wickedly before God, why did not his father Adam help him? But here it may be said: 'He that sinneth shall be punished.'

[Aur. 11:49] If Cain had not quenched or extinguished his light, who could have separated him from the love of God?

[Aur. 11:50] So you also, you boast you are a Christian, and know the light, why do you not walk therein? Do you think the name will make you holy? Tarry, Friend, till you come there into the other world, then you will know it by experience. Behold! many a Jew, Turk, and Heathen, who had indeed their lamps well-trimmed and furnished, will sooner enter into the kingdom of heaven than you who boast.

The Prerogative of Christians.

[Aur. 11:51] What prerogative or advantage then have the Christians? Very much; for they know the way of life, and know how they should rise from the fall: But if any will lie still, then he must be thrown into the ditch, and there must perish with all the Godless Heathen.

[Aur. 11:52] Therefore take heed what you do, and consider what you are; you judge others, and are blind yourself.

[Aur. 11:53] But the spirit says you have no cause for it, viz. to judge him who is better than thou: Have we not all one flesh, and our life subsists in God, be it in his love, or in his anger? For what you sow, that you shall reap.

Note.

[Aur. 11:54] God is not the cause thereof that you are lost: For the law to do right or righteousness is written in nature, and you have that very book in your heart.

[Aur. 11:55] You know very well that you should deal well and friendly with your neighbor; also you know well that you should not vilify your own life, that is, you should not bemire and defile your own body and soul, and lay open their shame.

[Aur. 11:56] Surely herein consists the pith and kernel, and the love of God. God does not regard any man's name or birth, but he that moves or acts in the love of God moves in the light, and the light is the heart of God. Now he that sits in the heart of God, who can spew him out from there? No one; for he is begotten or generated in God.

[Aur. 11:57] O you blind, half-dead world, cease from your judging; O you blind Jew, Turk, and Heathen, desist from your calumniating, and submit yourself in obedience to God, and walk in the light, then you will see how you should rise from your fall, and how you should arm yourself in this world against the hellish fierceness and wrath, and how you mayst overcome, and live with God eternally.

[Aur. 11:58] Most certainly there is but one God; but when the veil is put away from your eyes, so that you see and know him, then you will also see and know all your brethren, whether they be Christians, Jews, Turks, or Heathen.

[Aur. 11:59] Or do you think that God is the God of Christians only? Do not the Heathen also live in God, whosoever does right or righteousness God loves and accepts him.

[Aur. 11:60] Or what did you, who are a Christian, know [as to] how God would redeem and deliver you from evil? What friendship and familiarity had you with HIM? or what covenant had you made with HIM, when God caused his Son to become man, or be incarnate, to redeem mankind? Is he only your king? Is it not written, He is the comfort of all the Heathen.\textsuperscript{75}

[Aur. 11:61] Listen, By one man sin came into the world, and pressed through one upon all. And through one came the redemption into the world, and pressed through one upon all.\textsuperscript{76} What therefore lies in any man’s knowledge? No! Indeed, you did not know how God would deal with you, when you were dead in sins.

[Aur. 11:62] Now as sin without distinction reigns through one man over all, so mercy and redemption reign through one over all.

[Aur. 11:63] But unto those Heathen, Jews, and Turks, blindness did befall, yet for all that they stand in an anxious birth, and seek for a rest; they desire grace, though they seek not for it at the right mark, or in the right place or limit: but God is everywhere, and looks upon the ground of the heart.

[Aur. 11:64] But if in their anxious birth the light be generated in them, what are you that judge them?

[Aur. 11:65] Behold! you blind man, I will demonstrate this to you thus: Go into a meadow, there you see several sorts of herbs and flowers; you see some that are bitter, some tart, sweet, sour, white, yellow, red, blue, green, and many various sorts.

[Aur. 11:66] Do they not all grow out of the earth? Do they not stand one by another? Does the one grudge the beauteous form of the other?

[Aur. 11:67] But if one among them lifts up itself too high in its growth, and so withers, because it has not sap enough, how can the earth help it? Does it not afford its sap to that as well as to the others?

[Aur. 11:68] But if thorns grow among them, and the mower comes to reap his crop, he cuts them down together, but he casts out the thorns, and they are to be burnt in the fire; but the various flowers and good crop he gathers, and causes it to be brought into his barn.

[Aur. 11:69] Thus it is also with men, there are diversities of gifts and accomplishments, endowments or aptitudes; one it may be is much lighter or brighter in God than another; but all the while they do not wither in the spirit they are not rejectable; but when the spirit withers, then that is good and useful for nothing but for fuel, and is only as wood for the fire.

[Aur. 11:70] But if the Turks be of an astringent quality, and the Heathen of a bitter, what is that to you? If the light becomes shining in the astringent and bitter qualities, then it gives light also.

[Aur. 11:71] But you are generated in the heat, where the light rises up in the sweet spring or fountain-water; have a care lest the heat burn you; it is time, you would do well to quench that.

Question.

[Aur. 11:72] You say, Is it right then that the Heathen, Jews, and Turks, should persevere in their blindness?

Answer.

[Aur. 11:73] No; but this I say; How can he see, that has no eyes? For what does the poor lay or vulgar man know of the tumults which the priests have in their drunkenness? He goes on in his simplicity, and generates anxiously in his spiritual birth.
Question.

[Aur. 11:74] But then you say, Has God blinded the Turks, Jews, and Heathen? No; but when God kindled the light for them, then they lived after the pleasures, voluptuousness and lusts of their own hearts, and would not be led or directed by the spirit, and so the outward light extinguished.

[Aur. 11:75] But it is not therefore so totally extinguished that it could not be generated in man; for man is out of or from God, and lives in God, be it either in love or in wrath.

[Aur. 11:76] Now if man be in a longing, should he not be impregnated in his longing? And so if he be impregnated once, then he can generate also. But as long as the outward light does not shine to him, therefore he does not know his [man’s] Son, whom he has generated.

[Aur. 11:77] But when the light shall arise on the last Judgment Day, then he will see HIM [Christ].

[Aur. 11:78] Behold, I tell you a mystery: The time is already that the Bridegroom crowns his bride!

[Aur. 11:79] Guess, Friend, where lies the crown? Towards the north; for in the center of the astringent quality the light will be clear and bright.

[Aur. 11:80] But from where comes the Bridegroom? From the midst or center, where the heat generates the light, and goes towards the north into the astringent quality; there the light grows bright.

[Aur. 11:81] What do these towards the south? They are in the heat fallen asleep, but a stormy tempest will awaken them; among these many will be terrified to death.

[Aur. 11:82] Then what do those in the west? Their bitter quality will rub itself with the others, but when they taste the sweet water, then will their spirit be mild and meek.

[Aur. 11:83] But what do these in the east? You are a lofty proud bride from the beginning; the crown was always offered to you from the beginning, but you thought yourself too fair already; you live as the rest do.

Of the Operation and Property of the Divine and Heavenly Nature.

[Aur. 11:84] Now if you will know what kind or manner of nature there is in heaven, and what kind of nature the holy angels have; also what kind of nature Adam had before his fall, and what, properly, the holy, heavenly or divine nature is; then observe the circumstances exactly concerning this seventh qualifying or fountain spirit of God, as follows.

[Aur. 11:85] The seventh qualifying or fountain spirit of God is the qualifying or fountain spirit of nature: for the other six do generate the seventh; and the seventh, when it is generated, is then as it were the mother of the seven, which encompasses the other six, and generates them again: for the corporeal and natural being consists in the seventh.

Of the Word Salitter.

Observe here the Sense.

[Aur. 11:86] The six rise up in a full or a complete birth according to the power and condition of each of them, and when they are risen up, then is their power mingled one in another, and the hardness dries. it [the whole], and is as it were the whole being.

[Aur. 11:87] This corporeal exsiccation or drying, I call in this book the divine SALITTER, for it is therein the seed of the whole Deity, and it is as it were a mother, which receives the seed, and always generates fruit again, according to all the qualities of the seed.
[Aur. 11:88] Now in this rising up of the six spirits, there rises up also the Mercurius, tone or sound of all the six spirits, and in the seventh nature-spirit it subsists as in the mother; and then the seventh generates all manner of fruits and colors, according to the operation of the six.

[Aur. 11:89] “By the word SALTITER, in this book, is understood how, out of the eternal center of nature, the second Principle grows and springs up out of the first, just as the light springs up out of the fire, wherein two spirits are understood, viz. first, a hot, second, an aerial one; whereas in the aerial life the true vegetation or growing consists, and in the fire-life is the cause of the quality.

[Aur. 11:90] “So when it is written, the angels are created out of God, then it is understood or meant out of God’s eternal nature, wherein is understood or meant the seven forms, and yet the divine holy nature is not understood to be in the fire, but in the light.

[Aur. 11:91] “Yet the fire gives or holds forth to us a mystery of the eternal nature, and of the Deity also, wherein a man is to understand two Principles of a twofold source, viz. I. a hot, fierce, astringent, bitter, anxious, consuming one in the fire-source. And out of the fire comes II. viz. the light, which dwells in the fire, but is not apprehended or laid hold on by the fire; also it has another source than the fire has, which is meekness, wherein there is a desire of love, where then, in the love-desire, another will is understood than that which the fire has.

[Aur. 11:92] “For the fire will consume all, and causes a high rising in the source, and the meekness of the light causes entity or substantiality; viz. in the eternal light it causes the water-spirit of eternal life; and in the third principle of this world it causes water, together with the existency or original of the air.

[Aur. 11:93] “Thus the Reader is to understand this book as concerning three Principles or births; viz. one is the original of the eternal nature, in the eternal will or desire of God, which desire drives itself on in great anguish till it comes to the fourth form, viz. to the fire.

[Aur. 11:94] “Wherein the second, which is the light, exists and replenishes the eternal liberty besides or beyond nature, wherein we understand the holy Ternary in the light, without or beyond nature, in the power of the light, in the liberty, as another or second spring or source without being, and yet united with the fire’s nature, viz. as fire and light together in one.

[Aur. 11:95] “The third Principle of this world is generated and created out of the first, that is, magically: As is clearly demonstrated in our second,79 and in our third book,80 unto which this book is only an introduction, and is the first book, which was not sufficiently apprehended by the author at the first time, though it appeared clearly enough, yet all of it could not be conceived; also it was as when a torrent or stormy shower of rain passes over a place, from where vegetation and springing exists; for therein is the seed of the whole Deity.”

[Aur. 11:97] But here you must know that the Deity does not stand still, but works and rises up without intermission, as a pleasant wrestling, moving or struggling.

[Aur. 11:98] Like two creatures which in great love play together, embracing, struggling and wrestling the one with the other; now one is above, by and by the other, and when one has overcome it yields or gives over, and lets the other rise up again.

[Aur. 11:99] You may also understand it thus, as when seven persons had begun a friendly sport and play, where one gets the upper hand above another, and a third comes to help that one which is overcome; and so there is a pleasant friendly sporting among them; whereas indeed they all have one and the same agreement or love-will together, and yet strive and fight or vie one against another in a way of love, in sporting and pastime.

[Aur. 11:100] Thus also is the working of the six spirits of God in the seventh; suddenly one of them has a strong rising up, suddenly another; and thus they wrestle in love one with another.
When the light rises up in this striving, then the Holy Ghost moves in the power of the light, in the play of the other six spirits, and so in the seventh spring up all manner of fruits of life, and all manner of colors and vegetations, or ideas and forms.

Now as that quality is which is strongest, so the body of the fruit is imaged, and the colors also; in this striving or wrestling the Deity forms itself into infinite and unsearchable variety of kinds and manners of images or ideas.

For the seven spirits are the seven head sources or springs, and when Mercurius rises up therein, that stirs all, and the bitter quality moves it, and distinguishes it, and the astringent dries it up.

("Nature and the Ternary are not one and the same; they are distinct, though the Ternary dwells in nature, but unapprehended, and yet is an eternal band, as is plainly unfolded in our second and third books.")

How the Imaging in Nature is in the Seventh Spirit.

The sweet water is the beginning of nature, and the astringent quality draws or attracts it together, that it becomes natural and creatural, to speak in an angelical way.

Now being drawn together, it looks like azure or sky-color blue, but when the light or flash rises up therein, then it looks like the precious jaspis or jasper stone, or as I may call it in my language, a glassy sea, on which the sun shines, and that very clear and bright.

But when the bitter quality rises up therein, then it divides and forms itself, as if it were alive or lively, or as if the life did rise up there, in a greenish flourishing manner and form, like a green flash of lightning, to speak after the manner of men, so that it dazzles a man’s eyes, and blinds him.

But when the heat rises up therein, then the green form inclines to a half red or ruddy form, as when a carbuncle stone shines from the green flash or beam of light.

But when the light, which is the Son of God, shines into this sea of nature, then it gets its yellowish and whitish color, which I cannot compare to anything; you must be content to stay or tarry with this aspect or vision, till you come into the other life.

For this now is the true heaven of nature, which is out of or from God, wherein the holy angels dwell, and out of which they were created in the beginning.

Behold now, when the Mercurius or tone in this nature-heaven rises up, there the divine and angelical joyfulness rises up, for therein rise up forms, imagings, colors and angelical fruits, which blossom curiously, grow, spring, flourish and stand in perfection, as to all manner of bearing or fruit trees, plants and springing growths, of a gracious, comely, lovely, amiable, blessed prospect, vision or sight to be looked upon, with a most delicious, lovely, pleasant smell and taste.

But here I speak with an angel’s tongue, you must not understand it earthly, like unto this world.

It is with Mercurius in this manner or form also. You must not think that there is any hard beating, striking, toning or sounding, or whistling and piping in the Deity, as when one takes a huge trumpet, and blows in it, and makes it to sound.

O no, dear man, you half dead angel, that is not so, but all is done and consists in power; for the divine being stands in power. But the holy angels sing, ring and trumpet forth with clear and shrill sounding; for to that end God has made them out of himself, that they should increase and multiply the heavenly joy: [And therefore were the angels made out of God.]

[Aur. 11:115] Also such an image was Adam, as God created him, before his Eve was made out of him; but the corrupted Salitter did wrestle with the well-spring of life in Adam, till it overcame. And so Adam became weary, which made him fall into a sleep. Here he was undone: And if the Barmhertzigkeit, or the mercy of God, had not come to help him, and made a woman out of him, he would have still continued asleep.

Of this we will speak in its proper place.

[Aur. 11:116] This, as is mentioned above, is that fair, bright and holy heaven, which is thus in the total Deity, and which has neither beginning nor end, where no creature with its sense can reach.

[Aur. 11:117] Yet you should know this, that always in a place now one quality shows itself more powerfully than the others, now the second prevails, now the third, then now the fourth, now again the fifth, now the sixth, then again now the seventh.

[Aur. 11:118] Thus there is an eternal wrestling, working and friendly amiable rising up of love; where then in this rising up the Deity continually shows itself more and more wonderful, more incomprehensible and more unsearchable.

[Aur. 11:119] So that the holy angels cannot sufficiently enough rejoice themselves, nor sufficiently enough converse, walk and most lovingly sport therein, nor sufficiently enough sing that beautiful Te Deum Laudamus, We praise you, O God, as to each quality of the great God, according to his wonderful revelation, and wisdom, and beauty, and fruit, and form.

[Aur. 11:120] For the qualities rise up eternally, and so there is not with them or among them either beginning, middle or end.

[Aur. 11:121] Although I have written here how all is come to be, and how all is framed, formed and imaged, and how the Deity rises up, yet for all that you must not think that it has any rest, ceasing or extinction, and that afterwards it rises up thus again.

[Aur. 11:122] O no: But I must write in part or by pieces, for the Reader’s better understanding, that he might thereby apprehend somewhat, and so attain the sense and meaning thereof.

[Aur. 11:123] Nor must you think that I have climbed up aloft into heaven, and beheld it with my carnal or fleshly eyes. O no; hear me, thou. Half-dead angel, I am as you are, and have no greater light in my outward being than you hast.

How our life is a perpetual warfare with the Devil.

[Aur. 11:124] Moreover, I am a sinful and mortal man, as well as you, and I must every day and hour grapple, struggle and fight with the Devil who afflicts me in my corrupted lost nature, in the fierce or wrathful quality, which is in my flesh, as in all men continually.

[Aur. 11:125] Now I get the better of him, now he is too hard for me; yet for all that he has not overcome or conquered me, though he often gets the advantage over me: For our life is as a perpetual warfare with the Devil.

[Aur. 11:126] (“This strife and battle is about that most high, noble, victorious garland, till the corrupted, perished Adamical man is killed and dead, in which the Devil has an access to man.

[Aur. 11:127] (“Of which the sophister will know nothing; for he is not generated of God, but is born of flesh and blood: and though indeed the birth stands open for and towards him, yet he will not enter; for the Devil withholds him: God blinds none.”)

[Aur. 11:128] If he buffets me, then I must retire and draw back, but the divine power helps me again; then he also gets a blow, and often loses the day in the fight.

[Aur. 11:129] But when he is overcome, then the heavenly gate opens in my spirit, and then the spirit sees the divine and heavenly being; not externally without the body, but in the fountain or well-spring of the heart there rises up the flash in the sensibility or thoughts of the brain, and therein the spirit does contemplate or meditate.

[Aur. 11:130] For man is made out of all the powers of God, out of all the seven spirits of God, as the angels also are. But now seeing man is corrupted, therefore the divine birth does not always spring, qualify or operate in him; no, nor in all men either: And though indeed it springs in him, yet the high light does not presently shine in all men; and though indeed it does shine, yet it is incomprehensible to the corrupted nature.

[Aur. 11:131] For the Holy Ghost will not be caught, held or retained in the sinful flesh, but rises up like a flash of lightning, as fire flashes and sparkles out of a stone, when a man strikes fire upon it.

[Aur. 11:132] But when the flash is caught in the fountain of the heart, then the Holy Ghost rises up in the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, into the brain, like the daybreak, dawning of the day, or morning redness: Therein sticks the mark, aim or scope and knowledge.

[Aur. 11:133] For in that light the one sees the others, feels the others, smells the others, tastes the others, and hears the others, and it is as if the whole Deity did rise up therein.

[Aur. 11:134] Herein the spirit sees into the depth of the Deity; for in God, near and afar off is all one; and that same God, of whom I write in this book, is as well in his Ternary in the body of a holy soul, as in heaven.

[Aur. 11:135] From this God I take my knowledge, and from no other thing, neither will I know any other thing than that same God, and the same it is which makes that assurance in my spirit, that I steadfastly believe and trust in him.

[Aur. 11:136] Though an angel from heaven should tell this [knowledge] to me, yet for all that I could not believe it; much less lay hold on it, for I should always doubt whether it were certainly so or no: But the sun itself arises in my spirit, and therefore I am most sure of it, and I myself do see the proceeding and birth of the holy angels, and of all things both in heaven and in this world.

[Aur. 11:137] For the holy soul is one spirit with God; though indeed it is a creature, yet it is like to the angels: Also the soul of man sees much deeper than the angels; for the angels see only to the heavenly pomp, but the soul sees both the heavenly and the hellish, for it lives between both.

[Aur. 11:138] Therefore it must undergo many hard bangs and pinches, and must every day and hour wrestle and struggle with the Devil, that is, with the hellish qualities,81 and so it lives in great danger in this world; therefore this life is very well called the valley of misery, full of anguish, a perpetual hurly-burly, pulling and haling, worrying, warring, fighting, struggling and striving.

[Aur. 11:139] But the cold and half-dead body does not always understand this fight of the soul: The body does not know how it is with it, but is heavy and anxious; it goes from one room or business to another; and from one place to another; it seeks for ease and rest.

[Aur. 11:140] When it comes there, where it would be, yet it finds no such thing; then doubtfulings and unbelief fall in between and come upon it; sometimes it seems to it as if God had quite cast it off; but it does not understand the fight of the spirit, how the same is sometimes down, and sometimes gets aloft.
[Aur. 11:141] What vehement and furious war and fight there is between the hellish quality and the heavenly, which fire the devils blow up, and the holy angels quench it, I leave to every holy soul to consider of.

[Aur. 11:142] You must know that I write not here as a story or history, as if it were related to me from another, but I must continually stand in that combat or battle, and I find it to be full of heavy strivings, wherein I am often struck down to the ground, as well as all other men.

[Aur. 11:143] But for the sake of the violent fight, and for the sake of the earnestness which we have together, this revelation has been given me, and the vehement driving or impulse to bring it so to pass as to set all this down on paper.

[Aur. 11:144] But what the total sequel is, which may follow upon and after this, I do not fully know: Only sometimes, future Mysteries in the depth are shown to me.

[Aur. 11:145] For when the flash rises up in the center, one sees through and through, but cannot well apprehend or lay hold on it; for it happens to such a one as when there is a tempest of lightning, where the flash of fire opens itself, and suddenly vanishes.

[Aur. 11:146] So it goes also in the soul, when it presses or breaks quite through in its flight or combat, then it beholds the Deity, as a flash of lightning; but the source, quality or fountain of sins covers it suddenly again: For the Old Adam belongs to the earth, and does not, with this flesh, belong to the Deity.

[Aur. 11:147] I do not write this for my own praise, but to that end that the Reader may know wherein my knowledge stands, that he might not seek that from me which I have not, or think me to be what I am not.

[Aur. 11:148] But what I am, that are all men, who wrestle in JESUS CHRIST our King for the crown of the eternal joy, and live in the hope of perfection; the beginning whereof is at the day of the resurrection, which is now shortly near at hand; which, in the circle of the rising or horizon of the east in the flash, is very well to be seen, in which nature shows itself as if it would be day-break.

[Aur. 11:149] Therefore take heed, that you be not found asleep in your sins; truly the prudent and the wise will take notice hereof, but the wicked will continue in their sins.

[Aur. 11:150] They say, What ails the fool, when will he have done with his dreaming? This is because they are asleep in fleshly lusts. Well, well, you shall see what kind of dream this will be.

[Aur. 11:151] I would willingly take ease and rest in my meekness, if I were not put upon this work; but that God who has made the world is too strong for me, I am the work of his hands, he may set me and place me where he will.

[Aur. 11:152] Though I must be a by-word and spectacle of scorn to the world and devils, yet my hope is in God concerning the life to come; in him will I venture to hazard myself, and not resist or strive against the Spirit. Amen.

Of the Nativity and Proceeding forth or Descent of the Holy Angels, as also of their Government, Order, and Heavenly joyous Life.

[Aur. 12:1] “VERBUM Domini, The Word of the Lord, by the Fiat (that is, the saying, Let there be angels), comprised the qualifying or fountain spirits into a will; and that is the creation of the angels.”

Question.

[Aur. 12:2] Now the question is, What is properly an angel? Behold, when God [Schuff] created the angels, then he created them out of the seventh qualifying or fountain spirit, which is nature, or the holy heaven.

[Aur. 12:3] The word Schuff [created] you must understand thus, as when a man says, drawn together, or driven together; as the earth is driven or compacted together: In like manner, when the whole God did move himself, then the astringent quality drew or drove together the Salitter of nature, and dried it, and so the angels came to be: Now such as the quality was in every place, in its moving, such also was the angel.

Observe the Depth.

[Aur. 12:4] There are seven spirits of God, all these seven have moved themselves, and the light therein has moved itself also, and the spirit, which goes forth out of the seven spirits of God, has moved itself also.

[Aur. 12:5] Now the Creator intended, according to his Ternary, to create three hosts, not one from another, but one by another, as in a circle or sphere.

[Aur. 12:6] Now observe: As the spirits were therein in their moving, boiling or rising up, so also were the creatures: In the midst or center of each host was the heart of each host incorporated or compacted together, out of which an angelical or great or chief prince proceeded or came to be.

[Aur. 12:7] And as the Son of God is generated in the midst or center of the seven spirits of God, and is the life and Heart of the seven spirits of God, so there was one angelical king created in the midst or center of his circumference, sphere, extent or region out of nature, also out of nature’s heaven, out of the power of all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, and that now was the heart in one host, and he had in him the quality, might, power and strength of his whole host, and was the fairest among them, or of them all.

[Aur. 12:8] Just as the Son of God is the heart and life and strength of all the seven spirits of God, so also is that one king of angels, in his host.

[Aur. 12:9] And as there are seven principal qualities in the divine power, out of which the Heart of God is generated; so there are also some mighty princely angels created in each host, according to each head or chief quality, the number of which I do not exactly know; and they are with or near the king, and are leaders of the other angels.

[Aur. 12:10] Here you must know that the angels are not all of one quality, neither are they equal or alike to one another in power and might: Indeed every angel has the power of all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, but in every one there is somewhat of one quality more predominant and strong than another, and according to that quality is he also glorified.
[Aur. 12:11] For such as the Salitter was in every place, at the time of creation, such also was the angel that came forth; and according to that quality which is strongest in an angel, he is also named and glorified.

[Aur. 12:12] As [in] the flowers in the meadows, every one receives its color from its quality, and is named also according to its quality, so are the holy angels also: Some are strongest in the astringent quality, and those are of a brownish light, and are nearest of quality to the cold.

[Aur. 12:13] So when the light of the Son of God shines on them, then they are like a brownish or purple flash of lightning, very bright and clear in their quality.

[Aur. 12:14] Some are of the quality of the water, and. those are light, like the holy heaven; and when the light shines on them, then they look like to a crystalline sea.

[Aur. 12:15] Some are strongest in the bitter quality, and they are like a green precious stone, which sparkles like a flash of lightning; and when the light shines on them, then they shine and appear as a greenish red, as if a carbuncle did shine forth from it, or as if the life had its original there.

[Aur. 12:16] Some are of the quality of heat, and they are the lightest and brightest of all, yellowish and reddish; and when the light shines on them, they look like the flash or lightning of the Son of God.

[Aur. 12:17] Some are strongest in the quality of love, and those are a glance of the heavenly joyfulness, very light and bright; and when the light shines on them, they look like light blue, of a pleasant gloss, glance or luster.

[Aur. 12:18] Some are strongest in the quality of the tone or sound, and those are light or bright also; and when the light shines on them, they look like the rising of the flash of lightning, as if something would lift itself aloft there.

[Aur. 12:19] Some are of the quality of the total or whole nature, as a general mixture; and when the light shines on them, they look like the holy heaven, which is formed out of all the spirits of God.

[Aur. 12:20] But the king is the heart of all the qualities, and has his circumference, court, quarters or residence in the midst or center, like a fountain: As the sun stands in the midst among the planets, and is a king of the stars, and the heart of nature in this world, so great also is a Cherubim or king of angels.

[Aur. 12:21] As the six planets with the sun are leaders of hosts, and give up or submit their will to the sun, that it may reign and work in them, so all the angels give up or submit their will to the king, and the princely angels are in council with the king.

[Aur. 12:22] But you must know here that they all have a love-will one to another, none of them grudges the other his form and beauty; for as it goes among the spirits of God, so it goes among these.

[Aur. 12:23] They all have jointly and equally the divine joy, and they equally enjoy the heavenly food, therein there is no difference.

[Aur. 12:24] Only in the colors and strength of power is there a difference, but no difference at all in the perfection; for everyone has in him the power of all the spirits of God; therefore when the light of the Son of God shines on them, then each angel’s quality shows itself by the color.

[Aur. 12:25] I have reckoned up only some few of the forms and colors of them, but there are a great many more that might be written down, which I will omit for brevity’s sake.
For as the Deity presents itself infinitely in its rising up, so there are unsearchable varieties of color and form among the angels: I can show you no right similitude of it in this world, unless it be in a blossoming field of flowers in May, which yet is but a dead and earthly type.

Of the Angelical Joy.

Question.

Now it may be asked, What then is it that the angels do in heaven? Or to what end and purpose has God created them?

Answer.

You may observe this, you greedy, covetous, griping persons, you who in this world seek after pride, state, dignity, honor, fame, glory, power, money and goods, and squeeze out the sweat and blood of the poor, oppressed and distressed, and spend their labors upon your gallantry, bravery and stateliness, and think yourselves better than plain and simple lay, vulgar people, and suppose it is what God has created you for.

Question.

Why has God created angel-princes and not made them all equal, or alike? Behold, God is the God of order; and as it is, and as it goes and moves in his government in himself, that is, in his birth or geniture, and in his rising up, so also is the order of the angels.

Now as there are in him chiefly seven qualities, whereby the whole divine being is driven on, and shows itself infinitely in these seven qualities, and yet these seven qualities are the chief or prime in the infiniteness, whereby the divine birth or geniture stands eternally in its order unchangeably:

And as in the midst or center of the seven spirits of God the heart of life is generated, where the divine joy rises up; thus also is the order of angels.

The angel-princes were created according to the spirits of God, and the Cherubim according to the heart of God: And as the divine being works, so also do the angels.

That quality which rises up in God’s being, and chiefly shows itself in its working, as in the rising up of the tone or tune, or of the divine working, wrestling and fighting, that angelical prince who is most strongly addicted to that quality begins, in his rank or file and round, with his legions, with singing, ringing forth, dancing, rejoicing and jubilating.

This is heavenly music, for here every one sings according to the voice of his quality, and the prince leads the choir or chorus, as a chanter or singing-master with his scholars; and the king rejoices and jubilates with his angels, to the honor of the great God, and to the increasing and multiplying of the heavenly joys, and that is in the heart of God as a holy sport or scene; and to that end also are they created for the joy and honor of God.

Now when the heavenly music of the angel rises up, then in the heavenly pomp, in the divine Salitter, there rise up all manner of vegetations, springings or sprouts, also all manner of figures, shapes or ideas, and all manner of colors; for the Deity presents, shows or discovers itself in endless and unsearchable varieties of kinds, colors, ideas, forms and joys.

Now, that qualifying or fountain spirit in the Deity which does show itself then specially or more distinctly with its rising up and love-wrestling, as if it had become the prince or chief of them, that very angel-prince belonging to it begins instantly his heavenly music with his own legions, according to his quality, with singing, ringing forth piping melody, and in all the manners of heavenly skill and art, which rises up in the spirits of God.
[Aur. 12:37] But when the center in the midst rises up, that is, when the birth or geniture of the Son of God shows itself specially or more distinctly, as a triumph, then there rise up the music, melodies or joys of all the three kingly governments or royal regiments of the whole creation of all the angels.

[Aur. 12:38] What manner of joy this must be, let every soul consider: I, in my corrupted nature, cannot apprehend it, much less can I write it.

[Aur. 12:39] By this song I invite or cite the Reader into the other life; there he himself will also be of that choir or chorus, and then first will he give credit to this spirit. What he does not understand here, that he will there behold [for himself].

[Aur. 12:40] You must know that this is not forged out of a stone; but when the flash rises up in the center, then the spirit sees and knows it.

[Aur. 12:41] Therefore look to it, and be not too scornful in this place, else you will be found a scorner and mocker before God, and then well may you fare as king Lucifer did. Now it may be asked:

What the Angels do when they sing not. What they talk of. Who they are like.

Question.

[Aur. 12:42] What then do the Angels when they sing not? Behold! what the Deity does, that they do also, when the spirits of God lovingly generate one in another, and rise up one in another, as in a loving saluting, embracing, kissing and feeding one another; in which taste and smell the life rises up, and the eternal refreshing; of which you may read before at large.

[Aur. 12:43] Then the holy angels also walk and converse one with another friendly, graciously, amiably and blessedly in the heavenly circumference or region, and do behold the wonderful and pleasant form or prospect of heaven, and eat of the gracious, amiable, blessed and delicate fruits of life. Now you will ask:

Question.

[Aur. 12:44] What do they talk of one with another? Behold! You pompous, stately, lofty and proud man; the world is even too narrow for you here, and you think there is none like you, or equal to you: Bethink yourself in this, whether you have in you the manner, quality or condition of an angel, or of a devil.

Question.

[Aur. 12:45] To whom now shall I liken the Angels? I will liken them to little children who walk in the fields in May, among the flowers, and pluck them, and make dainty garlands and posies, carrying them in their hands rejoicing, and always talk together of the several forms or shapes of beautiful flowers, leading one another by the hand when they go to gather flowers.

[Aur. 12:46] And when they come home, they show them to their parents; and the parents also rejoice in their children, and are merry and cheerful with them.

[Aur. 12:47] So do the holy angels likewise, they take one another by the hand, and walk together in the beautiful May of heaven, and parley or talk of the pleasant and fair spring or fruits in the heavenly pomp, and feed on the delicate, blessed fruits of God, and make use of the beautiful heavenly flowers for their play or sport in their scenes, and make beautiful garlands, and rejoice in the delicious pleasant May of God.
[Aur. 12:48] Here is nothing but a cordial or hearty loving, a meek and gentle love, a friendly, courteous discourse, a gracious, amiable and blessed society, where the one always delights to see the others, and [where they delight] to honor one another.

[Aur. 12:49] They know of no malice, cunning, subtlety or deceit; but the divine fruits and pleasant loveliness are common among them; one may make use of these things as well as the others, there is no disfavor or hatred, no envy, no contrary or opposite will, but their hearts are knit together in love.

[Aur. 12:50] In this the Deity has its highest delight, as parents have in their children, that its dear and beloved children in heaven behave themselves so well and so friendly; for the Deity in itself plays or sports thus also, one qualifying or fountain spirit [springs up] in another.

[Aur. 12:51] Therefore the angels can do no other than their Father does, as also our angelical King JESUS CHRIST testified, when he was with us on earth, as it is written in the Gospel, where he said: Truly the Son can do nothing of Himself; but what he sees his Father do, the Son does also. Also, If you do not convert, and become like children, you cannot come into the kingdom of heaven.

[Aur. 12:52] Whereby he means that our hearts should be knit together in love, as are the holy angels of God, and that we should deal friendly, courteously and kindly one with another, and love one another, and prefer one another in kindness and respect, as do the angels of God.

[Aur. 12:53] Not that we should deceive and belie one another, and tear the morsel out of others’ mouths for very greediness and great covetousness, neither should one outbrave another in stateliness, fashions and deportment, and so despise another who cannot use his bad, devilish, cunning policy and tricks.

[Aur. 12:54] O no! the angels in heaven do not so; but they love one another, and rejoice in the beauty and loveliness of others, and none esteems or accounts himself more excellent than the others; but everyone has his joy in the others, and rejoices in another’s fair beauty, comely form and loveliness, where then their love one towards another rises up, so that they lead one another by the hand, and friendly kiss one another.

Observe the depth.

[Aur. 12:55] As when the flash of life rises up in the center of the divine power, wherein all the spirits of God attain their life, and highly rejoice, there is a loving and holy embracing, kissing, tasting, touching or feeling, hearing, seeing and smelling, so also there is among the angels; when the one sees, hears, feels or touches another, then there rises up in his heart the flash of life, and the one spirit embraces the other, as it is in the Deity.

Observe here the Ground and highest Mystery of God’s Angels.

[Aur. 12:56] If you will now know from where their love, humility and friendliness come, which rise up in their heart, then observe that which follows:

[Aur. 12:57] Every angel is constituted as the whole Deity is, and is as a little god. For when God constituted the angels, he constituted or framed them out of himself.

[Aur. 12:58] Now God is the same in one place as he is in another; God is everywhere the Father, and Son, and Holy Ghost.

[Aur. 12:59] In these three names and powers stand heaven and this world, and all whatsoever your heart can think upon, and though you should draw a little circle, which you can hardly look into, or which you can hardly discern, even less than the smallest point you can imagine, yet even _in that_ is the _whole_ divine power; and the Son of God is generated _therein_, and the Holy Ghost _therein_ goes forth from the Father and the Son; if not in love, then in wrath, as it is written, _With the holy you are holy, and with the perverse you are perverse._\(^95\)

[Aur. 12:60] They who _stir up_ the wrath of God upon themselves, that wrath stands, also in _all_ the spirits of God, in that place where it is awakened, stirred up or _provoked_. On the other side, where the love of God is awakened or stirred up, there it also stands in the _full_ birth or geniture of the _whole_ Deity, of or in the place or thing wherein it is awakened.

[Aur. 12:61] Herein there is _no_ difference, the angels are created, one as well as another, _all_ out of the divine _Salitter_ of the heavenly nature; only this is the difference between them, that when God constituted them, each quality in the great motion stood in the _highest_ geniture or rising up.

[Aur. 12:62] Therefore it is come to pass that the angels are of _various_ and manifold qualities, and have several colors and beauties, and yet all out of or from God.

[Aur. 12:63] Yet _every_ angel has _all_ the qualities of God in him, but one of them is strongest in him, after the same he is named, and in the same he is glorified.

[Aur. 12:64] Now, as the qualities in God _always_ generate, rise up and heartily love the one the other, and the one always gets its _life_ from the other; and as the flash in the sweet water rises up in the heat, from where the life and the joy have their original; so it is also in an angel, his _internal_ birth or geniture is no otherwise than the external, which is without [apart from] him in God.

[Aur. 12:65] As the Son of God, without or distinct from the angels, is generated in the middle or central fountain _spring_, in the heat, in the sweet water, out of or from _all_ the seven spirits of God, and re-enlightens back again all the seven spirits of God, _from which_ they have their life and joy:

[Aur. 12:66] So also, in like manner, the Son of God in an angel is generated in the angel’s middle or central fountain _spring_ of the _heart_ in the heat, in the sweet water, and re-enlightens back again all the seven qualifying spirits of _that_ angel.

[Aur. 12:67] As the Holy Ghost goes forth from the Father and the Son, and forms, images, _figures_ or frames and loves _all_; even so the Holy Ghost goes forth in the angel, _into_ his fellow brethren, and loves them, and rejoices with them.

[Aur. 12:68] For there is no difference between the spirits of God and the angels, but _only this_, that the angels are _creatures_, and their _corporeal_ being has a beginning; but their _power_, out of which they are created, is God himself, and _is_ from eternity, and abides in eternity.

[Aur. 12:69] Therefore their agility is as nimble and swift as the _thoughts_ of a man, wherever they would be, there also they are, instantly; moreover, they can be great or small, as they please.

What Heaven itself is.

[Aur. 12:70] _This is the true being of God in heaven, yea heaven itself_; If your eyes were opened, you would see it plainly and clearly on earth, in _that_ place where you are at present.

[Aur. 12:71] For since God can let the spirit of man see it, which spirit is yet staying in the body, and can reveal or manifest himself to him _in the flesh_, surely he can well do it also when he is out of the flesh, if he pleases.
O you sinful house of this world, how are you encompassed with hell and death; awake, the hour of your regeneration is at hand; the day-break, the day-spring, dawning or morning-redness shows itself!

O you foolish and dead world, why do you require or demand signs and wonders? Is your whole body chilled and benumbed? Will you not awake from sleep?

Behold, a great sign is given you, but you sleep and see it not: Therefore the Lord will give you a sign in his zeal or jealousy, which you have awakened and provoked with your sins.

Of the whole Heavenly Delightfulness and Habitation of all the Three Kingdoms of Angels.

Here the spirit shows that where every angel is constituted, stated or settled, there that place in the heavenly nature, wherein and out of which he is become a creature, is his own seat, which he possesses by right of nature, as long as he abides in God’s love.

For it is the place which he has had from eternity, before he was become a creature, and that Salitter stood in the same place out of which he existed, and therefore that seat remains to him, and is his by right of nature, as long as he moves in God’s love.

But you must not think as if God were tied to it, and cannot or may not expel him from there, if he should move or stir otherwise than God had created, settled or stated him at first.

For as long as he abides in obedience and in love, the place is his, by right of nature; but when he exalts himself and kindles that place in the wrathful fire, then he sets his Father’s house on fire, and becomes a contrary will, or opposite to [against] the place out of which he is made, and makes TWO out of that which was ONE before his exaltation.

Now when he does so, then he keeps his corporeal right of nature to himself, and that place also keeps its own to itself: But seeing the creature, which has a beginning, will oppose or set itself against the first being, which was before the creature was, and which had no beginning, and will needs spoil the place which is none of its making, wherein it was created a creature in the love, and will turn that love into a wrath-fire, then it is only fair that the love should spew up the wrath-fire forth, together with the creature.

From here also the RIGHTS in this world exist, or have their original. For when a son resists his father, and strikes his father, so then he loses his paternal inheritance, and his father may thrust him out of his house; but so long as he continues in obedience to his father, the father has no right, authority or lawful power to disinherit him.

This worldly Right takes its original from heaven; as also many other worldly rights, which are written in the books of Moses, take their beginning and original from the divine nature in heaven, which I shall demonstrate plainly in its due place, from the true ground in the Deity. Now one might object and say:

Objection.

Then an angel is fully bound and tied to that place in which he is created, and must not stir, nor can stir from there. No: As little as the spirits of God are or will be tied in their rising up, that they should not move one among another, so little also are the angels quite [entirely] bound to their place.

For as the spirits of God rise up continually one in another, and have a sport or game of love in their birth or geniture, and yet every spirit keeps his natural seat or place in the birth or geniture of God; wherein it never comes to pass that the heat is changed into the cold, or the cold into the heat, but each keeps its natural place or position, and the one rises up in the other, from where the life has its original.

[Aur. 12:84] So the holy angels move, walk or converse in all the three kingdoms, one among another, whereby they conceive or receive their conceptions, one from the other; that is, from the other’s beauty, comely form, friendliness, courtesy and virtue every one receives his highest joy, and yet each keeps for his own propriety his natural seat or place in which he is become a creature.

[Aur. 12:85] Like one in this world, when he has a dear and near kinsman, who returns home from foreign parts of the world, whom he had a very hearty desire and earnest longing to see, there is joy and friendly saluting, and bidding welcome, also a friendly loving discourse or conference between them, and so he treats this loving and welcome guest in the best manner that he can; yet this is but cold water, in respect of the heavenly.

[Aur. 12:86] Thus the holy angels do one towards another; when the army or company of one kingdom comes to the other, or when the army or company of one princely quality comes to an army or company of another princely quality, there is nothing but mere loving entertainment, saluting and embracing reception; a very gracious, amiable and blessed discourse and friendly respect; a very gracious, amiable, blessed and loving walking and playing together; a most chaste and humble exercise; a friendly kissing, and leading one another up and down: here begins the lovely choir and set dancing.

[Aur. 12:87] Like little children, when they go in May among the flowers, where many often meet together; there they have a friendly talk, and pluck or gather flowers many and diverse.

[Aur. 12:88] Now when this is done, they carry those flowers in their hands, and begin a merry round dance, and sing from the joy of their hearts, and rejoice. Thus also do the angels in heaven, when the foreign armies or companies meet together.

[Aur. 12:89] For the corrupted nature in this world labors in its utmost power and diligence, that it might bring forth heavenly forms, and many times little children might be their parents’ school-masters and teachers, if parents could but understand, or would but take notice of them: But nowadays the corruption is unfortunately with both young and old, and the proverb is verified,

Wie die alten fungen,
So lerneten die Jungen.
As the old ones sing,
So th’ young learn to ring.

[Aur. 12:90] By this high humility of the angels the spirit admonishes the children of this world, that they should view and examine themselves, whether they bear such a love one to another. Whether there be such humility among them. What kind of angels do they think they are. And whether they are like to these or no: They have [or possess] the third angelical kingdom within themselves.

[Aur. 12:91] Behold, the spirit will here present a little before your eyes what manner of love, humility and courteous friendliness there is in you, you fair angelical bride; behold, I pray you, your fair attire, What great joy may your bridegroom take in you, you beloved angel, that dance daily with the devil!
I.

[Aur. 12:92] First, If one be nowadays a little preferred or advanced, and gets but a little while into an office, then others, that are in no preferment, are no more so good as he, or fit for his company; he counts the vulgar or layman his footstool, he instantly endeavors by cunning and craft to get the vulgar or layman’s goods under his disposal; if he cannot compass it by tricks and designs, then he does it by force, to satisfy his high-mindedness.

[Aur. 12:93] If a simple man, that cannot place his words handsomely, comes before him, then he takes him up short, as if he were a dog; and if the man has any business before him, then, in his eyes, only those of worldly esteem are in the right, and he lets them carry the cause, right or wrong: Take heed, Friend, what manner of princely angel indeed you are; you will find it well enough in the following chapter, concerning the fall of the Devil; that will be your looking-glass in which to see yourself.

II.

[Aur. 12:94] Secondly, If one nowadays has learnt more in worldly sciences, or studied more than the vulgar or layman, in an instant no vulgar or layman is to be compared to him, because he [the layman] cannot express himself or speak according to art; nor [or, neither can he] follow the other’s proud ways.

[Aur. 12:95] In brief, the simple plain man must be his fool, whereas he himself is indeed a proud angel, and is in his love but a dead man. This sort of party also will have its looking-glass in the following chapter.

III.

[Aur. 12:96] Thirdly, If one be richer nowadays than the other, then the poorer man is counted the fool; and if he can wear but better and more fashionable clothes or apparel than his neighbor, then the poorer man is no more worthy, or good enough to be in his company.

[Aur. 12:97] And so the old song is nowadays in full force and practice, which is this:

\begin{align*}
\text{Der Reich den Armen zwinget,} \\
\text{Und ihm sein Schwec abdringet,} \\
\text{Dafs nur sein Srosche Rlinget.}
\end{align*}

The rich man does constrain the poor,
And squeezes out his sweat so sore,
That’s own great wealth abroad may roar.

These angels also are invited as guests to the next chapter for their looking-glass in which to see themselves.

IV.

[Aur. 12:98] Fourthly, There is for the generality such a devilish pride and stateliness, and such overtopping one another, such despising, belying, entrapping, circumventing, over-reaching, cheating, deceiving, betraying, extorting usury, coveting, envying, and hating one another, that the world burns now as in the hellish fire: Woe, woe forever!

[Aur. 12:99] O world, where is your humility! Where is your angelical love? Where is your courteous friendliness? At that very instant when the mouth says, God save you! the heart thinks, Yes, beware.

[Aur. 12:100] O you excellent angelical kingdom, how comely dressed and adorned were you once? How has the Devil turned you into a murderous den? Do you suppose you stand now in the flower of your beauty and glory? No! you stand in the midst of hell: If your eyes were but opened, you would see it.

[Aur. 12:101] Or do you think that the spirit is drunken, and does not see you? O, it sees you very well: your shame stands quite naked before God, you are an unchaste, wanton, lascivious woman, and go a whoring day and night, and yet you say, I am a chaste virgin.

[Aur. 12:102] O, how fair a looking-glass are you, in the presence of the holy angels; do but smell your sweet love and humility, does it not smell or savour just like hell? All these parties are invited as guests to the following chapters.

Of the Kingly Primacy, or of the Power and Authority of the Three Angelical Kings.

[Aur. 12:103] As the Deity in its being is threefold, in that the efflux out of the seven spirits of God shows and generates itself as threefold, viz. Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, one God; wherein the whole divine power consists, and all whatsoever is therein; and they are the three Persons in the Deity, and yet are not a divisible being or essence, but in one another as one:

[Aur. 12:104] So also, when God moved himself and created the angels, there came to be three special angels out of the best kernel of nature, out of the being of the Ternary in the nature of God, and in such power, authority and might, as has the Ternary in the seven spirits of God; for the Ternary of God rises up in the seven spirits of God, and is again the life and heart of all the seven spirits.

[Aur. 12:105] Thus also are the three angelical kings risen up, each in the nature of his host or place, and a natural lord of his place over the government of his angels; but the Ternary of the Deity retains to itself that place which is unalterable or unchangeable; and the king retains the dominion of the angels.

[Aur. 12:106] Now, as the Ternary of the Deity is one only being or substance in all parts in the whole Father, and is united together, as the members in man's body, and all places are as one place, though one place may have a different function from the others, as also the members of men have; yet it is the one body of God:

[Aur. 12:107] So also are the three angelical kingdoms united one in another, and not each severed asunder: No angelical king ought to say, This is my kingdom; or that there ought no other king to come thereinto; though indeed it is his first beginning, original and natural inheritance, and remains also to be his: Yet all other kings and angels are his true natural brothers, generated out of or from one Father, and do inherit their Father’s kingdom.

[Aur. 12:108] As the qualifying or fountain spirits of God have each of them the natural seat or possession of its birth or geniture, and retains its natural place to itself, and yet is, together with the other spirits, the one only God; so that if the other were not, that would not be either, and thus also they rise up one in the other:

[Aur. 12:109] So it is also with the chief or principal of the holy angels in his constitution; and is in no other manner than as it is in God; and therefore they live all friendly, peaceably and blessedly one with another in their Father’s kingdom, as loving dear brethren; there are no bounds or bars how far any should go, and how far not.

What the Angels walk upon.

Question.

[Aur. 12:110] Now the simple might ask, Upon what do the angels walk? Or upon what do they stay or set their feet? I will here show you the right ground, and it is no otherwise in heaven than as you here find in the letter, for the spirit looks undisturbed into this depth, also it is very apprehensible.

[Aur. 12:111] The whole nature of the heaven stands in the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, and in the seventh consists nature or the apprehensibility of all the qualities: This now is very lightsome and solid as a cloud, but very transparent and shining, like a crystalline sea, so that a man can see through and through it all: Yet the whole depth upward and downward is wholly thus.

[Aur. 12:112] Now the angels also have such bodies, but more dry and close compacted or incorporated together, and their body also is the kernel of or out of nature, even the best or fairest splendour and brightness of or out of nature.

[Aur. 12:113] Now their foot does stay upon the seventh spirit of God, which is solid like a cloud, and clear and bright as a crystalline sea, wherein they walk upward and downward, which way soever they please. For their agility or nimbleness is as swift as the divine power itself, yet one angel is more swift than another, and that according to the quality of each.

[Aur. 12:114] In that seventh spirit of nature rise up also the heavenly fruits and colors, and whatsoever is apprehensible or comprehensible, and is like to such a form or manner as if the angels did dwell between heaven and earth in the deep, where they ascend and descend, and wherever they are, there their foot rests, as if it stood upon the earth.

[Aur. 12:115] Antiquity has represented the angels in pictures like men with wings, but they have no need of any wings, yet they have hands and feet as men have, but after a heavenly manner and kind.

[Aur. 12:116] At the day of the resurrection from the dead there will be no difference between the angels and men, they will be of one and the same kind of form; which I shall show plainly in its due place; and our King JESUS CHRIST clearly testifies the same, where he says, In the resurrection they are like the angels of God.

Of the great Glory, Brightness and Beauty of the Three Angelical Kings.

[Aur. 12:117] This is the very cudgel or club which is flung at the dog, to make him run away; because of this song lord Lucifer could tear off his beard with regret [and vexation].

Observe here the Depth.

Concerning the King or great Prince

MICHAEL.

[Aur. 12:118] MICHAEL signifies the great strength or power of God, and bears the name operatively, actually and in deed: For he is incorporated or consolidated together out of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, as out of a kernel or seed of them, and stands here now as in the stead of God the Father.

[Aur. 12:119] The meaning is not that he is God the Father, who consists in the seven spirits of the whole deep, and is not creaturely; but the meaning is, that in nature among the creatures there is also such a kind of creature, who is to reign among the creatures, who is like God the Father, as he is in the seven qualifying or fountain spirits.

[Aur. 12:119a.] For when God made himself creaturely, then he made himself creaturely according to his Ternary: and as in God the Ternary is the greatest and chiefest, and yet his wonderful proportion, form and variety cannot be measured, in that he shows himself in his operation so various and manifold; so also has he created three principal angel-princes, according to the highest primacy of his Ternary.

[Aur. 12:120] In accordance with that he created the princely-angels, according to the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, answerable to their quality, viz. GABRIEL, an angel or prince of the tone or sound, or of swift or speedy messages; as also RAPHAEL; and others besides in the kingdom of MICHAEL.

[Aur. 12:121] You must not understand this, as if these royal angels were to rule in the Deity, that is, in the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of God, which are without or distinct from the creatures; no, but each over his creatures, or the creatures of his own dominion.

[Aur. 12:122] For as the Ternary of God reigns over the infinite or endless being, and over the figures and several various forms or ideas in the Deity, and changes, varies and images or frames the same:

[Aur. 12:123] So also are the three angelical kings lords over their angels, even to the heart and deepest ground, though they cannot corporeally or bodily vary or change themselves, as God himself can who has created them; yet they rule them (viz. the angels) corporeally, and are bound or united to them, as body and soul are bound the one to the other.

[Aur. 12:124] For the king is their head, and they are the members of the king; and the qualifying or fountain princely angels are the king’s counselors, or officers in his affairs, like the five senses in man, or as the hands and feet, or the mouth, nostrils, eyes and ears, whereby the king executes or accomplishes his affairs.

[Aur. 12:125] Now as all angels are bound to the king, so is the king also bound to God his Creator, as body and soul; the body signifies God; and the soul signifies the angelical king, who is in the body of God, and is become a creature in the body of God, and abides eternally in the body of God, as the soul does in its nest. And therefore also has God so highly glorified him, as his own propriety, or as the soul is glorified in the body.

[Aur. 12:126] Thus the king or great prince Michael looks like God the Father in his glorification, clarity or brightness, and is a king and prince of God upon the mount of God, and has his office in the deep wherein he is created.

[Aur. 12:127] That circumference or space, region or province, wherein he and his angels are created, is his kingdom, and he is a loving son of God the Father in nature, a creaturely son, in whom the Father delights.

[Aur. 12:128] You must not compare him with the Heart or light of God, which is in the whole Father, which has neither beginning nor end, no more than has God the Father himself.

[Aur. 12:129] For this prince is a creature, and has a beginning, but he is in God the Father, and is bound and united with him in his love, as his dearly beloved son, whom he has created out of himself.

[Aur. 12:130] Therefore he has set upon him the crown of honor, of might, power and authority, so that there is in heaven no higher nor more excellent nor mightier than he is, except God himself in his Ternary. And this is one king, rightly described, with a true ground in the knowledge of the spirit.

Of the Second King LUCIFER, now so called, because of his Fall.

[Aur. 12:131] King LUCIFER, shut your eyes here a little, and stop your ears a little, that you may neither hear nor see, or else you will be horribly ashamed that another sits upon your seat, and so your shame shall be fully discovered yet before the end of the world, which you have kept so closely concealed in secret, and suppressed ever since the beginning of the world, wheresoever you could: I will now describe your kingly primacy, not for you, but for the benefit of man.

[Aur. 12:132] This high and mighty, glorious and beautiful king, lost his right name in his fall: For he is now called LUCIFER, that is, one carried forth or expelled out of the light of God.

[Aur. 12:133] His name was not so at the beginning: for he was a creaturely prince or king of the heart of God in the bright light, even the brightest among the three kings of angels.

Of Lucifer's Creation.

[Aur. 12:134] As Michael is created according to the quality, manner and property of God the Father, so was Lucifer created according to the quality, condition and beauty of God the Son, and was bound to and united with him in love, as a dear son or heart, and his heart also stood in the center of light, as if he had been God himself; and his beauty or brightness transcended all.

[Aur. 12:135] For his circumference, conception or chief mother, was the Son of God, and there he stood as a king or prince of God.

[Aur. 12:136] His court, province, place, region or quarters, wherein he dwelt with his whole army or company, and wherein he is become a creature, and which was his kingdom, is the created heaven and this world, wherein we dwell with our King JESUS CHRIST.

[Aur. 12:137] For our King sits in divine omnipotence, where king Lucifer sat, and on the kingly throne of expelled Lucifer, and the kingdom of king Lucifer is now become HIS: O prince Lucifer, how do you relish that?

[Aur. 12:138] Now as God the Father is bound and united in great love with his Son, so was king Lucifer also bound with king Michael in great love, as one heart or one God, for the fountain or well-spring of the Son of God has reached even into the heart of Lucifer.

[Aur. 12:139] Only, the light which he had in his body, he had for his own propriety, and while it shone with or agreeable to the light of the Son of God, which was externally without or distinct from him, they both qualified, incorporated and united together as one thing, though they were two, yet they were bound or united together, as body and soul.

[Aur. 12:140] And as the light of God reigns in all the powers of the Father, so he also reigned in all his angels, as a mighty king of God, and wore on his head the fairest crown of heaven.

[Aur. 12:141] Here at present I will leave him a little scope, because I shall have so much to do concerning him in the next chapter. Let him make a show a little yet here in the crown, it shall suddenly be plucked away from him.

Of the Third Angelical King, called URIEL.

[Aur. 12:142] This gracious, amiable, blessed prince and king has his name from the light, or from the flash or going forth of the light, which signifies rightly God the Holy Ghost.

[Aur. 12:143] For as the Holy Ghost goes forth from the light, and forms, figures and images all, and reigns in all, such also is the power and gracious, amiable blessedness of a Cherubim, who is the king and heart of all his angels; that is, when his angels do but behold him they are all then infected and touched with the will of their king.
[Aur. 12:144] For as the will of the heart infects and stirs all the members of the body, so that the whole body does as the heart has decreed or concluded; or as the Holy Ghost rises up in the center of the heart, and enlightens all the members in the whole body; so the Cherubim with his whole glance or luster and will infects all his angels, so that they all are together as one body, and the king is the heart therein.

[Aur. 12:145] Now this glorious and beautiful prince is imaged and framed according to the kind and quality of the Holy Ghost, and is indeed a glorious and fair prince of God, and is united with the other princes in love, as one heart.

[Aur. 12:146] These are now the three princes of God in the heaven. And when the flash of life, that is, the Son of God, rises up in the middle or central circle in the qualifying or fountain spirits of God, and shows itself triumphantly, then the Holy Ghost also rises upwards triumphantly: In this rising up the Holy Trinity also rises up in the heart of these three kings, and each of them triumphs also according to his kind and quality.

[Aur. 12:147] In this rising up the armies or companies of all the angels of the whole heaven become triumphant and joyful, and that melodious TE DEUM LAUDAMUS (WE PRAISE YOU O GOD) rises up.

[Aur. 12:148] In this rising up of the heart, the Mercurius in the heart is stirred up or awakened, as also in the whole Salitter of heaven there rises up in the Deity the miraculous, wonderful and fair beautiful imaging of heaven, in several manifold various colors and manners, and each spirit presents itself in its own peculiar form.

The beauty of heavenly forms likened to precious stones.

[Aur. 12:149] I can compare this to nothing, except to the finest of precious stones, such as the ruby, the emerald, the topaz, the onyx, the sapphire, the diamond, the jasper, the jacinth, the amethyst, the beryl, the sardonyx, the carbuncle and the like.

[Aur. 12:150] In such manner and colors the heaven of God’s nature shows or presents itself in the rising up of the spirits of God: Now when the light of the Son of God shines therein, then it is like a bright clear sea of the colors of the above-mentioned precious stones or jewels.

Of the wonderful Proportion, Alteration or Variation, and Rising up of the Qualities in the Heavenly Nature.

[Aur. 12:151] Seeing then the spirit brings into knowledge the form and manner of heaven, I cannot choose but write it thus down, and let his will be done, who will have it so.

[Aur. 12:152] Although the Devil will raise scorners and mockers to vilify it, I do not much regard that; I am satisfied with this gracious, amiable and blessed revelation of God; they may mock so long till they find it by experience with eternal shame, then the fountain of remorse or shame will surely gnaw them.

[Aur. 12:153] Also I have not gone up to heaven, and beheld it with my fleshly eyes, much less has any told it me; for though an angel should come and tell it me, yet I could not apprehend or conceive it without enlightenment from God, much less believe it.

[Aur. 12:154] For I should always stand in doubt, whether it were a good angel sent of God or no, seeing the Devil can transform or clothe himself in the form of an angel of light, to seduce men.
But because it is generated in the center or circle of life, as a bright shining light, like unto the heavenly birth or rising up of the Holy Ghost, with a fiery driving or impulse of the spirit, therefore I cannot resist or withstand it, though the world always make a mock of me for it.

The spirit testifies that there is yet a very little time remaining, and then the flash in the whole circle of this world will rise up, to which end this spirit is a forerunner, Messenger and proclaimer of the day.

Then whatsoever man is not found in the birth of the Holy Ghost at that time, in him the birth will never rise at all, but he abides in the quality or source of darkness, as a dead, hard flint-stone, in which the source or quality of fierceness, wrath and corruption rises up eternally.

There he will be a mocker eternally in the birth of the hellish abomination: for whatsoever quality the tree is of, such also is its fruit.

You live between heaven and hell, into whichever you sow, in that you shall reap also, and that will be your food in eternity: If you sow scorn and contempt, you will also reap scorn and contempt, and that will be your food.

Therefore, O Child of man! have a care, trust not too much upon worldly wisdom, it is blind, and is born blind; but when the flash of life is generated therein, then it is no more blind, but sees.

For Christ says, “You must be born anew, or else you cannot enter into the kingdom of heaven.”

Truly it must be generated in such a manner in the Holy Ghost: which rises up in the sweet spring or fountain-water of the heart, in the flash.

Why Baptism was instituted in Water.

Therefore has Christ ordained or instituted the Baptism or New Birth or Regeneration of the Holy Ghost, in the water, because the birth of the light rises up in the sweet water in the heart.

Which is a very great Mystery, and has been also kept secret from all men since the beginning of the world till now: which I will demonstrate and describe plainly in its due place.

The Form and Posture of Heaven.

When you behold this world you have a type of heaven.

I. The stars signify or denote the angels: for as the stars must continue unaltered till the end of this time, so the angels also in the eternal time of heaven must remain unaltered forever.

II. The elements signify or denote the wonderful proportion, variety, change and alteration of the form and posture of heaven: For as the deep between the stars and earth always alter and change in their form, suddenly it is fair, bright and light, suddenly it is lowery and dark, now wind, then rain, now snow, suddenly the deep is blue or azure, suddenly greenish, by and by whitish, then suddenly again dusky.

How the Wisdom of God is incomprehensible.

Thus also is the change and alteration of heaven into many several colors and forms, but not in such a manner and kind as in this world, but all according to the rising up of the spirits of God, and the light of the Son of God shines therein eternally: But the rising up in the birth differs in the degrees more at one time than at another. Therefore the wonderful wisdom of God is incomprehensible.

[Aur. 12:168] III. The earth signifies or denotes the heavenly nature, or the seventh spirit of nature, in which the ideas or images, forms and colors rise up.

[Aur. 12:169] IV. The birds or fowls, fishes and beasts, signify and denote the several forms or shapes of figures in heaven.

[Aur. 12:170] You are to know this, for the spirit in the flash testifies the same, that in heaven there arise all manner of figures or shapes like the beasts, fowls, birds and fishes of this world, but in a heavenly form or manner, clarity or brightness and kind, as also all manner of trees, plants and flowers.

[Aur. 12:171] But as they rise, so they go away again, for they are not incorporated or compacted together, as the angels are: for these figures are so formed in the birth of the rising qualities, in the spirit of nature or nature-spirit.

[Aur. 12:172] If a figure be imaged in a spirit, so that it subsists; and if another spirit wrestles with this, and gets the better, then it comes to be divided, and indeed changed or altered, all according to the kind of the qualities; and this is in God as a holy sport, play or scene.

[Aur. 12:173] Therefore also the creatures, as beasts, fowls or birds, fishes and worms in this world, are not created to an eternal being, but to a transitory one, as the figures in heaven also pass away.

[Aur. 12:174] This I set down here only for a manuduction or introduction: You will find it described more at large concerning the creation of this world.

Of the terrible, doleful, and lamentable, miserable Fall of the Kingdom of Lucifer.

[Aur. 13:1] I WOULD have all proud, covetous, envious and wrathful men invited to look into this glass, and there they will see the original of their pride, covetousness, envy and wrath, also the issue and final requital or wages thereof.

[Aur. 13:2] The learned have produced many and various monsters concerning the beginning of sin, and original of the Devil, and scuffled one with another about it; every one of them thought he had the axe by the handle, yet it continued hidden from them all till this very time.

[Aur. 13:3] But since it will henceforth be fully revealed, as in a clear looking-glass, therefore it may well be supposed or expected that the great day of the revelation, of God is now near at hand, wherein the fierceness and the kindled fire will be separated from the light.

[Aur. 13:4] Therefore let none make himself stark blind, for the time of the restitution of whatsoever man has lost is now near at hand: the day dawns, or the morning-redness breaks forth; it is high time to awake from sleep.

What the fountain of the First Sin of the Angels is.

Question.

[Aur. 13:5] Now it may be asked, What is the source or fountain of the first sin of Lucifer’s kingdom? Here we must again take in hand the highest depth of the Deity, and see out of what king Lucifer became a creature, or what was the first source or fountain of evil or malice in him.

[Aur. 13:6] The Devil and his crew continually excuse themselves, and so do all wicked men who are begotten in corruption, saying, God does them wrong in thrusting them out or rejecting them.

[Aur. 13:7] Nay, this present world does dare to say that God has decreed or concluded it so in his predestinate purpose and council that some men should be saved, and some should be damned; and they say, to that end also God has rejected prince Lucifer, that he should be a spectacle of God’s wrath.

[Aur. 13:8] As if hell, or malice and evil, had been from eternity, and that it was in God’s predestinate purpose that creatures should and must be therein; and so they pull and hale and bestir themselves to prove it by Scripture, though indeed they have neither the knowledge of the true God, nor the understanding of the Scriptures, though also some erroneous things are brewed from the Scriptures.

[Aur. 13:9] Christ says, The Devil was a Murderer and liar from the beginning, and did not stand in the truth. But seeing these justifiers and disputers assist the Devil so steadfastly, and pervert God’s truth, and change it into lies, in that they make of God a thirsty and fierce wrathful devil, and such a one as has created and still wills evil, so all of them, together with the Devil, are jointly murderers and liars.

[Aur. 13:10] For as the Devil is the founder and father of hell and damnation, and has himself built and prepared for himself the hellish quality to be his royal seat, so also such writers and scribblers are the master-builders of lies and damnation, who help to confirm and establish the Devil’s lies, and to make of the merciful, loving and friendly God, a murderer and furious destroyer, and so pervert and turn the truth of God into lies.

[Aur. 13:11] For God says in the Prophet, As true as I live, I have no delight or pleasure in the death of a sinner, but that he turn and live;\(^{107}\) and in the Psalms it is thus, You are not a God that has pleasure in wickedness.\(^{108}\)

[Aur. 13:12] Besides, God has given laws to man, and has forbidden the evil, and commanded the good. Now if God would have the evil, and also the good, then he would be at odds with himself, and it would follow that there would be destruction or destructiveness in the Deity, one quality running counter against the other, and the one spoiling and corrupting the other.

[Aur. 13:13] Now how all this is come to pass, or how wickedness has taken its first source, original and beginning, I will declare in the highest simplicity in the greatest depth.

[Aur. 13:14] To which end the spirit invites and cites, summons or warns all men that are seduced into errors by the Devil, that they come and present themselves before the looking-glass of this school, wherein they shall see and inspect the murderous devil, even into his very heart.

[Aur. 13:15] Then he that will not take heed and beware of his lies, while he may very well do it, there is no remedy for him neither here nor hereafter: he that sow and will sow with the Devil, must reap with the Devil also.

[Aur. 13:16] In the center of the flash it is shown that the harvest is white already, wherein every one will reap what he has sown.

[Aur. 13:17] Here, my entrusted talent, which I have received, I will let out for interest, profit and increase, as I am commanded to do, and he that will deal with me in this way of gain or usury, it shall be free for him, he may freely do it, whether he be a Christian, a Jew, a Turk or a Heathen; it is all the same to me; my warehouse shall stand open for everyone, none shall be tricked or deceived, but shall be dealt with in all fairness.

[Aur. 13:18] Everyone should here have a care to deal so well that he bring in some gain of use-money for his Master: for I am afraid that not every merchant will be fitted to deal with my wares; for to some they will be very strange and uncouth; neither will every one understand my language.

[Aur. 13:19] I would therefore have every one warned that he deal circumspectly and warily, and not be conceited that he is rich, and cannot grow poor; truly I have very admirable and wonderful wares to sell, everyone will not have understanding and skill to know what to do with them.

[Aur. 13:20] Now if anyone should in drunkenness or fullness fall upon them, and plunge himself into perdition, let him bear his own blame; he has need of a light in his heart, that his understanding and mind may be well governed.

[Aur. 13:21] Else let him forbear to come into my warehouse, or he will but deceive his own expectation; for the ware which I have to sell is very precious and dear, and requires a very sharp and acute understanding: Therefore have a care, and do not climb aloft where you see no ladder is, else you will fall.

[Aur. 13:22] But to me is shown the ladder of Jacob, upon which I am climbed up, even into heaven, and have received my ware, to offer for sale: Therefore if anyone will climb up after me, let him take heed that he be not drunken, but he must be girt with the sword of the spirit.
For he must climb through a horrible deep, a giddiness will frequently come into his head; and besides, he must climb through the midst or center of the kingdom of hell, and there he will feel by experience what a deal of scoffings and upbraidings he must endure.

In this combat I had many hard trials to my heart's grief: My sun was often eclipsed or extinguished, but did rise again; and the oftener it was eclipsed or put out, the brighter and clearer was its rising again.

I do not write this for my own praise, but that if it go so with you, you should not despair about it; for there belongs and is requisite a mighty enduring hard labor and stoutness, for him that fights with the Devil, between heaven and hell; for the Devil is a potent prince.

Therefore have a care that you put on the coat of mail or habergeon of the spirit, else do not venture to come near my warehouse, or you will deal wrongfully [evilly] with my wares.

You must renounce the Devil and the world, if you will enter into this fight, else you will not overcome: But if you overcome not, then let my book alone, and meddle not with it, but stick to your old matters, else you will receive but evil wages for your pains: Be not deceived, God will not be mocked.

Truly it is a narrow and strait passage or entrance, through the gates of hell, for them that will press in to God; they must endure many pangs, crushings and squeezings from the Devil.

For the human flesh is very young and tender, and the Devil is rough and hard, also dark, hot, bitter, astringent and cold, and so these two are very ill matched.

Therefore I seriously exhort the Reader, and would have him faithfully warned, as it were with a Preface to this great Mystery, that if he do not understand it, and yet longs and would fain have the meaning or understanding thereof, that he would pray to God for his Holy Spirit, and that he would enlighten him with the same.

For without the illumination thereof you will not understand this Mystery; for there is a strong lock and bar before it in the spirit of man, that must be first unlocked or opened; and that, no man can do, for the Holy Ghost is the only key to do it withal.

Therefore if you will have an open gate into the Deity, then you must move, stir and walk in God's love; this I have set down here for your consideration.

Now observe:

Every angel is created in the seventh qualifying or fountain spirit, which is NATURE, out of which his body is compacted or incorporated together, and his body is given him for a propriety, and the same is free to itself, as the whole Deity is free.

He has no impulse or driving, without or distinct from himself; his impulse and mobility stands in his body, which is of such a kind and manner as the whole God is; and his light and knowledge, as also his life, is generated in that manner as the whole divine being is generated.

For the body is the incorporated or compacted spirit of nature, and encompasses or encloses the other six spirits; these generate themselves in the body, just as it is in the Deity.

Now Lucifer had the fairest, most beautiful and most powerful body in heaven, of or among all the princes of God, and his light, which he has, and which is continually generated in his body, that [light] has incorporated itself with the Heart or Son of God, as if they were one thing.
[Aur. 13:37] But when he saw that he was so fair and beautiful, and found or felt his inward birth and great power or authority, then his spirit, which he had generated in his body, and which is his ANIMAL (or animated) or life-spirit, or son or heart, exalted itself, intending to triumph over the divine birth, and to lift up or extol itself above the Heart of God.\textsuperscript{114}

_Here observe the Depth._

[Aur. 13:38] In the middle or central fountain or wellspring, which is the heart, where the birth rises up, the astringent or harsh quality rubs itself with the bitter and the hot; and there the light kindles, which is the son, and of the son the light is always impregnated in its body, and that enlightens and makes it living.

[Aur. 13:39] Now that light in _Lucifer_ was so fair, bright and beautiful, that he _excelled_ the bright form of heaven, and in that light was perfect understanding; for all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits generate that same light.

[Aur. 13:40] But now the seven qualifying or fountain spirits are the father of the light, and may permit or suffer the birth of as much light as they please; and the light cannot exalt or raise itself higher than the qualifying or fountain spirits will permit or give it leave.

[Aur. 13:41] But when the light is generated, then it enlightens all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, so that all seven are [become] understanding, and all seven do give their will to the birth of the light.

[Aur. 13:42] But now, everyone has power and might to _alter_ its will in the birth of the light, according as there is need: Now if that be so, then the spirit cannot triumph thus, but must lay down its splendour.

[Aur. 13:43] Therefore it is that all seven spirits are in full power, every one of them has the reins in its hand, that it may hold in and check the generated spirit from triumphing any higher than is fit for it.

[Aur. 13:44] But the seven spirits, which are in an angel, and which generate the light and understanding, are bound and united with the _whole_ God, that they should not qualify any other way, either higher or more vehemently, than God himself; but that there should be one and the same manner and way between them both.

[Aur. 13:45] Seeing they are but a part or piece of the whole, and not the whole itself, for God has therefore created them out of _himself_, that they should qualify, operate or act in such a manner, form and way as God himself does.

[Aur. 13:46] But now the qualifying or fountain spirits in _Lucifer_ did not so; but they, seeing that they sat in the highest primacy or _rank_, moved themselves so hard and strongly that the spirit which they generated was very fiery, and climbed up in the fountain of the heart, like a proud damsel or virgin

[Aur. 13:47] If the qualifying or fountain spirits had moved, qualified or acted gently and lovely, as they _did_ before they became creaturely (as they were _universally_ in God, before the creation), then had they generated also a gentle, lovely, mild and meek son in themselves, which would have been _like_ to the Son of God; and then the light in _Lucifer_ and the light of the Son of God had been _one_ thing, one qualifying, operating, acting and affecting, one and the same lovely kissing, embracing and struggling.

[Aur. 13:48] For the great light, which is the Heart of God, would have _played_ meekly, mildly and lovingly with the _small_ light in _Lucifer_, as with a young son, for the _little_ son in _Lucifer_ should have been the dear _little_ brother of the Heart of God.
To this end God the Father has created the angels, that as he is manifold and various in his qualities, and in his alteration or variegation is incomprehensible in his love-play, so the little spirits also, or the little lights of the angels, which are as the Son of God, should play or sport very gently or lovely in the great light before the Heart of God, that the joy in the Heart of God might here be increased, and that so there might be a holy sport, scene or play in God.

The seven spirits of nature in an angel should play and rise up gently in God their Father, as they had done before their creaturely being, and rejoice in their new-born son, which they have generated out of themselves, which is the light and understanding of their body.

The seven spirits of nature in an angel should play and rise up gently in God their Father, as they had done before their creaturely being, and rejoice in their new-born son, which they have generated out of themselves, which is the light and understanding of their body.

That light should rise very gently or mildly in the Heart of God, and rejoice in the light of God, as a child with its mother; and so there should be a hearty loving and friendly kissing, a very meek and pleasant taste or relish.

In this the tone should rise up and sound, with singing and ringing forth, in praising and jubilating: also all the qualities should rejoice therein, and every spirit should exercise or practice its divine work or labor, as God the Father himself does.

For the seven spirits had this in perfect knowledge, for they were united and actuated with God the Father, so that they could all see, feel, taste, smell and hear what God their Father did, or wrought and made.

But when they elevated themselves in a sharp or strong kindling, then they did against nature’s right otherwise than God their Father did, and this was a stirring quality or rising up against or contrary to the whole Deity.

For they kindled the Salitter of the body, and generated a high triumphant son, which in the astringent quality was hard, rugged or rough, dark and cold, and in the sweet was burning, bitter and fiery; the tone was a hard fiery noise; the love was a lofty enmity against God.

Here now stood the kindled bride in the seventh nature-spirit, like a proud beast; now she supposed she was beyond or above God, nothing was like her now: Love grew cold, the Heart of God could not touch it, for there was a contrary will or opposition between them. The Heart of God moved very meekly and lovingly, and the heart of the angel moved very darkly, hard, cold and fiery.

The Heart of God should now unite and qualify with the heart of the angel, but that could not be; for there was now hard against soft, and sour against sweet, and dark against light, and fire against a pleasant gentle warmth, and a hard knocking or rumbling against a loving melodious song.

Where the fault lies, that Lucifer is become a Devil.

Question.

Hear me, Lucifer, Where lies the fault now, that you are become a devil? Is God in fault, as you lyingly say? O no, you yourself are faulty, the qualifying or fountain spirits in your body, which you yourself are, have generated you such a little son: You cannot say that God has kindled the Salitter out of which he made you, but your qualifying or fountain spirits have done it; whereas you were clearly before a prince and a king of God.

Therefore, when you say God created you thus, or that he has without sufficient cause spewed you up out of your place, then are you a liar and murderer; for the whole heavenly host or army bears witness against you, that you have yourself erected and prepared this fierce quality for yourself.
[Aur. 13:60] If it be not so, then go before the face of God, and justify yourself. But you see it plain enough without that; and besides, you dare not look on that matter: Would not you fain have a friendly kiss of the Son of God, that you might once be eased or refreshed? If you are in the right, then do but once look upon HIM: Perhaps you may be made sound or whole again.

[Aur. 13:61] But stay a little, another sits on your throne, he is kissed, and he is an obedient son to his Father, and does as the Father does.

[Aur. 13:62] Stay yet a little while, and the hellish fire will kiss you; in the meanwhile make much of this Latin, till more grows out of it; you will suddenly lose your crown. Now one might ask,

What then, in Lucifer, is properly that Enmity against God, for which he was thrust and driven out of his Place?

[Aur. 13:63] Here I will show you exactly the pith, kernel and heart of Lucifer, and then you will see what a devil is, or how he is become a devil. Therefore take heed, and do not invite or entertain him as a guest, for he is the arch-sworn enemy of God, and of all angels and men, and that in his eternity.

[Aur. 13:64] Now if you understand and apprehend this aright, then you will not make of God a devil, as some do, who say, God has created the evil, and that his will is that some men should be lost; which men, that say so, help to increase the Devil’s lies, and bring upon themselves the severe judgment, by their perverting God’s truths, and so turning them into lies.

Now observe:

[Aur. 13:65] The whole Deity has in its innermost or beginning birth, in the pith or kernel, a very tart, terrible sharpness, in which the astringent quality is a very horrible, tart, hard, dark and cold attraction or drawing together, like winter, when there is a fierce, bitter, cold frost, when water is frozen into ice, and besides it is very intolerable.

[Aur. 13:66] Then think or suppose, if in such a hard winter, when it is so cold, the sun should be taken away, what kind of hard frost, and how very rough, fierce and hard darkness would it be, wherein no life could subsist.

[Aur. 13:67] After such a manner and kind is the astringent quality in the innermost kernel or pith in itself, and to itself alone, without the other qualities in God; for the austereness or severity makes the attraction or drawing together, and fixation or glutinousness of the body, and the hardness dries it up, so that it subsists as a creature.115

[Aur. 13:68] And the bitter quality is a tearing, penetrating and cutting bitter quality or source: for it divides and drives forth from the hard and astringent quality, and makes the mobility.

[Aur. 13:69] Between these two qualities is heat generated from its hard and fierce bitter rubbing, tearing and raging, which rises up in the bitter and hard quality, as a fierce wrathful kindling, and presses quite through, as a hard fiery noise.

[Aur. 13:70] From where exists the hard tone, and in that rising up or climbing, it is environed and fixed in the astringent quality, so that it becomes a body which subsists.

[Aur. 13:71] Now if there were no other quality in this body, which could quench the fierceness of these four qualities, then there would be a perpetual enmity therein. For the bitter would be against the astringent, in that it storms or tears so vehemently therein, and breaks open the astringent.
Then the astringent also would be against the bitter, in that it attracts, draws together and holds fast the bitter captive, that it could not have its own course.

The heat would be against both, in that with its fierce, wrathful kindling and rising up it makes all hot, burning and raging, and is fully or totally against the cold.

So the tone would be a great enmity in all the others, in that it penetrates forcibly through all, like a tyrant.

Thus, this is the very deepest and innermost hidden birth of God, according to which he calls himself an angry zealous or jealous God, as may be seen by the Ten Commandments on mount Sinai.

In this quality stands hell and eternal perdition, as also the eternal enmity and murderous den, and such a creature the Devil is come to be.

But now, seeing he is a sworn arch-enemy of God, and though indeed the disputants and helpers of the Devil will needs force it so in arguments (that God wills the good and also the evil, and that he has created some men to damnation), therefore and thereupon the spirit of God cites them, upon pain of eternal enmity, to come before this looking-glass, wherein their heart shall be laid open; and they shall see what God is, and who the Devil is, or how he is become a devil.

If your heart be not bolted and barred up in death, through your stubborn, willfulness and blasphemy, and drowned in horrible sins, purposing not to desist from them, or leave them, then awake, and behold; I take heaven and earth, also the stars and elements, and all the creatures, and man himself also in his whole substance, to witness, and so I will prove it also plainly and clearly in its due place, with all these fore-mentioned things, especially when we come to treat of the creation of all the creatures.

If these things will not give you satisfaction, then pray to God that he would open your heart, and then you will know and see heaven and hell, as also the whole Deity with all its qualities; and then no doubt you will forbear, and justify the Devil no more: I am not able to open your heart for you.

The true Birth or Geniture of God.

Behold, as I have mentioned above, the birth or geniture of God in its innermost being, in these four qualities, is thus sharp or tart.

You must understand it exactly.

The astringent quality is thus sharp in its own proper quality in itself, but it is not alone, or without the others; neither is it generated of or in itself, as being wholly free, but the other six spirits generate it, and they also hold it by the reins, and may let their reins and authority go as far only as they please.

For the sweet spring or fountain-water is suddenly a whip, scourge or lash upon the astringent quality, and mitigates, softens or supplies it, so that it grows very thin, gentle, mild and soft, as also very bright.

But that it is thus sharp in itself, is to the end that a body may be imaged or framed through its attracting or drawing together, otherwise the Deity would not subsist, much less a creature.

In this sharpness God is an all-comprehensible, and all-fixing or all-fastening sharp God: for the birth, geniture and sharpness of God is thus everywhere.
But if I should describe the Deity in its birth or geniture in a small round circle, in the highest depth, then it is thus:

In a Similitude.

Suppose a WHEEL standing before you, with seven wheels one so made in the other that it could go on all sides, forward, backward and cross ways, without need of any turning back or stopping.

In its going, that always-one wheel, in its turning about, generates the others, and yet none of them vanish out of sight, but that all seven be visible or in sight.

The seven wheels always generating the naves in the midst or center according to their turning about, so that the nave stand always free without alteration or removing, whether the wheels go forward or backward or cross ways or upward or downward.

The seven naves in the midst or center being as it were one nave, which does fit in all the seven wheels: This is the heart or innermost body of the wheels, wherein the wheels run about, and that signifies the Son of God.

For all the seven spirits of God the Father generate continually in their circle, and that is the Son of all the seven spirits, and all those qualify or act in his light, and [the Son] is in the midst or center of the birth, and holds together all the seven spirits of God, and they in their birth turnabout therewith thus.

That is, they climb either upward or downward, backward or forward, or crossways, and so the Heart of God is always in the midst or center, and fits itself to every qualifying or fountain spirit.
[Aur. 13:97] Thus there is one Heart of God, and not seven, which is always generated from all the seven, and is the heart and life of all the seven.

[Aur. 13:98] Now the spokes, which are always generated from the naves and wheels, and which fit themselves to all the wheels in their turning, and are their root, stay and fastening in which they stand, and out of which they are generated, signify God the Holy Ghost, which goes forth from the Father and the Son, even as the spokes go out from the nave and wheel, and yet abide also in the wheel.

[Aur. 13:99] Now as the spokes are many, and go always about with and in the wheel, so the Holy Ghost is the workmaster in the wheel of God, and forms, images and frames all in the whole or total God.

[Aur. 13:100] Now this wheel has seven wheels one in another, and one nave, which fits itself to all the seven wheels, and all the seven wheels turn on that one nave: Thus God is one God, with seven qualifying or fountain spirits one in another, where always one generates the others, and yet is but one God, just as these seven wheels are but one wheel.

Now observe:

[Aur. 13:101] The wheel in its incorporated structure and frame signifies the astringent quality, which attracts or draws together the whole corporeal being of the Deity, and holds it, and dries it, so that it subsists.

[Aur. 13:102] The sweet spring or fountain-water is generated by the driving about or rising up of the spirits, for when the light is generated in the heat, then the astringent quality is amazed or terrified for great joy, and this is a submitting or lying down or growing thin, and the hard corporeal being sinks down like a meekness or mildness.

[Aur. 13:103] Now the terror or the glance of the light rises up in the astringent quality very gently and shivering, and trembles, which now in the water is bitter, and the light dries it, and makes it friendly and sweet.

[Aur. 13:104] Therein stands life and joy; for the terror or flash rises up in all the qualities, like the wheel before mentioned which turns about, and then there all the seven spirits rise up one in another, and generate themselves, as in a circle, and the light is shining in the midst or center of the seven spirits, and re-shines back again in all the spirits, and all the spirits triumph therein, and rejoice in the light.

[Aur. 13:105] As the seven wheels turn about upon one nave, as upon their heart, which holds them, and they hold the nave, so the seven spirits generate the heart, and the heart holds the seven spirits, and so there arise voices, and divine joyfulness of hearty loving and kissing.

[Aur. 13:106] For when the spirits with their light move or boil, turn about and rise one in another, then the life is always generated; for one spirit always affords to the others its taste or relish, that is, it is affected by the others.

[Aur. 13:107] Thus one tastes and feels another, and in the sound one hears another, and the tone presses forth from all the seven spirits towards the heart, and rises up in the heart in the flash of the light, and then rise up the voices and joyfulness of the Son of God; and all the seven spirits triumph and rejoice in the Heart of God, each according to its quality.

[Aur. 13:108] For in the light in the sweet water all astringency and hardness and bitterness and heat are mitigated and made pleasant, and so there is in the seven spirits nothing else but a pleasant striving, struggling and wonderful generating, like a divine holy sport or scene of God.
[Aur. 13:109] But their sharp or tart birth, of which I have written above, abides hidden as a kernel, for it becomes mitigated by the light and the sweet water.

[Aur. 13:110] Just as a sour bitter green apple is forced by the sun, that it becomes very pleasant or lovely to be eaten, and yet all its qualities are tasted; so the Deity keeps its qualities also, but strives or struggles gently, like a pleasant lovely sport or scene.

[Aur. 13:111] But if the qualifying or fountain spirits should extol or lift up themselves, and penetrate suddenly one into another, driving hard, rubbing and thronging, crowding or squeezing, then the sweet water would be squeezed out, and the fierce heat would be kindled, and then would rise up the fire of the seven spirits, as it did in Lucifer.

The Eternal Geniture of the Deity.

[Aur. 13:112] This is now the true birth or geniture of the Deity, which has been so from eternity in all corners and places whatsoever, and abides so in all eternity.

[Aur. 13:113] But in the kingdom of Lucifer, the Destroyer, it is otherwise, as I have written above concerning the fierceness; and in this world, which is now half kindled also, it is likewise after another manner, and will be so till the day of the restitution; of which I shall write when I treat concerning the creation of this world.

[Aur. 13:114] Now in this glorious, lovely and heavenly Salitter or divine qualities, the kingdom of Lucifer also was created without any greater motion than in the others.

[Aur. 13:115] For when Lucifer was created, he was altogether perfect, and was the fairest prince in heaven, adorned and endued with the fairest clarity or brightness of the Son of God.

[Aur. 13:116] But if Lucifer had been spoiled or destroyed in the moving of the creation, as he pretended, then he had never had his perfection, beauty and clarity, but would have been presently a fierce dark devil, and not a Cherubim.

Of the glorious Birth and Beauty of King Lucifer.

[Aur. 13:117] Behold, you murderous and lying spirit! Here I will describe your royal birth, how you were in your creation, how God created you, and how you became so beautiful, and to what end God created you.

[Aur. 13:118] If you say any other thing than this, which heaven and earth and all the creatures testify, then you lie; nay, the whole Deity testifies against you, that God created you for his praise out of himself, to be a prince and king of God, as he did prince Michael, and prince Uriel.

Now observe:

[Aur. 13:119] When the Deity moved itself to creation, and would form, image or frame creatures in its body, it kindled not the qualifying spirits, else they would have burnt eternally, but it stirred them very gently or softly in the astringent quality.

[Aur. 13:120] That drew or attracted the divine Salitter together, and dried it, so that it became a body, and so the whole divine power of all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of that place or room, as far as that of the angels reached, was captivated in the body, and became the propriety of the body, which neither can nor will be destroyed again in eternity, but will remain the body’s propriety or proper own in eternity.

[Aur. 13:121] Now the captivated or incorporated power of all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits had its propriety in the body, and is risen in the body, and has generated itself in the same manner as the whole Deity generates itself from all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits.
One quality has always generated the others alike, and none of them have vanished or gone out of sight, just as it is in the whole God; and then the whole body, as it is also in the Ternary, generated itself just as the Deity generates itself, without or distinct from the body in the Ternary.

But this I must mention here, viz. that Lucifer, the king, was incorporated together out of his whole kingdom, as the heart of the whole place or room thereof, so far as his whole angelical host or army reached when it was created, and so far as that circumference or circle, region or quarter reached, wherein he with his angels became a creature, and which God before the time of creation had enclosed or concluded as a room or space for a kingdom, whose circuit or extent comprehends heaven and this world, as also the deep of the earth, and of the whole circle, sphere or circumference of this whole world of the heavens and stars.

According to the qualities were his qualifying or fountain princes created, which are his kingly counselors, and so also were all his angels created.

Yet you are to know that every angel has all the seven spirits in him, but one of the seven is chief or principal.

Now behold!

When the king was thus incorporated or compacted together, as one comprehending his whole kingdom, then instantly, the same hour, and in the same moment, when he was incorporated or compacted together, the birth of the Holy Trinity of God, which he had for a propriety in his body, rose up and generated itself without, distinct from the creature, in God. ("Understand, for a propriety in the liberty, not essentially, but as the fire shines forth or glows through the iron that is flaming hot, and the iron remains iron still; or as the light replenishes or fills the darkness, the dark source or quality being changed into light, and so becomes joyful, and yet in the center remains a darkness, which is understood to be nature; for a spirit is replenished only with the Majesty.")

For in the driving together of the body, presently likewise rose up the birth also in great triumph, as in a new-born king, in God; and all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits showed themselves very joyful and triumphing.

And instantly, in the same moment, the light was generated and rose up out of the seven spirits in the center of the heart, as a new-born son of the king, which also instantly, in a moment, transfigured the body of all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits from the center of the heart; and externally from without the light of the Son of God transfigured it.

For the birth of the new son in the heart of Lucifer also penetrated through the whole body, and was glorified from the Son of God, which was without, distinct from the body, and was in a friendly manner welcomed with the greatest beauty of heaven, according to the beauty of God the Son, and it was to him as a loving heart or propriety, with which the whole Deity qualified or operated.

Then instantly the spirit of the new-born son in the heart also went forth from the light of Lucifer through his mouth, and united, qualified or co-operated with the Holy Spirit of God, and was with highest joy received and embraced, as a dear little brother.

Now here stands the beauteous bride: what shall I write of her now? Was she not a Prince of God, as also the most beautiful, moreover, in God’s love also, and as a dear son of the creatures?
Of the horrible, proud, and therefore doleful lamentable Beginning of Sin.

Observe here:

[Aur. 13:132] When king Lucifer was thus fairly, gloriously, beauteously, highly and holily framed or built, he should surely have now begun to praise, honor and magnify his Creator; and should do that which God his Creator does.

[Aur. 13:133] Viz. God his Creator qualifies or operates very meekly, lovingly and joyfully, and one qualifying or fountain spirit of God always loves the other, and infects itself with the other, and always helps the other to image, form and frame all in the heavenly pomp.

[Aur. 13:134] Whereby in the heavenly pomp such fair beauteous forms, ideas, figures and vegetations always spring up, as also various colors and fruits; and this the qualifying or fountain spirits of God do in God, as a holy play, sport or scene.

Now behold!

[Aur. 13:135] Seeing then God had incorporated or compacted together out of himself eternal creatures, they should not qualify or operate in the heavenly pomp in such a way and manner as to be like God himself.

[Aur. 13:136] No, by no means; for they were not thus imaged or framed for that end: For the Creator had for this cause incorporated or compacted the body of an angel together, to be more dry than he [the Creator] is in his body, that he might be and remain to be God; so that the qualities should be harder and tougher, that the tone or sound might be audible.

[Aur. 13:137] So that when the seven qualities in an angel, in the center of the heart, do generate the light and the spirit or understanding, that then that same spirit, which in the light of the heart goes forth at the mouth of the angel, in the divine power, should, as an audible sound in the power of all the qualities in God, sing and ring forth as a melodious music, and in the forming, imaging, framing or qualifying of God, rise up as a pleasant, hearty, loving voice, in God’s forming.

[Aur. 13:138] And when the Holy Ghost forms the heavenly fruit, then should the tone, which should rise up in the praising of God from the angels, be also together in the forming or imaging of the fruit; and so on the other side again, the fruit should be the food of the angels.

[Aur. 13:139] Therefore also we pray in Our Father, saying, Sie uns unser täglich Brot (GIVE us our daily bread) so that the tone or word, sie (GIVE), which we thrust forth from our center of the light, through the animated, animal or soulish spirit, out at the mouth forth from us, into the divine power, should, in the divine power, as a fellow-forming or fellow-generating, help to image or frame unser täglich Brodt (our daily bread), which afterwards Der Vater gibet uns (the Father gives to us) for food.

[Aur. 13:140] Then, when our tone is thus incorporated in God’s tone, so that the fruit is formed, imaged or framed, it must of necessity be wholesome or healthful for us, and so we are in God’s love, and have that food to make use of, as by the right of nature, being our spirit in God’s love did help to image and form the same.

[Aur. 13:141] Herein stands the innermost and greatest depth of God. O man, consider yourself! I will more largely declare it in its due place.

[Aur. 13:142] Now for such an end has God created the angels, and they do so too: for their spirit, which in the center or heart goes forth from their light in the power of all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, that goes forth at their mouth, as God the Holy Ghost goes forth from the Father and Son, and helps to form, image or frame all in God (that is to say, in the divine nature) through the Mercurius, song and speaking and sport or scene of joy.

[Aur. 13:143] For as God works in nature to the producing of all manner of forms, ideas, images, vegetations, springings, fruits and colors, so do the angels also, in very great simplicity or sincerity; and though they should scarce touch the least twig, or scarce rejoice in the beauteous flowers in the heavenly May, and discourse and confer never so little, weakly, meanly or simply thereof; yet nevertheless that very tone or speech rises up together in the divine Salitter, and helps to co-image and frame or form all.

[Aur. 13:144] You have many examples thereof in this world, that if some creature or man look upon a thing, it perishes because of the poison or venom in the creature: On the other side again, some men, as also beasts and other creatures, can with their tone or words change or alter the malignity or evil of a thing, and bring it into a right form.

[Aur. 13:145] That now is the divine power, which all the creatures are subjected to; for all whatsoever it is that lives and moves is in God, and God himself is all, and all whatsoever is formed or framed, is formed out of HIM, be it either out of love or out of wrath.

_The Head-Spring or Fountain-Vein of Sin._

[Aur. 13:146] Now Lucifer being so royally imaged or framed, that his spirit in his forming and imaging rose up in him, and was received or embraced of God very excellently and lovingly, and was set or put into glorification, then instantly he should have begun his angelical obedience and course, and should have moved (as God himself did) as a loving son in the house of his Father; and that he did not.

[Aur. 13:147] But when his light was generated in him in his heart, and that his qualifying spirits were instantly affected or environed with the high light, they then became so highly rejoicing that they elevated themselves in their body against the right of nature, and presently began as it were a higher, statelier, more pompous or active qualifying or operation than God himself exercised.

[Aur. 13:148] But these spirits elevating themselves thus, and triumphing so eagerly and vehemently one in another, and rising up against the right of nature, by that means they kindled the qualifying or fountain spirits an exceeding deal too much; viz. the astringent quality attracted or compacted the body too hard together, so that the sweet water was dried up.

[Aur. 13:149] And the powerful and great bright flash, which was risen up in the sweet water in the heat, from which the bitter quality exists in the sweet water, that rubbed itself so horribly hard with the astringent quality, as if it would break in pieces for great joy.

[Aur. 13:150] For the flash was so bright, that it was as it were intolerable to the qualifying or fountain spirits, and therefore the bitter quality or source trembled and rubbed itself so hard in the astringent, that the heat was kindled contrary to the right of nature, and the astringent also dried up the sweet water by its hard attracting together.

[Aur. 13:151] But now the quality of heat was so severe, furious and eager, that it bereaved the astringent quality or source of its power; for the heat exists in the fountain or source of the sweet water.

[Aur. 13:152] But the sweet water being dried up through the astringent attracting together, therefore could not the heat anymore rise to a flame or to any light (for the light exists in the unctuosity or oiliness of the water), but gloved like a red-hot iron, or like iron not quite glowing, but very dimly and darkly; or as if you should put a very hard stone into the fire, and should let it lie there in great heat as long as you please, yet it would not be glowing light, because it has too little water or oiliness in it.

[Aur. 13:153] Thus now the heat kindled the dried water, and the light could no more elevate and kindle itself, for the water was dried up, and was quite consumed by the fire or great heat.

[Aur. 13:154] The meaning is not here, as if the spirit of the water were swallowed up or devoured, which dwells in all the seven qualities, but its quality or upper place or predominancy was changed into a dusky hot and sour quality.

[Aur. 13:155] For here in this place the sour quality has taken its first original and beginning, which now also is inherited in this world, which is not in heaven in God after such a manner at all, nor in any angel; for it is and signifies the house of affliction, trouble and misery, and is a forgetfulness of all good.

[Aur. 13:156] Now when this was done, the qualifying or fountain spirits rubbed themselves one upon another in that manner and way as I have mentioned above, concerning the figure of the seven-fold wheel, for they ever do, and rise up one in another, to taste one another, or to affect one another, from which life and love exist.

[Aur. 13:157] Now in all the spirits there was nothing else but a mere hot, fiery, cold and hard corruption, and so one evil quality tasted the others, whereby the whole body grew so very fierce and wrathful; for the heat was against the cold, and the cold against the heat.

[Aur. 13:158] So the sweet water being dried up, the bitter quality (which existed and was generated by the first flash, when the light kindled itself) rose up in the body through all the spirits, as if it would destroy the body, and so raved and raged like the rankest or worst poison.

[Aur. 13:159] From there existed the first poison, wherein we poor men now in this world have enough to chew upon, and thereby the bitter poisonous death is come into the flesh.

[Aur. 13:160] Now in this raging and tearing the life of Lucifer was generated, that is, his dear little son in the circle or center of his heart; and what manner of life and dear little son came to be, I offer to any rational soul to consider of.

[Aur. 13:161] For such as the father was, such was the son also, viz. a dark, astringent, cold, hard, bitter, hot, sour, stinking fountain or source, and the love stood in the bitter quality, in its penetrating taste and relish, and became an enmity against all the qualifying or fountain spirits in the body of the high-minded arrogant king.

[Aur. 13:162] Thus the tone rose up through the penetrating of the bitter quality through the heat and dried water, and through the astringent hard quality, into the heart, into the little, new, dear son.

[Aur. 13:163] Here the spirit went forth, and as he was generated in the heart, so he went forth now at the mouth; but how welcome a guest he was before God, and in God, also before the holy angels of the other kingdoms, I leave to you to consider of.

[Aur. 13:164] He should now have united with the Son of God, as one heart and one God: Alas forever! Who can write or express this sufficiently?
CHAPTER 14

How Lucifer, who was the most beautiful Angel in Heaven, is become the most horrible Devil.

The House of the Murderous Den.

[Aur. 14:1] HERE, king Lucifer, pull your hat down over your eyes, lest you should see how man will take off your crown away from you, you can no more rule in heaven; stand still a little while, we must first view you, and observe what a beauteous fair bride you are, and whether the filth of your whoredom may not be cleansed and washed away from you, that you may be fair again; we will a little describe your chastity and virtue.

[Aur. 14:2] Come on you philosophers, and you lawyers and advocates, that justify and defend king Lucifer! Come near and bring him to the bar, while he has yet the crown upon him, for here we will hold a court of judgment against malefactors for him; if you can maintain his cause to be right, then he shall be your king; if not, then he shall be turned out and cast down into hell; and another shall get his royal crown, who will govern better than he.

Now observe:

[Aur. 14:3] When Lucifer had thus horribly spoiled and destroyed himself, all his qualifying or fountain spirits were at enmity against God, for they all qualified or acted much otherwise than God, and so there came to be an eternal enmity between God and Lucifer. But now it might be asked:

The Depth.

[Aur. 14:4] How long did Lucifer stand in the Light of God? When the royal body of Lucifer was incorporated or compacted together, in that very hour the light kindled itself also in Lucifer.

[Aur. 14:5] For as soon as his qualifying or fountain spirits in the building of the body began to qualify or operate, and to generate themselves according to the right of nature, then rose up the flash of life in the heart in the sweet spring or fountain-water, and so the royal body was ready furnished or complete, and the spirit went forth in the heart from the light through the mouth into the heart of God.

[Aur. 14:6] And so he was a most exceeding beautiful prince and king, and very dear and acceptable to the divine being, and was received and embraced with great joy.

[Aur. 14:7] In like manner also the spirit went forth from the heart into all the qualifying or fountain veins of the body, and kindled all the seven spirits, and so the royal body was glorified instantaneously, and there he stood as a king of God, in an unsearchable clarity or brightness, transcendently excelling the whole heavenly host or army.

[Aur. 14:8] Now in this clear and light flash the seven qualifying or fountain spirits were instantly kindled, as a man kindles a fire, for they were affrighted at the terrible clarity or brightness of their spirit, and so instantly at the first flash suddenly became highly triumphing, proudly lifted up and joyful to excess, and so moved themselves towards a higher birth.

[Aur. 14:9] But if they had continued in their seats, and had qualified or operated, as they had done from eternity, then that high light had not hurt them.
[Aur. 14:10] For they were not new spirits made of any new thing, but they were the old spirits, which had no beginning, which had been in God from eternity, and they knew very well the right of the Deity and the right of nature, and how they [the spirits] should move and stir.

[Aur. 14:11] Also when God figured or framed the body together, he did not beforehand destroy the qualifying or fountain spirits, but figured or framed the body of king Lucifer together out of the kernel of that which was the best, wherein was the best knowledge of all.

[Aur. 14:12] Else if the qualities had been dead beforehand, there had been a necessity for a new life, and it would have been in doubt whether the angels could have subsisted eternally.

The cause that God created Angels.

[Aur. 14:13] Conceive it right: God created angels out of himself, for this reason, that they might be harder and drier incorporated or compacted together than the ideas, figures, shapes or forms, which, through the qualifying or operating of the spirits of God in nature rise up, and which also through the moving of the spirits vanish or pass away again; that the light of the angels, in their hardness, should shine the clearer and brighter, and that the tone of the body should sound the clearer and shriller, whereby the joyfulness should increase the more in God. This was the cause that God created angels.

[Aur. 14:14] But it is said, the angel generated a new light, or a new spirit. That is to be understood as follows:

[Aur. 14:15] When the qualifying or fountain spirits were incorporated or compacted together, then the light shone much brighter and clearer in the body, and from or out of the body, than it did before, in the Salitter; for there then rose up a much clearer and brighter flash in the body than before, while the Salitter was thin and dim.

[Aur. 14:16] Therefore the qualifying or fountain spirits became stately and proud, and supposed they had a much fairer little son or light than the Son of God was; and therefore they would also the more earnestly and eagerly qualify or operate, and elevate themselves, and so despised the qualifying or acting which is in God their Father; and they despised the birth of the Son of God, as also the exit or going forth of God the Holy Ghost, and supposed they could do it; because they were so gloriously incorporated or compacted together, therefore they would now exalt themselves gloriously and stately, and show forth themselves, as if they were the most fair and beauteous bride of heaven.

[Aur. 14:17] They knew very well that they were not the whole or total God, but were only a piece-or part thereof; they also knew very well how far their omnipotence reached or extended; and yet they would no more have their old condition, but would be higher than the whole or total God, and supposed thereby that they would have their place, region, quarters or court above the whole or total Deity, above all kingdoms whatsoever.

[Aur. 14:18] Therefore they elevated or extolled themselves, intending to kindle or inflame the whole God, and to govern or rule the whole God by their power and might. All forms and ideas should rise up in the qualifying and acting of his [Lucifer’s] spirit. He would be lord of the Deity, and would not endure any co-rival.

[Aur. 14:19] Now this is the root of covetousness, envy, pride and wrath; for in the fierce qualifying or acting and boiling rose up the wrath, and burnt like fire of heat and cold, and was also bitter as gall.

[Aur. 14:20] For the qualifying or fountain spirits had in themselves no impulse from without, but the impulse to pride elevated itself within the body, in the council of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits; these agreed and united in a compact, that they alone would be God.
[Aur. 14:21] But because they could not begin it in their old seat, and so bring it to effect, therefore they dissembled or played the hypocrite together, and flattered one with another, and so combined, intending to extol themselves against the birth of God, and would need to qualify or work in the highest depth, and then nothing could be like them, seeing they were together the most mighty prince in God.

[Aur. 14:22] The astringent quality was the first murderer, flatterer and hypocrite, for when it saw that it generated so fair and bright a light, then it compressed itself together yet harder than God had created it to be, intending to be much more terrible, and to draw together all in its whole region, circuit or circumference, and keep it fast, as a stern severe lord.

[Aur. 14:23] So then, in a degree, it effected somewhat, from where earth and stones have their original; which I will write of when I treat concerning the creation of the world.

[Aur. 14:24] The bitter quality was the second murderer, which, when it rose up in the flash, did tear with breaking and great power in the astringent quality, as if it would break the body in pieces.

[Aur. 14:25] The astringent quality permitted this tearing, or else it was very well able to have staid and captivated the bitter spirit, and to bathe or steep it in the sweet water, till its high mind had been allayed and gone: But the astringent quality would need to have such a little brother, because such little brother was so serviceable to its turn; else, seeing the bitter spirit takes its original from the astringent quality, as it were from its father, the astringent quality could well have stopped or hindered that.

[Aur. 14:26] The heat is the third murderous spirit, which killed its mother, the sweet water; but the astringent spirit is the cause thereof, for by its stern, severe attracting together and hardening, it has thus vehemently awakened and kindled the fire by the bitter quality; for the fire is the sword of the astringent and bitter quality.

[Aur. 14:27] But since the fire rises up in the sweet water, therefore itself has the whip or scourge in its own power, and might have staid or kept back the astringent quality in the water, but the heat also became a flatterer or hypocrite, and dissembled with the great quality, viz. the astringent, and did help to destroy the sweet water.

[Aur. 14:28] The tone is the fourth murderer; for it takes its ringing sound in the fire, in the sweet water, and rises up very gently and lovely in the whole body.

[Aur. 14:29] Yet it did not so here, but after it was risen up in the water, in the astringent quality, it also dissembled [or played] with the astringent quality and broke out or burst forth furiously, like a thunder-clap, whereby it would prove and show forth its new Deity: and so the fire rose up, as when there is a tempest of lightning, intending thereby to be so great as to be above all things in God.

[Aur. 14:30] And this they practiced so long till they had murdered their mother, the sweet water; and therein the whole body became a dark valley, and there was no more remedy or council in God that could help here: For love was turned into enmity, and the whole body became a black dark Teufel (devil).

[Aur. 14:31] Of the word (Teufel) Teu has its original from hard beating, drumming or thumping; and the word or syllable fel has its original from the fall, and so lord Lucifer is called Teufel (devil), and is no more called a Cherubim or Seraphim. Here it may be asked:

Question.

[Aur. 14:32] Could not God have hindered and prevented the pride of Lucifer, that he might have abstained from his high-mindedness? This is a high question, on which all those lay hold that justify and plead the cause of the Devil; but they are all cited to appear at the court of justice held for trial of criminal malefactors: let them have a care how they plead for their master, else the sentence of judgment will be pronounced against him, and he will lose his crown.

The wonderful Revelation.

[Aur. 14:33] Behold, king Lucifer was the head in his whole region, circuit or circumference, also he was a mighty king, and was created out of the kernel or marrow of his whole region and circumference, also he would fain have kindled that whole circumference by his elevating, that so all might have burned and qualified, or operated as he did in his own body.

[Aur. 14:34] Though indeed the Deity, without or distinct from his body, would have meekly and gently qualified or acted towards him, and would have enlightened and exhorted him to repentance, yet now there was no other will in Lucifer, but that he would of necessity rule over the Son of God, and kindle that whole region or circumference, and in such a way he himself would be the whole God, above and over all the angelical hosts or armies.

[Aur. 14:35] Now when the Heart of God with his meekness and love made haste towards Lucifer, he despised it, and thought himself far better than it, and then stormed back again with fire and coldness in hard claps of thunder against the Son of God, supposing the Son of God must be in subjection under him, and that he himself was lord; for he despised the light of the Son of God.

Question.

[Aur. 14:36] Then you ask: How? Had he such power? Yes, he had; for he was a great part of the Deity, and besides, was from or out of the kernel thereof, for he made an attempt also upon that king and great prince Michael, to spoil and destroy him, who at last fought with Lucifer, and overcame him, since [or because] the power of God in Lucifer’s kingdom also fought vehemently against its king, till at last he was thrust down from his kingly seat, as one that was vanquished.127

Objection.

[Aur. 14:37] Now you will say, God should have enlightened his heart that he might have repented. No! Lucifer would receive no light other than his own, for he scorned the light of the Son of God, which did shine without, distinct from his body, seeing he had such a glittering light in himself, and so he elevated himself more and more, till his water was quite dried up and burnt, and his light was quite put out; and then all was done with him. ("This water here, is the water of eternal life, generated in the light of the Majesty, but in the center it is like the sulphur or brimstone spirit, or like unto aqua fortis, or the water of separation.")

Question.

[Aur. 14:38] Concerning the fall of all his angels one might ask, How comes it, that at this time all his angels did also fall? As this lord commanded, so his subjects obeyed; when he elevated himself, and would be God, his angels, seeing it, followed their lord, doing as he did, all made a proffer to assault and storm the Deity.

[Aur. 14:39] For they were all in subjection under Lucifer, and he ruled in all his angels, for he was created out of the pith or kernel of that Salitter, out of which all his angels were created, and he was the heart and lord of all his angels.

[Aur. 14:40] Therefore they all did as he did, and all would sit in the primacy of the Deity, and would rule powerfully in the whole region, circuit or circumference, over and above the whole divine power: They were all of one will, and would not suffer the same to be taken from them. Now you will ask:
Question.

[Aur. 14:41] Did not the whole, total or universal God know this, before the time of the creation of angels, that it would so come to pass? No: For if God had known it before the time of the creation of angels, it had then been an eternal predestinate purposed will in God to have it so, and it had been no enmity against God, but God had indeed at the beginning created and made him a devil.

[Aur. 14:42] But God created and made him a king of light, and when he became disobedient, and would be above the whole or total God, then God spewed him out of his seat, and in the midst or center of our time created another king out of the same Deity out of which lord Lucifer was created; (understand it aright, out of the Salitter, which was without, distinct from the body of king Lucifer), and set him on the royal throne of Lucifer, and gave him might, authority and power, as Lucifer had before his fall.

[Aur. 14:43] The same King is called JESUS CHRIST, who is the Son of God and of man.

[Aur. 14:44] This I will demonstrate clearly and at large in its proper place.

[Aur. 14:45] “Note, This is explained in the second and third books: God knew this very well according to his wrath, but not according to his love, according to which God is called God, into which no fierceness nor imagination enters, neither is there any searching in the love concerning the hellish creature.

[Aur. 14:46] “This foregoing question is understood or meant thus: as when I say, God knows not the evil; also, God wills not the evil, according to the tenure of the Scripture; then I understand or mean that in his love (which alone is the one only Good, and is alone called God) there is no glimpse of evil revealed or manifested; otherwise, if any evil were revealed or manifested therein, then the love were not meekness and humility alone.

[Aur. 14:47] “But in the outspaking of his Word, wherein the nature of the spiritual world exists, wherein perceptibility or sensibility is understood to consist, and wherein God calls himself an angry, zealous or jealous God, and a consuming fire, therein, indeed, God has known the evil from eternity, and that in case he should once move himself therein, that the source or quality thereof would become creaturely also, but therein is he not called God, but a consuming fire.

[Aur. 14:48] “I understand the above-said question magically, taking notice how God’s love and wrath differ, and are distinguished, and how the knowledge of evil, viz. of the Devil and of the fall, is discerned to differ from his well-spring or source, from where the fall also took its original.

[Aur. 14:49] “So also in God’s love there is only the fountain and knowledge of joyfulness, for every science or root causes or produces its like.

[Aur. 14:50] “For if I should say, God’s love had willed the evil, or that there was a false science or root in God’s love and meekness, then I should speak contrary to the Scripture: For what God’s love knows sensibly or feelingly in itself, that it also wills, and nothing else. And what God’s wrath knows sensibly in itself, that he also knows, and nothing else.

[Aur. 14:51] “From this, in the creation, good and evil are existed: I exhort the Reader to conceive our very deep sense aright, and not mistake or go astray here, but to read our other writings, where these things are sufficiently explained.

Of the great Sin, and contrary or opposite Will; and of the eternal Enmity against God of King Lucifer, together with his whole Host or Army.

[Aur. 14:52] This is the right looking-glass of man; before this court of justice for malefactors the spirit invites and cites all men to stand as before a looking-glass, wherein they may see themselves, and what the hidden, secret sin is.
[Aur. 14:53] This has remained hidden ever since the world began, and was never so fully and totally revealed in any heart of man: I myself also do wonder much more than the Reader can wonder at this high revelation or manifestation.

[Aur. 14:54] I do not write this for my own glory; for my glory stands in my hope of that which is to come: I am a poor sinner as well as other men, and I also ought to come before this glass.

[Aur. 14:55] But I marvel that God should reveal himself thus fully to such a simple man, and that God thus impelled him also to set it down in writing; whereas there are many learned writers who could set it forth and express it better, in a more flourishing style, and demonstrate it more exactly and fully than I, who am a scorn and a fool to the world.

[Aur. 14:56] But I neither can nor will oppose him; for I often stood in great striving against him, that if it were not his impulse or will, that he would be pleased to take it from me; but I find, that with my striving against him I have but merely gathered tones for this building.

[Aur. 14:57] Now I am climbed up and mounted so very high that I dare not look back, for fear a giddiness should overtake me, and I have now but a short length of ladder to the mark, to which it is the whole desire, longing and delight of my heart to reach fully. When I go upward I have no giddiness at all; but when I look back and would return, then am I giddy, and afraid to fall.

[Aur. 14:58] Therefore have I put my confidence in the strong God, and will venture, and see what will come of it. I have no more than one body, which nevertheless is mortal and corruptible, I willingly venture that; if the light and knowledge of my God do but remain with me, then I have sufficiently enough for this life and the life to come.

[Aur. 14:59] Thus I will not be angry with my God, though for his name’s sake I should endure shame, ignominy and reproach, which springs, buds and blossoms for me every day, so that I am almost inured to it: I will sing with the prophet David, Though my body and soul should faint and fail, yet thou, O God, art my trust and confidence; also my salvation, and the comfort of my heart.\[131\]

Seven Sources of Sin, and the Eighth the House of Death.

[Aur. 14:60] Sin has seven kinds, forms, species or sorts; among which there are four special wellsprings or sources: And the eighth kind or sort is the house of death.

Now observe:

[Aur. 14:61] The seven forms are the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of the body; when these are kindled each spirit generates a special or particular enmity against God.

[Aur. 14:62] Out of these seven are generated other four new sons, and they together are the new god, which is wholly against the old God, as two professed armies of enemies, which have sworn eternal enmity one against the other.

The first Son is PRIDE. The second Son is COVETOUSNESS. The third Son is ENvy. The fourth Son is WRATH.

[Aur. 14:63] Now let us view these in the ground from which all has its original, and see how it is an enmity against God: and therein you will see what is the beginning and root of sin, and wherefore in God it cannot be suffered or endured.

[Aur. 14:64] Therefore come on, you philosophers and lawyers, you that will maintain, and undertake to prove it, that God created the evil also, and that he wills the same; also that it is his predestinate purpose that the Devil fell, and that many men are damned; otherwise God could have altered all, and turned it some other way.

The Citation, or Summons.

[Aur. 14:65] Here the spirit of our kingdom for the third time cites you, together with your prince Lucifer, whom you defend and justify, before the final Court of Justice for criminal malefactors; give in your answer there.

[Aur. 14:66] For as to these seven kinds or forms, and four new sons, the right shall be prosecuted in the heavenly Father’s house.

[Aur. 14:67] If you can prove and maintain that the seven spirits of Lucifer have of right and equity generated these four new sons, so that they of right and equity should govern heaven and the whole Deity, then king Lucifer shall be re-enthroned, and set upon his seat, and his kingdom shall be restored to him again.

[Aur. 14:68] If not, then a hell or hole, burrow or dungeon shall be given to him for an everlasting prison, and there shall he together with his sons be imprisoned for ever: and you should take heed lest a Court of Justice be held, and pass upon you also.

[Aur. 14:69] Now seeing then you will plead the right of the Devil’s cause, wherewith shall he requite you, or with what fee shall he reward you? He has nothing in his power but the hellish abomination; what will then be your recompense? Guess, Sir, even the best of all that he has, the best fruits and apples in his orchard, and the best perfumes and incense of his garden.

Of the First Kind or Form.

[Aur. 14:70] The first spirit is the astringent or harsh quality, which in God is a gentle attracting or drawing together, a drying and cooling or refreshing, and is made use of in and for the imaging or forming of things; and though in its depth it be somewhat sharp or tart, yet it tempers itself with the sweet water, so that it is meek, soft, pleasant and full of joy.

[Aur. 14:71] When the light of the sweet water comes into it, then it willingly, friendly and freely yields up its birth thereunto, and makes it [the sweet water] dry and shining bright.

[Aur. 14:72] When the tone or tune rises up in the light, then it [the astringent quality] also gives up its tone, tune and ringing sound very gently and brotherly thereunto.

[Aur. 14:73] Also it receives the love from all the spirits.

[Aur. 14:74] Also the heat favours it, giving way friendly, that it [the heat] may be cooled, and so the astringent quality is a friendly will in and with all the qualities; it readily helps also to image or frame the spirit of nature, and to form therein all manner of shapes, figures, fruits and growths or vegetations, according to the will of all the six spirits.

[Aur. 14:75] It is a very humble father to its children, and loves them heartily, and plays with them friendly, for it is the right father of the other six spirits, which are generated in it, and it helps to generate them all.

[Aur. 14:76] Now when God constituted Lucifer with his host or army, he created them out of this friendly Deity, out of himself, out of the place of heaven and of this world, there was no other matter to make them of, this living Salitter was very gently and softly attracted or drawn together without any killing or slaying it, or without any great stirring or motion.

[Aur. 14:77] These spirits, thus incorporated or compacted together, had the knowledge, the skill and the eternal, infinite and unbeginning law of God, and knew full well, I. How the Deity had generated them.

[Aur. 14:78] II. They knew also well, that the Heart of God had the primacy in the whole Deity.
III. They knew well also, that they had no more for their proper own, to deal with and to dispose of, than their own compacted, incorporated body; for they saw very well that the Deity generated itself without, severally, distinct, apart from their body, as it had done from eternity.

IV. They knew likewise very well that they were not the whole room or place, but were therein to increase the joy and wonderful proportion, variety and harmony of that same place, and were to accord, qualify and act friendly with that room or place of the Deity, and in a friendly manner affect the qualities that are without, distinct from their bodies.

V. They had also all power to dispose of all the ideas, figures and growths or vegetations, as they would; all was a hearty love-play, sport or scene in God; they had not at all moved God their Creator to any contrary will, though they had broken all the heavenly ideas, figures or vegetations and growths, and had made of them all mere horses to ride on; God had still always caused enough of others to come up instead of them, for it had all been but a play or scene in God.

What the eternal sport of God was, before the time of the Creation of the Angels.

For to that very end also they were created, that they should play and sport with the ideas, figures and growths or vegetations, and dispose of them for their own use as they pleased.

For the ideas or figures have in a manner framed themselves thus from eternity, and have passed away and altered again through the qualifying or fountain spirits: For this was the eternal play, sport or scene of God, before the times of the creation of the angels.

You have a very good example and instance of this, if you will but see, and will not be stark blind here; viz. in the beasts, fowls and all vegetations or growths in this world: All these were created before man was created, who is and signifies the second host or army, which God created instead of expelled Lucifer, out of the place of Lucifer.

Question.

But now, What did the astringent or harsh quality do in Lucifer? When God had thus gently incorporated it, or compacted it together, then it found and felt itself to be mighty and powerful, and saw that it had or possessed a body more beautiful than the figures were, that were without, distinct from it; thereupon it became high minded, and elevated itself in its body, and would be more severe and eager than the Salitter was, which was without, distinct from its body.

But seeing it could not do anything alone, it flattered and played the hypocrite with the other spirits, so that they followed it as their father, and did all that they saw it do, each in its own quality.

Now being thus agreed, they generated also such a spirit, which came forth at the mouth, at the eyes, at the ears, and at the nostrils, and affected or mixed itself with the Salitter that was without, distinct from the body.

For the intent and purpose of the astringent or harsh quality, seeing it was so glorious, when the kernel was incorporated or compacted together out of the whole kingdom, its intent was, that it also through its spirit, which it did generate by or with the other spirits, would rule powerfully with the sharpness externally, without its own body, in the whole Salitter of God, and that all should stand and be in or under its own power and authority.
[Aur. 14:88] It would image, frame and form all through its own spirit which it generated, as the whole Deity did; it would have the primacy in the whole Deity: This was its purpose.

[Aur. 14:89] But seeing it could not effect this in its true natural seat, it thereupon elevated itself, and kindled itself.

[Aur. 14:90] So by this kindling it kindled its spirit also, which now went forth at the mouth, the ears, the eyes and the nostrils, as a very fierce, furious spirit, and strove against the Salitter in its [the Salitter’s] place, as a furious, storming, raging lord, and kindled the Salitter, and attracted or drew all forcibly together.

You must understand it aright.

[Aur. 14:91] The astringent or harsh quality in the spirit that went forth kindled the astringent or harsh quality which was in the place of its region, or in nature, viz. in the seventh qualifying or fountain spirit, and ruled powerfully in the astringent quality in the Salitter; and that, the astringent quality in the Salitter would not have, but strove with the sweet water against this spirit; but all would not help, the storm grew hotter and hotter, the longer the greater, till at length the astringent or harsh quality of the Salitter was kindled.

[Aur. 14:92] And so when this was done, then the storm grew so hot that the astringent quality drew the Salitter together, so that hard stones proceeded from it; from which the stones in this world have their original: and the water in the Salitter was also attracted or drawn together, so that it became very thick, as it is now at present in this world.

[Aur. 14:93] But when the astringent quality was kindled in Lucifer, then it became very cold; for the coldness is its own proper spirit, and thereupon now it kindles with its cold fire also all in the Salitter.

[Aur. 14:94] Therefore the water of this world became so cold, dark and thick; and thus it is that all is become so hard and palpable, which was not so before the times of the angels.

[Aur. 14:95] This now was a great contrary will in the divine Salitter, a great battle and strife, and an eternal enmity. But now you will say,

Objection.

[Aur. 14:96] God should have withstood him that it might not have come so far. O dear blind man! It was not a man nor a beast that stood here before God. But it was God against God: one strong one against another: Besides, how should God withstand him? With the friendly love? That could not avail, for Lucifer did but scorn and despise that, and would himself be God.

[Aur. 14:97] Should God withstand him then with anger or wrath, (which indeed must be done at length), then God must have kindled himself in his qualities in the Salitter, wherein king Lucifer dwelt, and must in the strong zeal or jealousy strive and fight against him, which he did; and so this striving made this kingdom so dark, waste and evil, that another creation must necessarily afterwards follow upon it.

[Aur. 14:98] You philosophers and jurists or lawyers of prince Lucifer, here you must first defend the astringent or harsh quality in Lucifer, and answer whether it has dealt righteously or no, and prove it in nature. I do not accept of your extorted, wrested, bowed, stretched, and farfetched texts of Scripture, brought in by head and shoulders for a proof, but I will have living testimonies.

[Aur. 14:99] And I will also set before you living testimonies, viz. the created and comprehensible heaven, the stars, the elements, the creatures, the earth, stones, men, and lastly your dark, cold, hot, hard, rough, smoky, wicked prince Lucifer himself; all these are come into this present condition through his elevation.

[Aur. 14:100] Here bring in your defense, and answer for your spirit; if not, it will be condemned. For this is God’s just, right or law, which law has no beginning, and is, that the child which is generated of the mother should be humble before the mother, and be obedient to her; for it has its life and body from the mother who has generated it.

[Aur. 14:101] Also the house of the mother, as long as the mother lives, is not the child’s proper own; but the mother keeps the child with her in love, she nourishes it, and puts on it the best and finest attire which she has, and gives the same to it for its own, that her joy may be increased by the child, and that she may have joy in it.

[Aur. 14:102] But when the child rebels and resists against the mother, and takes away all from the mother, and domineers over her, and moreover strikes at her, and forces her to change into a low condition, contrary to right and equity, then it is but just that the child should be expelled out of the house, and left to sit behind the hedge and quite lose its child’s portion and inheritance.

[Aur. 14:103] Thus it was between God and his child Lucifer. The Father put on him the fairest attire, hoping to have joy in him: But when the child got the robe and ornament, he despised the Father, and would domineer over the Father, and would ruin his Father’s house; and besides, struck at the Father, and would not be advised or taught to do otherwise.

Of the Second Species, Form, Sort or Spirit of Sin’s Beginning in Lucifer.

[Aur. 14:104] The second spirit is the water: As the astringent or harsh quality is the father of the other six spirits, which attracts or draws them together, and so holds them, so the sweet water is the mother in which all spirits are conceived, kept and generated, that softens and saturates them, wherein and whereby they get their life, and then the light and joyfulness rises up therein.

[Aur. 14:105] Thus king Lucifer in the same manner did get the sweet water for his corporeal government, and indeed the very kernel and best thereof. For God put on to his little son the best ornament, robe and attire of all, hoping to have great joy in him.

Question.

[Aur. 14:106] Now what did this astringent or harsh quality with its mother, the sweet water? It flattered with the bitter quality, and with the heat, and persuaded them that they should elevate themselves and be kindled, and so together they would destroy their mother, and turn her into a sour form or property, whereby they would domineer with their spirit very sharply over the whole Deity: All must bow down and incline to them; and they would form, frame, figure and image all with their sharpness.

[Aur. 14:107] According to this false or wicked conclusion and result they agreed to do one and the same thing, and so dried up the sweet water in Lucifer’s body; the heat kindled it, and the astringent dried it, and then it became very sour and sharp.

[Aur. 14:108] When in this qualifying or acting they had generated the spirit of Lucifer, then the life of the spirit, which rises up in the water, as also the light, became very sour and sharp.

[Aur. 14:109] Now this sour spirit also stormed with all its powers against the sweet water, which was without, distinct from the body, in God’s Salitter, and thought itself must necessarily be the prime and chief, and should in its own power form, frame and image everything.
[Aur. 14:110] This was the second enmity against God, from which is existed the sour quality in this world, for it was not so from eternity; as you have an example thereof in this, viz. if you set any sweet thing in the warmth, and let it stand therein, it grows sour of itself; as also water, beer or wine in a vessel will do; but none of the other qualities alter, but only into a stink, which is caused by the quality of water. Now you will ask,

Question.

[Aur. 14:111] Why did God suffer Lucifer’s evil spirit, which proceeded out of the body of Lucifer, to come into Himself? Could God not hinder it? You must know, that between God and Lucifer there was no other difference, than there is between parents and their children; nay, there was yet a nearer relation between them: For as parents generate a child out of their body according to their image, and keep it in their house, as a natural heir of their bodies, and cherish it, thus near also is the body of Lucifer to the Deity.

[Aur. 14:112] For God had generated him out of his body, and therefore also made him the heir of his goods, and gave him for a possession the whole region or extent of the place in which he created him.

The highest Depth.

[Aur. 14:113] But here you must know what it was with which Lucifer fought against God, and so moved God to anger. For he could not do it with his body; for his body reached no farther than the place where he then stood; he could effect little with that, but it was something else.

Be attentive here.

[Aur. 14:114] The spirit, which is generated from or out of all the seven qualifying spirits in the center of the heart, the same does (while it is yet in the body, when it is generated) qualify, mix or act in and with God, as one substance or thing, nor is there any difference.

[Aur. 14:115] And when that same spirit, which is generated in the body, sees anything through the eyes, or hears through the ears, or smells through the nostrils, then it is already in that thing, and works, labors or acts therein, as in its own propriety.

[Aur. 14:116] And if the same be pleasing to it, it eats thereof, and infects itself with the thing, and wrestles therewith, and makes a mixture or temper together; let the thing be as far off as it will, even so far as the originality of its kingdom in God reaches, so far can the spirit govern or rule in a moment, and is withheld or hindered by nothing.

[Aur. 14:117] For it is and comprehends the power, as God the Holy Ghost does; and in this there is no difference at all between God the Holy Ghost and the spirit of the body, but only this, that the Holy Spirit of God is the whole fullness, and the spirit of the body is but a piece or part, which presses through the whole fullness, and wherever it comes, there it is mixed or affected with the place, and presently rules with God in the same place.

[Aur. 14:118] For it is of God and in God, and cannot be withheld or hindered, but only by the seven nature-spirits of the body, which generate the animated or soulish spirit; they have the reins in their hand, and generate it as they please. (“God’s Spirit has all the well-springs, but distinguishes itself in three Principles, where three sources or qualities arise, the first in the fire according to the first Principle, and the second in the light in the second Principle, and the third in the spirit of this world in the aerial and astral source.”)

[Aur. 14:119] When the astringent or harsh quality, as the father, forms the word or son, or spirit, then it stands captive in the center of the heart, and is examined or tried by the other spirits, whether it be good or no. Now if it pleases the fire, then the fire lets the flash (in which the bitter spirit stands) go through the sweet water, wherein it conceives the love, and goes therewith into the astringent quality.

[Aur. 14:120] Now when the flash returns with the love into the astringent quality again, together with the new-generated spirit or will, then the astringent quality rejoices in the new young son, and elevates itself.

[Aur. 14:121] Then the tone lays hold thereon, and goes forth therewith at the mouth, eyes, ears and nostrils, and executes that which is decreed in the council of the seven spirits: for as the decree of the council is, so also is the spirit; and the council can alter the same as it will.

[Aur. 14:122] Therefore the original lust sticks in the circle of the heart, in the council of the seven spirits; and as they generate the spirit, so also it is.

[Aur. 14:123] So in this manner lord Lucifer brought the Deity into anger and wrath; (“that is, kindled the eternal nature according to the first Principle;”) seeing he, together with all his angels, as a malicious devil, fought or strove against the Deity, intending to bring and subdue the whole circumference, circuit or region under his innate spirits, that they should form, frame, figure and image all, and the whole circumference, region or extent should bow, yield and suffer itself to be ruled and formed by the kindled sharpness of the innate spirits.

[Aur. 14:124] As this has a being or substance, form or condition in angels, so it has also a being, substance, form or condition in man. Therefore bethink and consider yourselves, you that are proud, covetous, thievish, extorting usurers, calumniating, blasphemous, envious, and whorish or lascivious, what manner of little son or spirit you send into God. (“The soul was originally comprehended in the eternal nature with the Word Fiat, which is God’s nature according to the first Principle and eternal original of nature; and if it kindles itself in the original, then it kindles God’s wrath in the eternal nature.”)

Objection.

[Aur. 14:125] You will say, We do not send this into God, but only into our neighbor, or into his work which we like and have a mind to. Now show me any place, to which you send your covetous or lustful spirit, where God is not; be it to man, beasts, garments, fields, money or anything whatsoever. From him is all, and he is in all, he himself is all, and he upholds and supports all.

How God possesses all, and yet no creature is He.

[Aur. 14:126] Then you will say, But he is with his wrath in many things which are so hard and evil that they are not suitable to or capable of the Deity. Yes, dear man, all this is true: The wrath of God is certainly everywhere all over, in silver, gold, stones, fields, garments, beasts and men, and all whatsoever is comprehensible and palpable; otherwise they would not be so hard and harsh to be felt, as they are.

[Aur. 14:127] But you must know that the kernel of love also sticks in all in the hidden center, unless it be altogether too evil; and so evil a thing man has no liking for at all. (“God possesses all, only as to nature, he is not the essence, he possesses himself.”) Or do you think you do well, if you bathe or soak yourself in God’s wrath? Take heed, that it does not kindle your body and soul, and so you will burn therein eternally, as befell Lucifer.

[Aur. 14:128] But when God shall bring forth the hidden things, at the end of this time, then you will discern in what God’s love or wrath has been. Therefore have a care, and take heed, and turn your eyes from evil, or else you undo yourself, and so bring yourself into perdition.

[Aur. 14:129] I take heaven and earth to witness, that I have performed here as God has revealed to me, that it is his will.

Thus has king Lucifer in his body turned the sweet water into a sour sharpness, intending therewith, in his haughty-mindedness, to rule in the whole Deity.

He has brought it so far to pass that, in this world, with that sharpness, he reaches into the heart of all living creatures, as also into vegetables, leaves and grass, and into all other things, as a king and prince of this world.

And if the divine love were not yet in the whole nature of this world, and if we poor men and creatures had not in and about us the Champion in the fight, we should all perish in a moment, in the hellish horrible abominations.

Therefore we sing very rightly thus;

In the midst of this our life, death does us round embrace,
Where shall we flee away, that we may obtain grace?
To you Lord Christ alone.

This is the Champion in the fight, to Him 'tis we must flee,
Who is our King,
JESUS CHRIST.

He has the Father's love in him, and fights in divine power and might against the kindled hellish abomination. To him we must flee; and he it is that preserves and retains the love of God in all things in this world; else all would be lost and perish.

Now hope, pray, and wait
But a small time, and then strait
Th' devil's kingdom will be quite down laid.

You philosophers and jurists or lawyers, that make God to be as a devil, in saying that he wills evil, bring in your plea, and answer once more here, and try whether you can maintain your cause to be just; if not, then the sour, sharp, tart spirit in Lucifer shall be also condemned, as a destroyer and as the enemy of God, and of all his heavenly hosts and armies.

Of the Third Species, Kind or Form and Manner of Sin’s Beginning in Lucifer.

[Aur. 15:1] THE third spirit in God is the bitter spirit, which exists in the flash of life: for the flash of life rises up in the sweet water through the rubbing or fretting of the astringent and hot quality; but the body of the flash abides in the sweet water, subsisting very meekly as a light or heart, and the flash is very trembling, and by the terror, and fire, and water, and astringent spirit, it becomes bitter through the original of the water, in which it rises up.

[Aur. 15:2] And that flash, or raging terror, or bitter spirit, is caught or laid hold on by the astringent quality, and in the clear bright light in the astringent spirit is glorified, and exceeding highly joyful; which now is the mobility, or the root of life, which in the astringent quality images, frames and forms the word, or makes it distinct or separable, so that in the body a thought or will does exist.

[Aur. 15:3] Now this highly triumphing and joyous spirit is very fitly and excellently, in the divine Salliter, used to the imaging or framing; because it chiefly moves in the tone or tune, and in the love, and is nearest to the heart of God in the birth, and bound or united therewith in joy, which indeed is itself also the spring and source of joy, or the rising up in the heart of God.

[Aur. 15:4] And there is no difference here, but only such as is between the body and soul in man; and so the body signifies or resembles the seven qualifying spirits of the Father; and the soul signifies or resembles the only begotten Son of God the Father. ("The spirit of the soul signifies or represents the heart of God; and the soul the eye of God in the first Principle; as is declared in our third book, Concerning the Threefold Life of Man.")

[Aur. 15:5] Now as the body generates the soul, so the seven spirits of God generate the Son; and as the soul is a peculiar distinct thing when it is generated, and yet is united with the body, and cannot subsist without the body, so also is the Son of God, when he is generated, a peculiar, several, distinct thing also, and yet cannot subsist without the Father.

Now observe,

[Aur. 15:6] Just in such a kind and manner also was the bitter quality in Lucifer, and [it] had no cause to elevate itself, neither had it any impulse to it from anything, but followed the proud loftiness of the astringent quality, as its father, and supposed also that it would reign in its kind and manner over the whole Deity, and so kindled itself in its elevation.

[Aur. 15:7] Now when it had half-generated the animated or soulish spirit in the body, that spirit became in this kind and manner a fierce, stinging, raging, kindled and tearing spirit, bitter as gall; and is rightly the quality of hell fire, a very fierce and inimical hostile being.

[Aur. 15:8] Now when this spirit in the animated or soulish spirit, out of or from the heart of Lucifer and his legions, roved (or speculated) into the Deity ("that is, brought its will thereinto, as into the genitrix"); then it was no other than a tearing, breaking, stinging, murdering and poisonous burning: Concerning which Christ said, The Devil is a liar and murderer from the beginning; and has not continued in the truth.136

[Aur. 15:9] But Lucifer intended by that means to be above God; none could domineer and rule so terribly as he himself, all must stoop to him; he would with his spirit in the whole Deity rule as a powerful king over all; seeing he was the fairest and most beautiful, he would of necessity also be the most potent.

[Aur. 15:10] But he saw and knew very well the divine meekness, and humble being in God his Father; moreover he knew also very well, that it stood in such meekness from eternity, and that he also should generate in such meekness, as a loving and obedient son.

[Aur. 15:11] But now seeing he was so beauitously and gloriously imaged or formed as a king in nature, his beauteous form and feature tickled him, and so he thought with himself, I am now God, and formed or framed out of God, who can vanquish me? Or who can alter or change me? I myself will be lord, and with my sharpness rule in all things, and my body shall be the image which shall be worshipped; I will prepare and erect for myself a new kingdom: for the whole circumference, extent or region is mine, I alone am God, and none else.

[Aur. 15:12] And in his pride he struck and smote himself with darkness and blindness, and made himself a devil, and that he must be, and abide so eternally. (“In God he knew only the Majesty, and not the Word in the center, which has the fan or casting shovel: He blinded himself with the astringent darkness; for he would of necessity inflame himself, and rule in the fire over the light, and over the meekness.”)

[Aur. 15:13] Now when these evil, devilish spirits (understand the center of the genitrix) moved or boiled in God’s Salitter, and made havoc, or spoiled all therein, then there was nothing but stinging, burning, murdering, robbing, and a mere opposite or contrary will.

[Aur. 15:14] For the heart of God delighted in love and meekness; and Lucifer would necessarily turn the same by force into a raging tyranny: So there was nothing but enmity and a contrary or opposite will; for by force he kindled the Salitter of God, which had rested from eternity, and stood in its meekness.

[Aur. 15:15] Concerning this kindling in this circumference or extent, it is that God calls himself an angry, zealous or jealous God against those that hate him;¹³⁷ that is, against those who kindle his wrath and fiercness still more with their diabolical spirits, with swearing, cursing, blaspheming, and all manner of furious fierceness and wrath, which stick in the heart, with pride, covetousness, envy and anger. All that whatsoever is in you, you cast into God; (“that is, into the genitrix of nature, and therefore that must be proved and tried through the fire, and the soul’s spirit also, and the wickedness or malice must abide and remain in the fire.”)

[Aur. 15:16] Now you ask, How can that be? Answer: When you open your eyes, and see the being of God,¹³⁸ then you prick as it were with thorns into the being of God, and move or stir up the wrath and anger of God.

[Aur. 15:17] When a tone or noise sounds in your ears, so that you receive or catch it up from the being of God, then you infect it, as if you darted thunderclaps into it.

[Aur. 15:18] Consider what you do with your nostrils, and with your mouth, from which your dear new-born little son rushes forth with your speech, as a little son of all the seven spirits; and observe whether it does not storm and assault in God’s Salitter, as Lucifer did. O, there is no difference at all in this!

[Aur. 15:19] But again, on the other side, God said, *I am a merciful God to those that love me; those I will do good to, and bless them, to a thousand generations.*¹³⁹
Here observe:

[Aur. 15:20] Such are those who, contrary to the kindled wrath-fire, do, with their love, meekness and industrious earnest yearnings and kindlings of love with their prayers, quench the wrath-fire, and press on against the kindled fierceness.

[Aur. 15:21] Here indeed is many a hard blow or crushing; for the kindled wrath-fire of God falls many times so heavy upon them, and they know not where to bestow themselves; heavy mountains lie upon them, the love-cross presses sore, and is heavy.

[Aur. 15:22] But this is their comfort and strong helmet against the fierceness and the kindled fire; according as the kingly prophet David said, To the honest or the upright the light rises up in the darkness.\(^\text{140}\)

[Aur. 15:23] In this strife and fight against the wrath of God, and the kindled fierceness of the devils, and of all wicked men, the light rises up in the heart of the honest and upright; and the friendly love of God embraces him, that he may not despair in his cross, but strive further still against the wrath and fierceness.

[Aur. 15:24] If there were not at all times some honest upright men on earth, who quench the wrath of God with their opposing, the hellish fire had kindled itself long ago; and then it would have been well seen where hell is, which men do not now believe.

When the End of this Time will be.

[Aur. 15:25] But thus says the spirit; as soon as the fierceness overcomes the opposition of love in this world, then the fire kindles itself, and then there is no more time in this world.

[Aur. 15:26] But that the fierceness does terribly burn now at present, it needs no proof here, for, by woeful experience, it is known as clear as the day. Behold, there rises up yet a little fire, in the opposition against the wrath, out of a singular especial love-restraint of God: When this also grows weak, then is the end of this time. See Sig. Rerum, Ch. 10, par. 11.

[Aur. 15:27] But whether Lucifer has done rightly, in that he has awakened and stirred up the fierceness in the Salitter of God, by which this world is become stinging, venomous, thorny, rocky, envious and evil, false or wicked, let the attorneys, proctors, advocates and defenders of Lucifer answer, and plead and justify it if they can; if not, then this third bitter, stinging, venomous spirit shall be condemned also.

Of the Fourth Kind, Species, Form or Manner of Sin’s Beginning in Lucifer.

[Aur. 15:28] The fourth spirit of God is heat, which is generated between the bitter and the astringent qualities, and is conceived or bred in the sweet water, and is shining and giving light, and is the true fountain of life.

[Aur. 15:29] For in the sweet water it is very meek, from which love exists, and is only a loving warmth, but no fire.

[Aur. 15:30] Though indeed it be in the hidden kernel of the fire’s quality or original, yet that fire is not kindled or burning, for it is generated in the sweet water.

[Aur. 15:31] Now where the water is, there is no burning fire but a pleasing warmth, and a gentle qualifying or vivifying; but if the water should be dried up, then there would be burning fire there.

[Aur. 15:32] Thus lord Lucifer thought also, that if he did but kindle his fire, then he might domineer forcibly in the divine power; for he thought it would have burned eternally, and also have given light; his purpose was not to put out the light, but he would have it burn continually in the fire; he thought he would dry up the water, and then the light would move, stir or shine, in the burning fire.

[Aur. 15:33] But he knew not, that if he kindled the dried water, that the kernel, that is, the unctuosity, oil or heart of the water would be consumed, and that the light would turn into darkness, and the water turn into a sour stink.

[Aur. 15:34] For the oil or unctuosity in the water is generated through meekness or well-doing, and that is the unctuosity, oil, unction, marrow or fatness wherein the light becomes shining. But if the unctuosity be burnt up, then the water is turned into a sour stink, and moreover becomes very dark.

[Aur. 15:35] Thus it befell the pride of Lucifer: he triumphed a little while with his kindled light; but when his light was spent and burnt up, then he became a black devil.

[Aur. 15:36] But he supposed he would eternally reign thus in his burning light in the whole divine power, as a very terrible god, and so with his fire-spirit he wrestled with the Salitter of God, intending to kindle the whole circumference or extent of his kingdom.

[Aur. 15:37] And indeed he has done somewhat, in that he has set the divine power into a burning, which appears even in the sun and stars; also the fire in the Salitter in the elements is often kindled, so that it seems as if the deep were of a burning fire; of which I shall speak in another place. (“He stepped back out of the meekness into the anxious fire-will, and fell into darkness. The Reader is advertised that he must not understand in any place, as if the Devil had kindled or fired the light of God; no, but the forms of nature only, out of which the light shines. For he has not comprehended the light, as little as the fire does, which cannot lay hold on the light: But he entered into the fire, and is expelled into the darkness, and has neither fire nor light, besides, without or distinct from his creature.”

[Aur. 15:38] Now in this quality king Lucifer has prepared for himself the right hellish bath or lake. He dares not say that God has framed or erected the hellish quality for him, but he himself has done it: Moreover, he has offended the Deity, and turned the powers of God into a hellish bath or lake, for his own eternal habitation.

[Aur. 15:39] For when he and all his angels had kindled in their bodies the qualifying or fountain spirit of the fire, then the unctuousness, marrow or fatness burnt in the sweet water, and the flash or terror, which rises up fiercely in the birth of the light, became raging and tearing, burning and stinging, and a being or substance of a mere opposite or contrary will.

Of the Sting of Death.

[Aur. 15:40] Here, in this quality, the life was turned into a sting of death; for through heat the bitter quality grew so fierce, stinging, raging and burning, as if the whole body were mere fiery stings; these did tear and rage in the astringent quality, as if one did thrust red-hot bodkins through the body.

[Aur. 15:41] On the other side, the cold fire of the astringent quality was in a mad furious rage against the heat, and against the bitter venom or poison, like a great uproar or hurly-burly; and now, furthermore, in the body of Lucifer there was nothing else but a murdering, rubbing, fretting, burning and stinging, a most horrible hellish fire.

[Aur. 15:42] This fire-spirit, and right devil’s spirit, elevated itself now also in the center of the heart, and would rule through the animated or soulish spirit, (“Hereby is understood the spirit of the will, out of the center, which is generated out of the genitrix, viz. out of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, which is the image of God,”) in the whole divine power, and kindle the whole Salitter.
of God as a new and potent God; and so the formings and heavenly imagings should rise up in a horrible fiery quality, and suffer themselves to be imaged and framed according to this fierceness.

[Aur. 15:43] Now when I write of the animated soulish spirit, then you must exactly know what it is, or how it is, else you will read this birth or geniture in vain, and it will happen to you as it did to the wise Heathen, who climbed up to the very face or countenance of God, but could not see it.

[Aur. 15:44] The spirit of the soul is very much more subtle, and more incomprehensible than the body, or the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, which hold, retain and form the body; for it goes forth from the seven spirits, as God the Holy Ghost goes forth from the Father and the Son.

What the Comprehensibility is.

[Aur. 15:45] The seven qualifying or fountain spirits have their compacted or incorporated body out of nature, that is, out of the seventh nature-spirit in the divine power; which in this book I call the Salitter of God, or the Comprehensibility, wherein the heavenly figures or shapes arise.

[Aur. 15:46] And that is a spirit, as all the rest of the seven spirits are, only the other six are an incomprehensible being therein; for the divine power generates itself in the comprehensibility of the seventh nature-spirit, as it were hidden or concealed, and incomprehensible to the creatures.

[Aur. 15:47] But the animated or soulish spirit generates itself in the heart, out of or from the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, in that manner as the Son of God is generated, and keeps its seat in the heart, and goes forth from that seat in the divine power, as the Holy Ghost from the Father and the Son; for it has the same subtility as the Holy Spirit of God, and it unites, qualifies or operates with God the Holy Ghost.

[Aur. 15:48] When the animated or soulish spirit goes forth out of the body, then it is one thing with the hidden Deity, and is together the midst or center in the imaging or framing of a thing in nature, as God the Holy Ghost himself is.

[Aur. 15:49] An example whereof you have in this: as when a carpenter will build a curious house or artificial piece of architecture, or when any other artist goes about the making of some artificial work, the hands, which signify nature, cannot be the first that begin the work: but the seven spirits are the first workmasters about it, and the animated or soulish spirit shows to the seven spirits the form, figure or shape of it.

[Aur. 15:50] Then the seven spirits image or frame it, and make it comprehensible, and then the hands first begin to fall to work, to make the structure according to the image or frame contrived: For a work must be first brought to the sense, before you can make it.

[Aur. 15:51] For the soul comprehends the highest sense, it beholds what God its Father acts or makes, also it co-operates in the heavenly imaging or framing: and therefore it makes a description, draught, platform or model for the nature-spirits, showing how a thing should be imaged or framed.

[Aur. 15:52] According to this delineation or prefiguration of the soul, all things in this world are made; for the corrupted soul works or endeavors continually to bring forth or frame heavenly forms, but cannot bring that to effect, for the materials for its work are only the earthly corrupted Salitter, even a half-dead nature, wherein it cannot image or frame heavenly ideas, shapes or figures.
[Aur. 15:53] By this you may understand what great power the spirits of the expelled angels have had in the heavenly nature; and of what manner of substance this perdition or corruption is; how in their place they have corrupted and spoiled nature in heaven with their horrible kindling, from which the horrible fierceness which is predominant in this world exists.

[Aur. 15:54] For the kindled nature burns still continually until the Last Judgment Day, and this kindled fire, source or quality, is an eternal enmity against God.

[Aur. 15:55] But yet whether this kindled fire-spirit has right therein, and whether God himself has kindled it, from which the wrath-fire existed, let the Electionists or Predestinarians, or those that dispute so about Election, justify it, and prove it in nature, if they can; if not, then this fire-spirit is to be condemned also.

Of the Fifth Kind, Species, Form or Manner of Sin’s Beginning, in Lucifer and his Angels.

[Aur. 15:56] The fifth qualifying or fountain spirit in the divine power, is the gracious, amiable and blessed love, which is the very glance or aspect of meekness and humility, which is also generated in the flash of life.

[Aur. 15:57] For the flash, as a crack, penetrates suddenly, whereby joy exists, and then the stock of the kindled light in the sweet water abides standing, and presses gently through the fire after the flash, even into the astringent quality, and mitigates the fire, and makes the astringent quality beautifully mild and soft or subtle, which is also a birth or geniture of the water.

[Aur. 15:58] But when the fire tastes the mild, sweet and pliant taste, then is it mitigated and forms itself into a meek warmth, very lovingly, and there rises up a very friendly life in the fire, and penetrates the astringent quality with this pleasing, lovely, gentle warmth, and allays or stills the cold fire, and mollifies or supplies the hardness, attenuates the thick, and makes the dark to be light.

[Aur. 15:59] But when the bitter flash, together with the astringent quality and the fire-spirit, tastes this meekness, there is nothing else then but a mere longing, desiring and replenishing, a very gentle, pleasant tasting, wrestling, kissing and love-birth: For the severe births of all the qualifying or fountain spirits become, in this [inter] penetration very gentle, pleasant, humble and friendly, and the very Deity rightly subsists therein.

[Aur. 15:60] For in the first four qualifying or fountain spirits stands the divine birth or geniture; therefore they must be very earnest and strong also, though they, too, have among them their meek mother, the sweet water; and in the fifth stands the gracious, amiable and blessed love; and in the sixth the joy, and in the seventh the framing, imaging or comprehensibility.

[Aur. 15:61] Now, Lucifer! Come on; with your love; how have you behaved yourself? Is your love also such a well-spring or fountain as this? We will now view that also, and examine what manner of loving angel you are turned into.

Observe:

[Aur. 15:62] If Lucifer had not elevated and kindled himself, then his fountain of love would be no other than that in God, for there was no other Salitter in him than there is in God.

[Aur. 15:63] But when he elevated himself, intending to rule the whole Deity with his animated or soulish spirit, then the stock and heart of light, which is the kernel, marrow or pith of love in the sweet water, became a fierce and hotly pursuing fire, source or quality, from which in the whole body existed a very trembling, burning government and birth or geniture.
Now when the animated or soulish spirit was generated in this severe and astringent fire’s birth, then it pressed very furiously forth from the body into nature, or the Salitter of God, and destroyed the gracious, amiable and blessed love in the Salitter; for it pressed very fiercely, furiously and in a fiery manner through all, as a raging tyrant, and supposed that itself alone was God; itself alone would govern with its sharpness.

From here now exists the great contrary opposite will and eternal enmity between God and Lucifer; for the power of God moves very softly, meekly, pleasantly and friendly, so that its birth cannot be conceived of or apprehended, and the spirits of Lucifer move and tear very harshly, astringently, in a fiery manner, swiftly and furiously.

An example. whereof you have in the kindled Salitter of the stars, which because of this kindled fierceness must roll with the vanity, even to the Last Judgment Day: then the fierceness will be separated from them, and be given to king Lucifer for an eternal house.

But that this is a great opposite, contrary will in God, needs no proof. But a man may think, in case such a fierce fire, source or quality should rise in his body, what an untowardness and contrary will he would have in him, and how often the whole body would be in a rage and fury.

Which indeed befalls those who lodge the Devil within them; but so long as he is but a guest, he lies still like a tame whelp; but when he becomes the host himself, the master of the house, then he storms and makes havoc in the house, as he did to the body of God.

Therefore it is that the wrath-fire of God is yet in the body of God which is in this world, till the end, and many a creature is swallowed up and devoured in the wrath-fire, of which much is to be written, but it is referred to its proper place.

But now, whether God himself has created and kindled this enmity and fierce fire-source in Lucifer, they are to plead for and justify who dispute for Predestination, Foreseeing, and the Election of Grace, and they are to prove it in nature, if they can; if not, then this corrupted fire-source, which stands in the place or stead of love, shall be condemned also.

Of the Sixth Species, Kind, Form or Manner of Sin’s Beginning in Lucifer and his Angels.

The sixth qualifying or fountain spirit in the divine power is the Mercurius, or tone or tune, wherein the distinction and heavenly joy rise up.

This spirit takes its original in the fire-flash, that is, in the bitter quality, and rises up in the flash through the sweet water, wherein it mitigates itself, so that it becomes clear and bright, and is caught or held in the astringent quality, and there it touches or stirs all the spirits; and from this touching or stirring rises up the tone; its rising source or quality stands in the flash, and its body or root stands in the sweet water in the love.

Now this tone or tune is the divine joyfulness, the triumphing, wherein the divine and meek love-play, sport or scene in God rises up, as also the formings, imagings and all manner of ideas, shapes and figures.

But here you must know that this quality penetrates very gently and pleasantly with its touching or stirring, through all the spirits, in such a way and manner as when a pleasant and meek fire of joy rises up in the heart of a man, in which fire of joy the animated or soulish spirit triumphs, as if it were in heaven.
[Aur. 15:75] Now this spirit does not belong to or concern the imaging or framing of the body, but it belongs to the distinction, diversifying and mobility, especially to the joy, and to the distinction or difference in the imaging or shaping.

[Aur. 15:76] When the animated or soulish spirit in the center of the heart, in the midst or center of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, is generated, so that the will of the seven spirits is incorporated or compacted together, then the tone brings it forth from the body, and is its chariot, on which the spirit rides, and executes that which is decreed in the council of the seven spirits.

[Aur. 15:77] For the tone goes through the animated or soulish spirit into the nature of God, and into the Salitter of the seventh qualifying or fountain spirit in the divine power, which is its inventive or beginning mother, and unites, qualifies or co-operates with the same in the forming or framing, and also in the distinguishing or diversifying of the imaging or shaping.

[Aur. 15:78] Therefore when king Lucifer, in the tone, changed or transmuted his high-spirited horse into a fiery restiveness or motion in all the seven spirits, that was a terrible contrary or opposite will in the Salitter of God.

[Aur. 15:79] For when his animated or soulish spirit was generated in his body, then he stung forth from his body into the Salitter of God, as a fiery serpent out of a hole.

[Aur. 15:80] But when the mouth opened to speak, that is, when the seven spirits had incorporated or compacted the word together in their will, and sent it through the tone into the Salitter of God, then it was no otherwise than if there went a fiery thunderbolt into God’s nature; or as a fierce serpent, which tyrannizes, raves and rages as if it would tear and rend nature all to pieces.

Of the Old Serpent.

[Aur. 15:81] From this takes its original that the Devil is called the old serpent; and also, that there are adders and serpents in this corrupted world, moreover, all manner of vermin or venomous broods of worms, toads, flies, lice and fleas, and all such like things whatsoever; and from this also tempestuous weather of lightning, thundering, flashing, and hailstones take their original in this world.

Observe:

[Aur. 15:82] When the tone rises up in the divine nature, then it rises up gently from all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits jointly together, and generates the word or ideas, figures and shapes very gently.

[Aur. 15:83] That is, when one qualifying or fountain spirit creates a will to the birth or geniture, then it presses very gently through the other qualifying or fountain spirits, even into the center of the heart, and there that will is formed and approved by all the spirits.

[Aur. 15:84] And then the other six spirits speak it forth in the tone, out from God’s animated or soulish spirit; understand, out from the Heart of God, out from the Son of God, which abides standing in the center as a compacted incorporated Word.

[Aur. 15:85] And the flash out of that same Word, or the stirring of the Word, which is the tone, goes forth very finely and gently from the Word, and executes, affects or performs the will of the Word.

[Aur. 15:86] And that same forth-going from the Word is the Holy Ghost, which forms, frames and images all whatsoever was decreed in the center of the heart, in the council of the seven spirits of God the Father.
[Aur. 15:87] In such a gentle way and manner should king Lucifer also have generated, qualified or operated; and according to the right of the Deity, with his animated or soulish spirit in the Salitter, or in the nature of God, he should have helped to image or frame things, as a dear son in nature.

[Aur. 15:88] Just as a son in the house helps his father to drive or manage his work, according to his father’s way and profession, kind and art; so, in the great house of God the Father, according to the manner and way of God, should Lucifer also, with his angels, have helped with his animated or soulish spirit to image all the forms, ideas and vegetations in the Salitter of God.

[Aur. 15:89] For the whole Salitter should be a house of pleasure and delight for angelical bodies, and all should rise up according to the delight of their spirit, and they should so image themselves that they would never at all have any displeasure in any figure, shape or creature, but their animated or soulish spirit should be co-operative in every imaging; and then the Salitter would have been the creature’s proper own. (“The imaging out of the heavenly essences is performed magically, all according to the will and ability or potentiality of nature and the creatures.”)

[Aur. 15:90] If they had but continued in their meek birth or geniture, according to the divine right, then all had been their own, and their will would have been always fulfilled eternally, and nothing had been among them and in them but merely the joy of love; to speak after an earthly manner, as it were an eternal laughing, and a perpetual rejoicing in an eternal hearty delight. For God and the creatures had been one heart and one will. (“The image out of or proceeding from the soul’s fire, and the love or the divine center, are in one essence.”)

[Aur. 15:91] But when Lucifer exalted himself, and kindled his qualifying or fountain spirits, then the animated or soulish spirit went forth in the tone out of or from all the bodies of Lucifer’s angels into the Salitter of God, as a fiery serpent or dragon, and imaged and framed all manner of fiery and poisonous forms and images, like to wild, cruel and evil beasts.

[Aur. 15:92] And from this the wild, fierce and evil beasts in this world have their original. For the host or army of Lucifer had kindled the Salitter of the stars and of the earth, and half killed, spoiled and destroyed it.

[Aur. 15:93] But when God, after the fall of Lucifer, made or prepared the creation of this world, then all was created out of the same Salitter wherein Lucifer had his seat: So afterwards the creatures also in this world must of necessity be created out of that same Salitter, which then formed themselves according to the condition or kind of the kindled qualities, evil and good.

[Aur. 15:94] That beast, which had most of the fire or the bitter or the astringent quality in the Mercurius, became also a bitter, hot and fierce beast, all according as the quality was predominant or chief in the beast.

[Aur. 15:95] This I set down here only for a manuduction; you will find it demonstrated more at large concerning the creation of this world.

[Aur. 15:96] Now, whether this fiery tone or dragon-spirit in Lucifer and in his angels be right, and whether God has thus created him, let the advocates of Lucifer, who make God to be as a devil, justify it here by their answer, and prove it in nature, if they can, whether God be such a God as wills the evil, and has created the evil.

[Aur. 15:97] If not, then shall this spirit also be condemned to the eternal prison; and they should give over their lying and blaspheming of God; or else they are worse than the wild Heathen or Pagans, who know nothing of God, who notwithstanding live in God, and shall sooner possess the kingdom of heaven than many of these blasphemers of God shall, which I shall also demonstrate in its proper place.

Of the Seventh Species, kind, form, or manner of Sin’s Beginning in Lucifer and his Angels.

[Aur. 16:1] HERE you should open your eyes wide, for you will see the hidden secret things which have been kept hidden from all men since the world began. For you will see the murderous den of the Devil, and the horrible sin, enmity and perdition.

Of Sorcerers and Witches.

[Aur. 16:2] The Devil has taught man sorcery or witchcraft, thereby to strengthen and fortify his kingdom. But if he had revealed to man the right, true, fundamental ground, which lurked behind or under sorcery, many would have let it alone altogether, and not have meddled with it at all.

[Aur. 16:3] Come on you jugglers and sorcerers or witches, you that go a wooing and a whoring after the Devil: Come to my school: I will show you how, with your necromancy or art, you are carried into hell.

[Aur. 16:4] You rejoice [maliciously] with this; that the Devil is in subjection to you, and you suppose that you are gods: Here I will describe the original and ground of necromancy, for I am become also a searcher into nature, but not after your way and manner, but to discover your shame by a divine revelation, for an advertisement to this last world, and for a sentence of condemnation upon their skill and knowledge; for the judgment follows upon knowledge.

[Aur. 16:5] Seeing the bow of fierceness is already bent, let everyone look to himself, lest he be found within the limit of the mark. For the time is at hand to awake from sleep.

[Aur. 16:6] Now the seventh form, or the seventh spirit in the divine power, is nature, or the issue or exit from the other six. For the astringent quality attracts the Salitter together, or the fabric or product of all the six spirits, even as a magnet or loadstone attracts to itself the Salitter of the iron; and when it is attracted together, then it is a comprehensibility, in which the six spirits of God qualify, act or operate in an incomprehensible way or manner.

Wherein Naturality Consists.

[Aur. 16:7] This seventh spirit has a color and condition or kind of its own, as all the other spirits have; for it is the body of all the spirits, wherein they generate themselves as in a body: Also out of this spirit all figures, shapes and forms are imaged or fashioned; moreover, the angels also are created out of it, and all naturality stands therein.

[Aur. 16:8] And this spirit is always generated from the six, and subsists always continually, and is never missing or wanting, nor does ever pass away, and it again continually generates the six; for the other six are in this seventh as in a mother, enclosed or encompassed; and they receive their nourishment, power and strength always in their mother’s body or womb.

[Aur. 16:9] For the seventh spirit is the body, and the other six are the life, and in the middle center is the heart of light, which the seven spirits continually generate as a light of life; and that light is their son; and the welling out or penetration through all the spirits expands itself aloft in the heart, in the exit or rising up of the light.
[Aur. 16:10] And this is the spirit of all the seven spirits, that goes forth out of the heart of God, which there, in the seventh spirit, forms and frames all, and wherein the qualifying or fountain spirits, with their love-wrestling, show themselves endlessly.

[Aur. 16:11] For the Deity is like a wheel, which with its fellies and spokes, and with all the naves, turns about, and is fellied together, as seven wheels, so that it can go any way, forward, backward, downward, upward and crossways, without turning back.

[Aur. 16:12] Whereas yet always the form of all the seven wheels, and the one only nave in the center of all the wheels, is fully in sight, and so it is not understood how the wheel is made; but the wheel always appears more and more wonderful and marvelous, with its rising up, and yet abides also in its own place.

[Aur. 16:13] In such a manner the Deity is continually generated, and never passes away, or ceases or vanishes out of sight; and in this manner also is the life in angels and men continually generated.

[Aur. 16:14] According to the moving of the seven spirits of God the figures and creatures of the transitoriness are formed, but not thus generated; though indeed the birth or geniture of all the seven spirits shows itself therein, yet their quality stands only in the seventh nature-spirit, which the other six spirits do form, figure, frame, alter and change, according to their wrestling and rising up.

[Aur. 16:15] Therefore also the figures, and transitory forms and creatures, are changed according to the condition of the seventh nature-spirit, in which they rise up.

[Aur. 16:16] The angels are not alone imaged or framed out of the seventh nature-spirit, as the transitory creatures are, but when the Deity moved itself to the creating of angels, then in every circle, wherein each angel was incorporated or compacted together, there the Deity, with its whole substance and being, was incorporated or compacted together, (“Understand, the two eternal Principles, viz. the fire and the light, and yet not the quality or source of the fire, but the essence of it,”) and became a body, and yet the Deity continued in its seat, as before.

Understand this well:

[Aur. 16:17] The angel’s body, or the comprehensibility, is from or out of the seventh spirit, and the birth or geniture in that body is the six qualifying or fountain spirits; and the spirit or the heart, which the six spirits generate in the center of the body, in which the light rises up, and the animated or soulish spirit out of the light, which also qualifies, unites or operates with the Deity, without, distinct from the body, that signifies the heart of God, out of which the Holy Ghost goes forth.

[Aur. 16:18] And it was also from or out of the heart of God, co-united or mixed in the body of the angel in their first compacting or incorporating together; therefore the angel’s government in the mind generates itself as the Deity does.

[Aur. 16:19] And as in the seventh nature-spirit of God, which exists out of the other six, there does not stand the whole perfect knowledge of the other six spirits, for it cannot search or dive into their deep birth or geniture, in that they are its father, and generate it out of themselves.

[Aur. 16:20] So also the whole, full and perfect knowledge of God does not stand in the angelical body, but in the spirit, which is generated in the heart, which goes forth from the light, which qualifies or operates also with the heart and spirit of God, wherein the whole, full and perfect knowledge of God stands. But the body cannot apprehend that animated or soulish spirit; as also the seventh nature-spirit comprehends not the deepest birth or geniture of God.
For when the seventh nature-spirit is generated, then it is dried by the astringent quality, and is as it were staid and kept by its father, and cannot go back again into the deep, that is, into the center of the heart, where the son is generated, and from which the Holy Ghost goes forth; but must hold still as a generated body, and must give way to the qualifying or fountain veins, that is, to the spirits, to qualify, work and labor therein as they please.

For it is the proper house and habitation of the six spirits, which they continually build according to their pleasure, or as a garden of delight into which the master of it sows all manner of seeds, according to his pleasure, and then enjoys the fruit thereof.

Thus the other six spirits continually erect this garden of delight and pleasure, and sow their fruits thereinto, and feed upon it to strengthen their might and joy; and this is the garden in which the angels dwell, and walk up and down in, and wherein the heavenly fruit grows.

But the wonderful proportion or variety of harmony, which appears in the growths or vegetations and figures and forms in this garden, arises from the qualification or operation, and from the loving, wrestling or struggling of the other spirits.

For that which is predominant or chief in the striving, images or forms the growth and vegetation according to its kind, and the others always help to promote it; now the one, now the other, now the third, and so on.

Therefore also there arise so many diverse growths, vegetations and figures as are altogether unsearchable and incomprehensible to the bodily reason of the angels; but to the animated or soulish reason of the angels they are wholly, fully and perfectly comprehensible.

This is also wholly hidden as to my body, but not as to my animated or soulish spirit, for so long as my animated or soulish spirit qualifies or works with and in God it comprehends the same; but when it falls into sin, then the door is shut against it, which the Devil bolts up fast, and which must, with great labor and industry of the spirit, be set open again.

I know very well that the wrath of the Devil will mock and scoff in the hearts of many wicked men, at this revelation. For he is mightily ashamed because of this revelation; he has also given my soul many a pang and crush for it; but I leave it to the direction of God, who will have it so; I cannot resist him, though my earthly body should go to wrack for it, yet my God will glorify me in my knowledge.

The glorification of this my knowledge I desire, and no other; for I know that when this my spirit in my new body, which I shall get at the day of my resurrection, out of this my now corrupted body, shall arise, that it will appear like the Deity, as also like the holy angels.

Therefore I must now look for no other than his fierce wrath, but my stay, trust and refuge is the Champion in the Fight, who has often delivered me from his bands, in this Champion I will fight against him, till my departure out of this life.

[Aur. 16:32] If all trees were writers or clerks, and all branches were pens, and all hills were books, and all waters were ink, yet they could not sufficiently describe the lamentable misery which Lucifer, together with his angels, has brought into his place or whole space of that world wherein he was created.

[Aur. 16:33] For he has made the house of light to be a house of darkness, and the house of joy to be a house of mourning, lamentation and sadness; that which was the house of pleasure, delight, vivifying and refreshing, he has made to be a house of thirst and hunger; the house of love to be a house of eternal enmity; and the house of meekness to be a house of knocking, rumbling, thundering and lightning; the house of peace to be a house of lamenting and eternal howling; the house of laughing to be a house of eternal trembling and horror:

[Aur. 16:34] The birth or geniture of light, munificence and well-doing to be an eternal hellish pain and torment; the food of pleasing relish to be an eternal abomination and stink, a loathing of all fruits; and the house of Lebanon and cedars to be a stony and rocky house of fire; the sweet scent or relish to be a stink, and a house of ruin and desolation, an end of all good; the divine body to be a black, cold, hot, eating, corroding, and yet not consuming devil, who is an enmity against God and his angels: And so he has all the heavenly hosts or armies against him.

That God wills not Evil, nor can do.

[Aur. 16:35] Now observe: The learned have had many disputations, questions, conceits and opinions concerning the fierce malignity and evil that is in all the creatures in this world, and even in the very sun and stars; moreover, there are some so very poisonous and venomous beasts, worms and vegetables in this world, that thereupon rational men have justly wondered, and some have concluded peremptorily, That God must necessarily have willed the evil also, seeing he has created so much that is evil; and some have laid the blame and fault thereof upon the fall of Adam, and some have imputed it to the work and doings of the Devil.

[Aur. 16:36] But seeing all the creatures and vegetables were created before the time of man, therefore the fault ought not to be laid upon man; for man got not the bestial body in his creation, but it first came to be so in his fall.

[Aur. 16:37] Neither has man brought the malignity, poison and venom into the beasts, birds, worms, and stones, for he had not their body; otherwise if he had brought malignity and fierceness or wrath into all creatures, then he, like the devils, could never obtain God’s mercy.

[Aur. 16:38] Poor man did not fall out of a resolved, purposed will, but through the poisonous, venomous infection of the Devil, else there had been no remedy for him.

[Aur. 16:39] Now this true information you will find described here following, not from a zeal to vilify anybody thereby, but in love, and as a humble information and instruction from the abyss of my spirit, and for an assured comfort to the poor, sick old Adam, who now lies at the point of his last departure from here out of this world.

[Aur. 16:40] For in Christ we are all one body, therefore also this spirit would heartily fain have it so, that its fellow-members might be refreshed with a draught of the precious wine of God before their departure from here, whereby they might encounter and stand in the great fight with the Devil, and obtain the victory, that the victory of the Devil in this modern drunken world might be disappointed and destroyed, and the great name of the LORD might be sanctified.
Now behold!

[Aur. 16:41] When king Lucifer, together with his angels, was so gloriously, beautifully and divinely created, as a Cherubim and king in God, then he suffered his bright, beauteous form to befooled him, in that he saw how noble, glorious and fair a spirit rose up in him.

[Aur. 16:42] Then his seven qualifying or fountain spirits thought they would elevate and kindle themselves, and so they also would be as fair, glorious and mighty as the animated or soulish spirit, and thereby would domineer, by their own power and authority, in the whole court, circumference, dominion or extent as a new god.

[Aur. 16:43] They saw very well that the animated or soulish spirit qualified, mixed or operated with the heart of God; and thereupon they were resolved they would elevate and kindle themselves, hoping to be as bright, illustrious, deep and almighty as the deepest ground in the center of the heart of God.

[Aur. 16:44] For they thought to elevate the natural body (which was compacted together or incorporated out of the nature-spirit of God), up into the hidden birth or geniture of God, that their seven qualifying or fountain spirits might thus be as high, and as all-comprehensible as the animated or soulish spirit.

[Aur. 16:45] And the animated or soulish spirit would triumph over the center of the heart of God, and the heart of God should be subjected under it; and so the seven spirits of God would image, frame and form all, by their animated or soulish spirit.

[Aur. 16:46] And this high mind and self-will was directly and wholly against the birth or geniture of God; for the body of the angels should abide and remain in its seat, and be nature, and, as a humble mother, hold still and be quiet, and should not have the omniscience, and own self rational comprehensibility of the heart, or of the deepest birth or geniture of the Holy Trinity; but the seven spirits should generate themselves in their natural body, as is done in God.

[Aur. 16:47] And their comprehensibility should not be in the hidden kernel, or in the innermost birth or geniture of God, but the animated or soulish spirit, which they generate in the center of their heart, should qualify, mix or operate with the innermost birth or geniture of God, and help to form all figures, shapes and images, according to the pleasure, delight and will of the seven spirits, whereby, in the divine pomp, all might be but one heart and one will.

[Aur. 16:48] For the birth or geniture of God also is thus; the seventh nature-spirit does not reach back into its father, which generates it, but holds still and is quiet as a body, and lets the father’s will, which is the other six spirits, to form and image in it how they please.

[Aur. 16:49] Neither does any one spirit particularly and severally reach, with its corporeal being, after the heart of God, but includes, closes or joins its will with the others, in the center, to the birth or geniture of the heart, so that the heart and the seven spirits of God are one will.

[Aur. 16:50] For this is the law of the comprehensibility, that it does not elevate itself up into the incomprehensibility; for the power which, in the center or midst, is compacted together or incorporated out of all the seven spirits is incomprehensible and unsearchable, but not invisible; for it is not the power of one spirit alone, but of all seven.

spirit; not in the fiery essence of the soul, but in the essence of the light, wherein the image of God stands.”

[Aur. 16:52] But in the instanding or innate birth or geniture of the spirits, where the one still generates the other, there every spirit generates all the seven spirits, but yet only in the rising flash of the life.

[Aur. 16:53] But the heart, when it is generated, is singular or distinct, viz. a peculiar person, and yet not separated from the spirits; but the spirits cannot transmute or change themselves, in their first birth or geniture, one into another.

[Aur. 16:54] Also the second cannot change itself into the third, which is the exit of the spirit; but every birth or geniture abides in its seat; and yet all the births or genitures together are but the one only God.

[Aur. 16:55] But seeing the body of Lucifer was created out of nature, [which is] the most outward birth or geniture, therefore it was unjustly done that he should elevate himself into the innermost and deepest, which he could not do in the divine right, but must only so elevate and kindle himself that thereby the qualifying or fountain spirits might be set or put into the sharpest penetrating and infecting.

[Aur. 16:56] I truly suppose, indeed, that you, fair Necromancer, have changed yourself to purpose; and may well also teach men your black art, that they perhaps might also become such potent gods as you are.

[Aur. 16:57] You blind and proud necromancers, jugglers and sorcerers, your art consists in your changing the elements of your body by your conjurations and instruments of the qualities or qualifying properties, which you make use of to that purpose, and you think you have right so to do; but is it not against the birth or geniture of God? If you think not, make that appear.

[Aur. 16:58] How can you well suppose that you can change yourselves into another form? Indeed you suffer the Devil thus to play the ape with you, and cheat you; and all this while you are but blind in your own skill. Though you have learned your art never so well, yet you do not know the purpose it drives at; for the pith and heart therein is the changing or altering of the qualifying or fountain spirits, as Lucifer did, when he would needs be God.

[Aur. 16:59] Now you ask, How can that be? Behold, when the corporeal, qualifying or fountain spirits set their will into sorcery or witchcraft, then the animated or soulish spirit, which they generate, and which in the astral elementary quality rules in the hidden and deepest center, is clearly already a sorcerer or witch, and has changed, transformed or metamorphosed itself into sorcery or witchcraft.

[Aur. 16:60] But the bestial body cannot follow so suddenly and nimbly, but must be charmed to it by characters and conjurations, and by some instruments for that purpose, whereby the animated or soulish spirit makes the bestial body invisible, and changes it into such a form as the will of the qualifying or fountain spirits was in, at the beginning of its purpose to a metamorphosis or transmutation.

[Aur. 16:61] The bestial flesh cannot well change itself, or put itself into another birth or geniture, but is brought into a slender and inferior base form, as of a beast, of wood, or such like thing which has its body qualifying or boiling in the elements, as in their fountain.

[Aur. 16:62] But the astral spirits can well clothe themselves in another form or shape, but that continues so long only as the birth or geniture of nature above their pole or zenith permits them.
For when it changes itself with its wheeling and penetrating, so that another qualifying or fountain spirit becomes chief or predominant, then their art lies down upon the ground, and their deity in the first qualifying or fountain spirit, in which they had begun their art, has an end.

Now if it be to last any longer, then it must be made again afresh according to the qualifying or fountain spirit then ruling at that present, or the Devil with his animated or soulish spirit must be in the astral spirits of the body, which instantly and suddenly changes it, or else his art is here also at an end.

For nature will not suffer itself to be juggled with at all times and hours, as the spirits would have it, but all must be done according to that spirit which then at that present time is lord and chief or predominant.

It is not that spirit of God which is lord and chief in nature, which causes or makes the juggling, but it is made in the fierceness of the Salitter, which lord Lucifer has kindled with his elevation, and which is his eternal kingdom.

But when the power or might of that spirit is allayed, then the kindled fire can be no more useful to the juggler.

For the wrath-fire in nature is not, during this time of the world, the Devil's own house of his power; for the love stands hidden in the center of the wrath-fire, and Lucifer, together with his angels, lies imprisoned in the outward wrath-fire, even until the Judgment of God: Then he will have the wrath-fire separated from the love, for an eternal bath or lake, and he will wash his juggler's head and face withal, doubtless.

This I set you down here for a warning, that you may know what manner of ground sorcery or witchcraft has, not in such a way as if I would write any heathenish sorcery or witchcraft, neither have I learned any; but the animated or soulish spirit beholds their juggling, which in the body I do not understand.

But seeing it runs counter, quite contrary to the love and meekness of the birth or geniture of God, and is a contrary or opposite will in the love of God, so that he is loath to hurt man, unless pressing necessity drives him to it, therefore will the spirit have the wrath-bath or lake of nature set apart to be an eternal parching or drying place for jugglers, perverters or changers of God's ordinance or order: And therein they may practice and show forth their new deity.

Of the Kindling of the Wrath-Fire.

Now when king Lucifer, together with all his angels, kindled himself, then the wrath-fire rose up instantly in the body, and the gracious amiable and blessed light was extinguished in the animated or soulish spirit, and became a fierce, furious, devilish spirit, all according to the kindling and will of the qualifying or fountain spirits.

Now this animated or soulish spirit was bound or united with the Deity, in nature, and could qualify, mix or operate in and with the same, as if it were one and the same thing; and that now darted forth out of the bodies of the devils into the nature of God, like a thief and a murderer that desired to rob, murder and spoil all, and bring all under its power, and so kindled all the seven spirits in nature. And then there was nothing else but an astringent, bitter, fiery and cracking burning, tearing and raging.

You must not think that the Devil has thus powerfully and mightily overcome the Deity. No; but he has kindled the wrath of God, which, indeed, had otherwise rested eternally in secret, and so he has made the Salitter of God to be a murderous den; for if fire be cast into a heap of straw, and the straw kindled, it will burn. God has not, on that account become a devil.

[Aur. 16:74] Moreover, the wrath-fire of God does not reach in nature into the innermost kernel of the heart, which is the Son of God, much less into the secret glory or holiness of the spirit, but into the birth or geniture of the six qualifying or fountain spirits, in the place where the seventh is generated.

[Aur. 16:75] For in that place, or in this birth or geniture, is lord Lucifer become a creature, and his dominion did reach no farther or deeper than so; but if he had continued in the love, then his animated or soulish spirit had reached even to the center of the heart of God, for love presses or penetrates through the whole Deity.

[Aur. 16:76] But when his love was extinguished, then the animated or soulish spirit could no more reach into the heart of God, and so his attempt was in vain; but he raved and raged in nature, that is, in the seventh qualifying or fountain spirit of God.

[Aur. 16:77] But seeing the power of all the seven spirits stood in this one, therefore also all the seven were kindled in the wrath, but yet only in the outward and comprehensible qualification or constitution.

[Aur. 16:78] For the Devil could not touch the heart, neither could he touch the innermost birth or geniture of the qualifying or fountain spirits; for his glory of the seven spirits was already mortified in the first flash of kindling, and was presently held captive and imprisoned in the first exit of the animated or soulish spirit.

[Aur. 16:79] In this hour king Lucifer prepared for himself the hell and eternal perdition, which now stands in the outermost qualifying or fountain spirit of the nature of God, or in the outermost birth or geniture of this world.

[Aur. 16:80] But when nature kindled itself thus horribly, then the house of joy came to be a house of trouble, affliction and misery. For the astringent quality became kindled in its own house, which is a very hard, cold and dark essence, like a cold, hard frosty winter, which only attracted the Salitter together, and dried it up, so that it became rugged, cold and sharp like stones, wherein the heat was captivated, imprisoned, and also attracted together, and so formed or framed into a hard, cold, dark essence.

[Aur. 16:81] When this was done the light in nature was extinguished in the outermost birth or geniture also, and all became very dark, perished and spoiled; the water became very cold and thick, and stayed here and there in the clefts. This is the original of the elementary water on earth.

[Aur. 16:82] For before the times of the world the water was very thin or rarified, like air, and then the life was generated therein also, which water is now so mortal, corrupted, perished and spoiled, and so rolls and runs to and fro.

[Aur. 16:83] The gracious, amiable and blessed love which rose up in the flash of the life, became a fierce and bitter venom or poison, a very murderous den, a sting of death: The tone or tune became like the hard knocking or loud rumbling of stones, and a house of lamentation.

[Aur. 16:84] Briefly, all was a mere dark and miserable being in the whole circumference, extent or dominion, in the outermost birth or geniture of the kingdom of Lucifer.

[Aur. 16:85] But you must not think that nature was thus corrupted and kindled even to the innermost ground, but only the outermost birth or geniture; but the innermost, in which the seven qualifying or fountain spirits generate themselves, retained its own right to itself, seeing the kindled devil could not reach into it.
But now the inner birth or geniture has the fan or casting-shovel in its hand, and will one day purge its floor, and give the chaff or husks to the kingdom of Lucifer for eternal food.

For if the Devil could have reached into the innermost birth or geniture, then instantly the whole circumference, court or extent of his kingdom would have been the kindled burning hell.

But now he must lie captivated and imprisoned in the outermost birth or geniture, even till the Last Judgment Day, which is at hand, and very near to be expected.

But Lucifer has kindled his qualifying or fountain spirits even in the innermost birth or geniture, and now his qualifying or fountain spirits generate an animated or soulish devil’s spirit, which is an eternal enemy of God.

For when God was angry in his outermost birth or geniture in nature, then it was not his purposed determinate will to be kindled, neither has he effected that kindling; but he has drawn the Salitter together, and thereby has prepared an eternal lodging for the Devil.

For the Devil cannot be expelled quite out, away, beyond God, into another kingdom of angels; but a place must be reserved to him for a habitation.

Neither would God presently give him the kindled Salitter for an eternal habitation, for the internal birth or geniture of the spirits stood yet hidden therein.

For God intended to do somewhat else with it, and so king Lucifer would be kept a prisoner till another angelical host or army, out of the same Salitter, should come in his stead, which are men.

Now come on, you advocates [or justifiers] of Lucifer, maintain the cause of your king now, and show whether he has done right in kindling of the wrath-fire in nature; if not, then he must burn therein eternally, and your lies against the truth must burn with him.

These are the seven kinds, species, forms or manners of sin’s beginning, and eternal enmity against God.

Now follows briefly concerning,

The Four New Little Sons of Lucifer

Which he has generated in himself in his corporeal regimen, for which he was expelled from his place, and is become the most horrible Devil.

Of the First Son, Pride.

Now it may be asked, What moved Lucifer to this, that he would need to be above God? Here you must know, that without, distinct from himself, he had no impulse at all to his pride, but his beauty and brightness deceived him. When he saw that he was the fairest and most beautiful prince in heaven, then he despised the friendly qualifying, mixing, operating and generating of the Deity, and thought with himself that he would rule with his princely power in the whole Deity; all must stoop and bow to him.

But when he found that he could not effect it, then he kindled himself, intending to do it some other way; and so then the Son of Light became a Son of Darkness; for he himself consumed the power of his sweet water, and made it to be a sour stink.
Of the Second Son, Covetousness.\textsuperscript{147}

[Aur. 16:98] The second will was covetousness, which grew out of pride, for Lucifer thought with himself that he would reign over all kingdoms, as a sole god; all should bow to him, he would form and frame all with his own power; and besides, also his beauty so deceived him that he thought he would have all in his sole possession.

[Aur. 16:99] This modern world would do well to speculate on this pride and covetousness, and to consider how it is an enmity against God; and that thereby they go headlong to the Devil, and there must have their jaws and throats open eternally to rob and devour, and yet find nothing but hellish abomination.

Of the Third Son, Envy.\textsuperscript{148}

[Aur. 16:100] This son is the very gout of this world; for it takes its original in the flash of pride and covetousness, and stands on the root of life as pricking and bitter gall.

[Aur. 16:101] This spirit also came at first from pride, for pride thought and said to itself, Surely you are beautiful, and mighty potent; and covetousness thought and said to itself, All must be yours; and envy thought and said to itself, All which is not obedient unto you, you must kill with your stinging; and thus it stung at the other gates of angels. But all was in vain, for its power and might reached no farther than the extent of the place out of which it was created.

Of the Fourth Son, Wrath.\textsuperscript{150}

[Aur. 16:102] This son is the very burning hellish fire, and takes its original also from pride. For when Lucifer with his antagonistic envy could not fill his pride and covetousness, then he kindled the wrath-fire in himself, and roared therewith into God's nature, as a fierce lion, and from which then arose the wrath of God and all evil.

[Aur. 16:103] Of which much were to be written, but [in the present book] you will find it more apprehensibly at the place concerning the creation: For there are to be found living testimonies enough, so that none need doubt whether the things be so or no.

[Aur. 16:104] Thus king Lucifer is the beginning of sin and the sting of death, and the kindling of God's wrath, and the beginning of all evil, a corruption, perdition and destruction of this world; and whatever evil is done, there he is the first author and causer thereof.

[Aur. 16:105] Also he is a murderer and father of lies, and a founder of hell, a spoiler and corrupter, and destroyer of all that is good, and an eternal enemy of God, and of all good angels and men; against whom I, and all men that think to be saved, must daily and hourly struggle and fight, as against the worst and arch enemy.

The Final Condemnation

[Aur. 16:106] But seeing God has accursed him as an eternal enemy, and condemned him unto eternal imprisonment, where God now sees his hourglass more and more plainly before his eyes; and seeing his hellish kingdom is revealed to me by the Spirit of God; so I, together with and among all holy souls of men, curse him also, and renounce and defy him as an eternal enemy, who has often spoiled and torn up my vineyard.

[Aur. 16:107] Moreover, I defy also all his lawyers\textsuperscript{151} and helpers; and will, with the divine grace, from here forward fully reveal his kingdom, and demonstratively prove that God is a God of love and meekness, who wills not the evil,\textsuperscript{152} and who has no pleasure in the perdition of any, but wills... that all men should be helped or saved. Then I will show and prove also that all evil comes from the Devil, and takes its original from him.

Of the final Fight and Expulsion of King Lucifer, together with all his Angels.

[Aur. 16:108] Now when this horrible Lucifer, as a tyrant and raging spoiler of all that is good, showed himself thus terribly, as if he would kindle and destroy all, and bring all under his jurisdiction, then all the heavenly hosts and armies were against him, and he also against them all; there now the fight began, for all stood most terribly, one party against another.

[Aur. 16:109] And the great prince Michael with his legions fought against him; and the Devil with his legions had not the victory, but was driven from his place, as one vanquished.

[Aur. 16:110] Now it may be asked, What manner of fight was this? How could they fight one with another without weapons? The spirit alone understands this hidden secret, which spirit must fight daily and hourly with the Devil, the outward flesh cannot comprehend it; also the astral spirits in man cannot understand it, neither is it comprehended by man at all, unless the animated or soulish spirit unite, qualify and operate with the innermost birth or geniture in nature, in the center, where the light of God is set opposite against the Devil’s kingdom, that is, in the third birth or geniture, in the nature of this world.

[Aur. 16:111] When it unites, qualifies or operates with God in this seat, then the animated or soulish spirit carries it into the astral; for the astral must in this place fight hourly with the Devil.

[Aur. 16:112] For the Devil has power in the outermost birth or geniture of man; for his seat is there. [This seat is] the murderous den of perdition, and the house of misery and woe, wherein the Devil whets the sting of death, and through his animated or soulish spirit he reaches in into the heart of man, in man’s outermost birth or geniture.

[Aur. 16:113] But when the astral spirits are enlightened from the animated or soulish spirit, which in the light unites with God, then they grow fervent, and very longing and desirous of the light. On the other hand, the animated or soulish spirit of the Devil, which rules in the outermost birth or geniture of man, is very terrible and angry, and of a very contrary or opposite will.

[Aur. 16:114] And then there rises up the striving or fighting fire in man, just as it rose up in heaven with Michael and Lucifer, and so the poor soul comes to be miserably crushed, stretched, tormented and put upon the rack.

[Aur. 16:115] But if it gets the victory, then it brings with its piercing penetration its light and knowledge into the outermost birth or geniture of man; for it presses back with force through the seven spirits of nature, which here I call the astral spirits, and governs in the council [or counsel] of reason.

[Aur. 16:116] Then man first knows what the Devil is, how much an enemy he is to him, and how great his power is; also how he must fight with him very secretly, every day, hour and moment.

[Aur. 16:117] Which thing reason, or the outward birth or geniture of man, without the experience of this fight or battle, cannot comprehend. For the third or outermost birth or geniture in man, which is the carnal or fleshly birth, and which man through the first fall in his lust has raised and prepared for himself, is the Devil’s castle or fort of prey or robbery and dwelling-house, wherein the Devil, as in a bulwark, fights with the soul, and gives it many a hard knock on the head.
[Aur. 16:118] Now this birth of the flesh is not the mansion-house of the soul, but in its strife the soul goes in with its light into the divine power, and fights against the murder of the Devil.

[Aur. 16:119] On the other hand, the Devil with his poison shoots and darts at the seven qualifying or fountain spirits which generate the soul, intending to destroy and to kindle them, that thereby he may get the whole body for his own propriety.

[Aur. 16:120] Now if the soul would willingly bring its light and knowledge into the human mind, then it must fight and strive hard and stoutly, and yet has a very narrow passage to enter in at; it will often be knocked down by the Devil, but it must stand to it here, like a champion in the battle. And if it now gets the victory, then it has conquered the Devil; but if the Devil prevails and gets the better, then the soul is captivated.

[Aur. 16:121] But seeing the fleshly birth or geniture is not the soul’s own proper house, and that it cannot possess it as an inheritance, as the Devil does, therefore the fight and the battle lasts as long as the house of flesh lasts.

[Aur. 16:122] But if the house of flesh be once destroyed, and that the soul is not yet conquered or vanquished in its house, but is free and unimprisoned, then the fight is ended, and the Devil must be gone from this spirit eternally.

[Aur. 16:123] Therefore this is a very difficult article to be understood; nay, it cannot be understood at all, except by experience in this fight. Though I should write many books thereof, yet you would understand nothing of it, unless your spirit stand in such a birth or geniture, and that the knowledge be generated in yourself; otherwise you can neither comprehend nor believe it.

[Aur. 16:124] But if you comprehend this, then also you understand the strife or the fight which the angels held with the devils. For the angels have not flesh nor bones, no more have the devils.

[Aur. 16:125] For their bodily or corporeal birth stands only in the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, but the animated or soulish birth in the angels unites, mixes or operates with God; but it is not so in the devils.

[Aur. 16:126] Therefore you must here know that the angels, with their animated or soulish birth in which they qualify and unite with God, have striven and fought in God’s power and spirit against the kindled devils, and turned them out from the light of God, and driven them together into a hole, that is, into a narrow court, quarter or compass, like a prison, which is the place or space in, upon and above the earth, up to the moon, which is a goddess of the earthly birth or geniture.

What will be called the Burning Hell.

[Aur. 16:127] So far reaches their extent now, till the last day, and then they will get a house in that place where the earth now is and stands, and this will be called the burning hell. (“That is, in the outermost birth in the darkness, wherein they reach not the second Principle and source or fountain of the light.”)

[Aur. 16:128] Lord Lucifer, wait for it, and in the meanwhile take this for an assured prophecy concerning it; for you will get the kindled Salitter in the outermost birth or geniture (which you yourself have so prepared and fitted), to be your eternal house to dwell in.

[Aur. 16:129] But not in such a form as [that in which] it now stands, but all will be separated in the kindled wrath-fire; and the dark, hot, cold, rugged, hard, bitter, stinking refuse, will be left you for an eternal inn and lodging.
[Aur. 16:130] You will be such an eternal, almighty god therein, as a prisoner in a deep prison or dungeon, where you will neither attain nor see the eternal light of God. But the kindled bitter wrath of God will be your boundaries, out of which you can never get.
CHAPTER 17
Of the lamentable and miserable state and condition of the corrupt perished Nature, and Original of the four Elements, instead of the holy Government of God.

[Aur. 17:1] ALTHOUGH God be an eternal, almighty regent or governor, whom none can resist, yet nature in its kindling has now gotten a very monstrous strange government, such as was not before the times of the wrath.

[Aur. 17:2] For the six qualifying or fountain spirits did generate the seventh nature-spirit before the times of the wrath, in the place of this world, very meekly and pleasantly, as is now done in heaven, and not so much as the least spark of wrath or anger rose up therein.

[Aur. 17:3] Moreover, all was very bright and light therein, neither was there need of any other light; but the fountain or well-spring of the Heart of God enlightened all, and was a light in all, which did shine everywhere all over incessantly without any obstacle. For nature was very rarified and thin or transparent, and all stood merely in power, and was in a very pleasant lovely temper.

[Aur. 17:4] But as soon as in nature the fight began with the proud devil, then in the seventh nature-spirit, in the court, region or extent of Lucifer, which is the place of this world, all got another form and operation.

What is called the Wrath of God.

[Aur. 17:5] For nature got a twofold source, and the outermost birth or geniture in nature was kindled in the wrath-fire, which fire now is called the wrath of God, or the burning hell.

Note.

[Aur. 17:6] Here is required most inward sense or perception to understand this; for the place where the light is generated in the heart alone comprehends it, the outward man does not comprehend it at all.

[Aur. 17:7] But behold! When Lucifer with his host or army stirred or awakened the wrath-fire in the nature of God, so that God was moved to anger in nature in the place of Lucifer, then the outermost birth or geniture in nature got another quality, which was very fierce, astringent, cold, hot, bitter and sour.

[Aur. 17:8] The moving or boiling spirit, which before qualified or operated very meekly in nature, became, in its outermost birth or geniture, very exalted and terrible; which now, in the outer-most birth, is called the wind, or the element of air, in regard of its elevation or expansion.

[Aur. 17:9] For when the seven spirits kindled themselves in their outermost birth or geniture, then they generated such a violent moving spirit; and so the sweet water, which before the times of the wrath was very rarified and thin and incomprehensible, grew very thick and elevated and swelled, and the astringent quality grew very sharp and cold-fiery or fierce-cold, for it got a strong attracting together, like salt.

[Aur. 17:10] For the saltwater or salt, which still to this day is found in the earth, has its original and descent from the first kindling of the astringent quality; and so the stones also have their beginning and descent from there, as also the earth.
[Aur. 17:11] For the astringent quality now attracted the Salitter very strongly together, and dried it, from which the bitter earth is proceeded; but the stones are from the Salitter which at that time stood in the power of the tone or tune.

[Aur. 17:12] For as nature, with the working, wrestling and rising up of its birth or geniture, stood in the time of the kindling, just such a matter attracted itself together.

How a Comprehensible is come out of an Incomprehensible.

[Aur. 17:13] Now it may be asked, How then is a comprehensible or palpable son come to be out of an incomprehensible mother? You have a similitude of this, in that the earth and stones are proceeded out of the incomprehensibility.

[Aur. 17:14] For behold, the deep between heaven and earth is also incomprehensible, and yet the elementary qualities sometimes generate living comprehensible flesh therein, as grass-hoppers, flies, and worms or creeping things.

[Aur. 17:15] Which is caused by the strong attracting together of the qualities, in which attracted Salitter, the life is suddenly generated. For when the heat kindles the astringent quality, then the life rises up, for the bitter quality stirs itself, which is the original of life.

[Aur. 17:16] So in like manner the earth and stones have their descent; for when the Salitter kindled itself in nature, then all became very rugged, thick and dark, like a thick dark mist or cloud, which the astringent quality dried up hard with its coldness.

[Aur. 17:17] But seeing the light in the outermost birth was extinguished, the heat also was captivated in the comprehensibility or palpability, and could no more generate its life. From there death came into nature, so that nature or the corrupt earth could no more help it, and thereupon another creation of light must necessarily follow, or else the earth would have been an eternal indissolvable death; but now the earth generates or brings forth fruit in the power and kindling of the created light.

[Aur. 17:18] Now one might ask, What is the condition then of this twofold birth or geniture? Is God then extinguished in the kindling of the wrath-fire, in the place of this world, so that nothing else is there but a mere wrath-fire? Or is the one only God become a twofold God? You cannot better comprehend, apprehend or understand this, than in and by your own body, which, through the first fall of Adam with all its [the body’s] birth or geniture, fitness, faculties and will, is become just such a house as the place of this world is come to be.

[Aur. 17:19] First, you have the bestial flesh, which is come to be so through the lustful longing bite of the apple; for it is the house of corruption. For when Adam was made out of the corrupted Salitter of the earth, that is, out of the seed, or mass, or lump which the Creator extracted out of the corrupted earth, he was not then at first such flesh, else his body had been created mortal, but he had an angelical power-body, in which he should have subsisted eternally, and should have eaten angelical fruit, which did grow for him in Paradise before his fall, before the LORD cursed the earth.

[Aur. 17:20] But seeing the seed, or mass, or lump, out of which Adam was made, was somewhat infected with the corrupt disease or malady of the Devil, Adam therefore longed after his mother, that is, to eat of the fruit of the corrupted earth, which then in its outward comprehensibility was become so evil, and in the wrath-fire was become so hard, palpable and comprehensible.
[Aur. 17:21] But seeing Adam’s spirit longed after that fruit which was of the quality of the corrupted earth, therefore also nature formed or framed such a tree for him as was like the corrupted earth.

[Aur. 17:22] For Adam was the heart in nature, and therefore his animated or soulish spirit did help to image, fashion or form this tree, of which he would fain eat.

[Aur. 17:23] But when the Devil saw that the lust was in Adam, then he stung confidently at the Salitter in Adam, and infected yet more and more the Salitter, out of which Adam was made.

[Aur. 17:24] Then it was time that the Creator should frame a wife for him, who afterwards set the sin on work, and did eat of the false, evil or corrupt fruit. Else if Adam had eaten of the tree before the woman had been made out of him, then it would have been far worse than it is.

[Aur. 17:25] But seeing this requires a high and deep description, as also requires much room, therefore seek for it concerning the fall of Adam, where you will find it largely described.

So now I return to the aforementioned Similitude.

[Aur. 17:26] Now when Adam did eat of the fruit, which was good and evil, then he suddenly got such a body also. The fruit was corrupt or perished, and palpable, as to this day all fruits now on earth are; and so such a fleshly and palpable or comprehensible body Adam and Eve got instantly.

[Aur. 17:27] But now the flesh is not the whole man; for this flesh cannot comprehend or apprehend the Deity, else the flesh were not mortal and corruptible, or fading and transitory; for Christ said, It is the spirit that quickens, the flesh profits nothing.

[Aur. 17:28] For this flesh cannot inherit the kingdom of heaven, but is only a seed which is sown into the earth, out of which will grow an impalpable or incomprehensible body, such as the first was before the fall. But the spirit is eternal life, which unites, qualifies or mixes with God, and comprehends the internal Deity in nature.

[Aur. 17:29] Now as man in his outward being is corrupted, and as to his fleshly birth or geniture is in the wrath of God, and is moreover also an enemy of God, and yet is but one man, and not two; and on the other hand, in his spiritual birth or geniture he is a child and heir of God, who rules and lives with God, and qualifies, mixes or unites with the innermost birth or geniture of God; thus also is the place of this world come to be.

[Aur. 17:30] The outward comprehensibility or palpability in the whole nature of this world, and of all things which are therein, stands all in the wrath-fire of God, for it is become thus through the kindling of nature; and lord Lucifer with his angels has his dwelling now in the same outward birth or geniture which stands in the wrath-fire.

[Aur. 17:31] But now the Deity is not so separated from the outward birth or geniture, as if they were two things in this world; if so, man could have no hope, and then this world did not stand in the power and love of God.

[Aur. 17:32] But the Deity is in the outward birth, hidden, and has the fan or casting shovel in its hand, and will one day cast the chaff and the kindled Salitter upon a heap, and will draw away from it its inward birth or geniture, and give them to lord Lucifer and his crew of followers for an eternal house.

[Aur. 17:33] In the meanwhile lord Lucifer must lie captive and imprisoned in the outermost birth in the nature of this world, in the kindled wrath-fire; and therein he has great power, and can reach into the heart of all creatures with his animated or soulish spirit in the outermost birth or geniture, which stands in the wrath-fire.
How the Devil still presents the Crab-apples of Paradise before the soul.

[Aur. 17:34] Therefore the soul of man must fight and strive continually with the Devil, for he still presents before it the crab-apples of Paradise—("That is, the fierce source of malignity, wherewith the soul is infected.")—and invites it also to bite thereof, that he thereby may also bring it into his prison.

[Aur. 17:35] If that will not succeed to his purpose, then he strikes many a hard blow at the head, and that man must continually lie under the cross, affliction and misery in this world.

[Aur. 17:36] For he hides the noble grain of mustard-seed, so that man does not know himself. And then the world supposes that the man is thus plagued and smitten of God, whereby the Devil’s kingdom remains always hidden and undiscovered.

[Aur. 17:37] But stay a little; you have given me also many a blow, I have experimental knowledge of you, and here I will open your door to you a little, that another also may see what you are.
CHAPTER 18

Of the Creation of Heaven and Earth; and of the First Day.

[Aur. 18:1] MOSES writes in his first book as if he had been present, and had beheld all with his eyes; but without doubt he received it in writing from his forefathers: It may be he, in the spirit, might well have discerned somewhat more herein than his forefathers did.

[Aur. 18:2] But because at that time, when God created heaven and earth, there was yet no man who saw it, therefore it may be concluded that Adam before his fall, while he was yet in the deep knowledge of God, knew it in the spirit.

[Aur. 18:3] But yet when he fell, and was set into the outward birth or geniture, he knew it no more, but kept it in remembrance, only as a dark and veiled story; and this he left to his posterity.

[Aur. 18:4] For it is manifest, that the first world before the deluge or flood knew as little of the qualities and birth or geniture of God as this last world wherein we now live knows: For the external fleshly birth or geniture could never apprehend or understand the Deity, otherwise somewhat more would have been written of it.

[Aur. 18:5] But seeing through the divine grace in this high article this great mystery has been somewhat revealed to me, in my spirit, according to the inward man (which qualifies, mixes and unites with the Deity), therefore I cannot forbear to describe it according to my gifts. And I would have the Reader faithfully admonished not to be offended at the simplicity of the author.

[Aur. 18:6] For I do it not out of a desire of boasting and vainglory, but in a humble information to the Reader (that thereby the works of God might be somewhat better known, and the Devil’s kingdom revealed and laid open, seeing this present modern world moves and lives in all malice, wickedness and devilish vicious blasphemies), and that the world might once see in what kind of power, impulse or driving it lives, and in what kind of inn it takes up its lodging.

[Aur. 18:7] I do it to try whether I may, with the entrusted talent, happily get gain of usury, and not return it to my God and Creator again singly and empty, without improvement, like the lazy servant who had stood idle in the vineyard of the Lord, and would require his wages without having labored at all.

[Aur. 18:8] But if the Devil should raise mockers and despisers, who would say it does not become me to climb so high into the Deity, and to dive so deep thereinto:

[Aur. 18:9] To all of them I give this for an answer: That I am not climbed up into the Deity, neither is it possible for such a mean man as I am to do it; but the Deity is climbed up into me, and from its love are these things revealed to me, which otherwise I, in my half-dead fleshly birth or geniture, must necessarily have let alone altogether.

[Aur. 18:10] But seeing I have such an impulse upon me, I let him act and move in me, he who knows and understands what it is, and whose pleasure it is that I should do it; I, poor man of earth, dust and ashes, could not do it. But the spirit invites and cites all such mockers and despisers [to come] before the innermost birth or geniture of God in this world, [and] to desist from their wickedness and malice: If not, then they shall be spewed out as hellish chaff into the outermost birth or geniture in the wrath of God.
Now observe:

[Aur. 18:11] When God was now moved to anger in the third birth or geniture, in the court, quarters or region of Lucifer, which was all the space and room or extent of this world, then the light was extinguished in the third birth or geniture, and all became a darkness, and the Salitter in the third birth or geniture was rough, wild, hard, bitter, sour, and in some parts stinking, stagnant and morass-like, all according to the birth or geniture of the qualifying or fountain spirits then at that time working.

[Aur. 18:12] For in that place wherein the astringent quality was predominant, there the Salitter was attracted together and dried, so that hard dry stones came to be; but in those places where the astringent spirit and the bitter were equally alike predominant, there sharp small gravel and sand came to be, for the raging bitter spirit brake the Salitter all to pieces.

[Aur. 18:13] But in those places where the tone, together with the astringent spirit, was predominant in the water, there copper, iron, and such like rocky ores of minerals came to be: but where the water was predominant, together with all the spirits jointly and equally, there the wild earth came to be, and the water was here and there like a cloud or vapour held captive in the clefts and veins or spaces of the rocks; for the astringent spirit, as the father of corrupted nature, held it captive with its sharp attracting together.

[Aur. 18:14] But the bitter spirit is the chief cause of the black earth, for through its fierce bitterness the Salitter became killed in its outermost birth or geniture, from which existed the wild or barren earth.

[Aur. 18:15] But the heat in the astringent spirit chiefly helped to make the hardness; but where that [hardness] came to be, there it [the heat] generated the noblest and most precious Salitter in the earth, as gold, silver, and precious stones.

[Aur. 18:16] For when the shining light, by reason of the hard, dry and rough matter, became extinguished, then it was together dried up and incorporated in the heat, which is the father of the light.

Yet you must understand it thus:

[Aur. 18:17] Where the hot spirit in the sweet water was predominant in love, there the astringent spirit attracted the matter together, and so thereby the noblest ores of minerals and precious stones were generated.

[Aur. 18:18] But concerning precious stones, as carbuncles, rubies, diamonds, smaragdines or emeralds, onyxes and the like, which are of the best sort, they have their original where the flash of the light rose up in the love. For that flash becomes generated in the meekness, and is the heart in the center of the qualifying or fountain spirits; therefore those stones are also meek, full of virtue, delightful, pleasant and lovely.

Why Man in this World so loves Gold, Silver and precious Stones.

[Aur. 18:19] Now it might be asked, Why in this world is man so in love with gold, silver and precious stones, above all other things, and uses them for a defense or protection, and for the maintenance of his body? Herein lies the pith or kernel; for gold, silver, and precious stones, and all bright ores of minerals, have their original from the light, which shone before the times of wrath in the outermost birth or geniture of nature, that is, in the seventh nature-spirit: So now, seeing every man is as the whole house of this world, therefore all his qualifying or fountain spirits love the kernel, or the best thing that is in the corrupted nature, and that they use for the defense, protection and maintenance of themselves.
[Aur. 18:20] But the innermost kernel, which is the Deity, that they can nowhere comprehend, for the wrath of the fire lies before it, as a strong wall, and this wall must be broken down with a very strong storm or assault, if the astral spirits will see into it. But the door stands open to the animated or soulish spirit, for it [the animated or soulish spirit] is withheld by nothing, but is as God himself is, in his innermost birth or geniture.

[Aur. 18:21] Now then it might be asked, How then shall I understand myself in or according to the threefold birth or geniture in nature?

The depth!

Behold, the first, innermost and deepest birth or geniture stands in the center, and is the heart of the Deity, which is generated by the qualifying or fountain spirits of God; and this birth or geniture is the light, which yet, though it be generated out of the qualifying or fountain spirits, no qualifying or fountain spirit of itself alone can comprehend, but every qualifying or fountain spirit comprehends only its own in-standing, innate place or seat in the light; but all the seven spirits jointly together comprehend the whole light, for they are the father of the light.

[Aur. 18:22] Thus also the qualifying or fountain spirits of man do not wholly comprehend the innermost birth or geniture of the Deity, which stands in the light; but every qualifying or fountain spirit reaches, with its animated or soulish birth or geniture, into the heart of God, and unites, qualifies or mixes therewith in that place.

[Aur. 18:23] And that is the hidden birth or geniture in nature, which no man by his own reason, wit or capacity can comprehend; but the soul of that man alone who stands in the light of God comprehends it, and no other.

The Second Birth or Geniture in Nature, are the Seven Spirits of Nature.

[Aur. 18:24] This birth or geniture is more intelligible and comprehensible, but yet also only to the children of this Mystery. The plowman does not understand it; though he sees, smells, tastes, hears and feels it, yet he but looks on it, and knows not how the being thereof is. (“By this is meant or understood the corrupt reason in its own wit, ingenuity or capacity, without the spirit of God. The doctor, as well as the ploughman, is here meant, the one is as blind as the other concerning the Deity; and sometimes the peasant or ploughman exceeds the doctor in knowledge, if the peasant cleaves close to God.”)

[Aur. 18:25] Now these are the spirits wherein all things stand, both in heaven and in this world, and from these the third and outermost spirit is generated, wherein corruptibility stands.

[Aur. 18:26] But this spirit, or this birth, has seven kinds or species, viz. the astringent, the sweet, the bitter, the hot: these four generate the comprehensibility in the third birth or geniture.

[Aur. 18:27] The fifth spirit is the love, which exists from the light of the life, which generates sensibility and reason.

[Aur. 18:28] The sixth spirit is the tone, which generates the sound and joy, and is the spring or source rising up through all the spirits.

[Aur. 18:29] In these six spirits now stands the spirit of life, and the will or reason and thoughts of all the creatures; and all arts, inventions, formings and imagings of all that which stands in the spirit in the incomprehensibility.

[Aur. 18:30] The seventh spirit is nature, in which stands the corporeal being of all six spirits, for the six spirits generate the seventh. In this spirit stands the corporeal being of angels, devils, and men, and it is the mother of all the six spirits, in which they generate themselves, and in which they also generate the light, which is the heart of God.

Of the Third Birth or Geniture.

[Aur. 18:31] Now the third birth or geniture is the comprehensibility or palpability of nature, which (before the time of God’s wrath) was rariﬁed and transparent, lovely, pleasant and bright, so that the qualiﬁying or fountain spirits could see through and through all.

[Aur. 18:32] There was neither stone nor earth therein, neither had it [the third birth or geniture] need of any such created or contracted light as now; but the light generated itself everywhere in the center, and all stood in the light.

[Aur. 18:33] But when king Lucifer was created, then he excited or awakened the wrath of God in this third birth or geniture; for the bodies of the angels came to be creatures in this third birth.

[Aur. 18:34] Now then, seeing the devils kindled their own bodies, intending thereby to domineer over the whole Deity, therefore the creator also, in his wrath, kindled this third spirit, or this third birth or geniture in nature, and imprisoned the Devil therein, and made an eternal lodging therein for him, that he might not be higher than the whole God. (“Understand, in the outward sources or qualities; for the outermost of all, is also the innermost of all.”)

[Aur. 18:35] But seeing the devils kindled themselves out of pride, wantonness and wickedness; therefore they were quite thrust out from the birth or geniture of the light; and they can neither lay hold of nor comprehend it eternally.

[Aur. 18:36] For the light of their heart, which qualiﬁed, mixed or united with the heart of God, they themselves have extinguished, and instead thereof have generated a fierce, hot, astringent, bitter, hard and stinking devilish spirit.

[Aur. 18:37] But now you must not think that thereupon the whole nature or place of this world is become a mere bitter wrath of God. No; here lies the point: the wrath does not comprehend the innermost birth or geniture in nature, for the love of God is yet hidden in the center, in the whole place of this world; and so the house which lord Lucifer is to be in is not fully separated, but there is still in all things of this world both love and wrath one in the other, and they always wrestle and strive one with the other.

[Aur. 18:38] But the devils cannot lay hold on the wrestling of the light, but only on the wrestling of the wrath, wherein they are executioners or hangmen, to execute the justice or law, which was pronounced in God’s wrath against all wicked men.

[Aur. 18:39] Neither ought any man to say that he is generated in the wrath-ﬁre of the total corruption or perdition, out of God’s predestinate purpose. No; the corrupted earth does not stand in the total wrath-ﬁre of God, but only in its outward comprehensibility or palpability, wherein it is so hard, dry and bitter.

[Aur. 18:40] Whereby every one may perceive that this poison and fierceness does not belong to the love of God, in which there is nothing but meekness.

[Aur. 18:41] Yet I do not say this, as if every man were holy as he comes from his mother’s womb, but as the tree is, so is its fruit. Yet if a mother bears or brings forth a child of the Devil, the fault is not God’s, but the parents’ wickedness.

[Aur. 18:42] Yet if a wild twig be planted in a sweet soil, and be engrafted with some other of a better and sweeter kind, then there grows a mild tree, though the twig were wild. For here all is possible; the evil is as soon changed into good, as the good into evil.
[Aur. 18:43] For every man is free, and is as a god to himself; in this life man may change and alter himself either into wrath or into light. Such clothes or garments as a man puts on, transfigure him. And what manner of body soever man sows into the earth, such a body also grows up from it, though in another form, clarity and brightness, yet all according to the quality of the seed.

[Aur. 18:44] For if the earth were quite forsaken of God, then it could never bring forth any good fruit, but mere bad and evil fruit. But seeing the earth stands yet in God’s love, therefore his wrath will not burn therein eternally, but the love which has overcome will spew out the wrath-fire.

[Aur. 18:45] Then will the burning hell begin, when the love and the wrath shall be separated. In this world the love and the wrath are the one in the other in all creatures, and that which overcomes in the wrestling inherits the house by right, whether it be the kingdom of hell, or the kingdom of heaven.

[Aur. 18:46] I do not speak so, as if the beasts in their birth or geniture were to inherit the kingdom of heaven: No; for they are like the corrupted earth, evil and good; but if they be sown again into their mother the earth, then they are earth.

[Aur. 18:47] But the Salitter in a good beast will not therefore be left to the Devil for a propriety, but will in the separated part, in the nature of God, eternally blossom— (“That is, their figure will stand as a shadow upon the holy ground, in the wonders, viz., in the eternal Magia.”)—and bring forth other heavenly figures. But the Salitter of the beast of God’s wrath will, in the wrath of God, bear eternal hellish fruits.

[Aur. 18:48] For if the earth be once kindled, then in the wrath burns the fire, and in the love the light; and then all will be separated, for the one cannot comprehend the other anymore.

[Aur. 18:49] But in this present time everything has a twofold source and quality; whatsoever you build and sow here in the spirit, be it with words, works or thoughts, that will be your eternal house.

[Aur. 18:50] Thus you see and understand out of what the earth and stones are come to be. But if that kindled Salitter should have continued to be thus in the whole deep of this world, then the whole place thereof would have been a dark valley; for the light was imprisoned, together with and in the third birth or geniture.

[Aur. 18:51] Not that the light of the heart of God in its innermost birth is imprisoned: No; but the luster and the shining thereof, in the third birth or geniture, was incorporated with, and in, the outermost comprehensibility; and therefore it is that men are in love with all those things which stand in that Salitter.

An exposition of the first verse of the first chapter of Genesis, according to the Language of Nature.

[Aur. 18:52] But seeing the whole deep, in the third birth or geniture, was very dark in regard of the corrupted Salitter of the earth and stones, therefore the Deity could not endure it so to be, but created and compacted together the earth and stones, as in one lump, or as on a heap. Concerning which, Moses writes thus:

Um Unfang schuff GOTT hummel und Erben.

In the beginning created GOD heaven and earth.165
[Aur. 18:53] These words must be considered exactly, what they are. For the word (Um) conceives itself in the heart, and goes forth to the lips, but there is captivated and goes back again sounding, till it comes to the place from which it went forth.

[Aur. 18:54] This signifies now, that the sound went forth from the heart of God, and encompassed the whole place or extent of this world; but when it was found to be evil, then the sound returned again into its own place.

[Aur. 18:55] The word or syllable (Ent) thrusts itself out from the heart, and presses forth at the mouth, and has an after-pressure; but when it is spoken forth, then it closes itself up in the midst or center of its seat with the upper gums, and is half without and half within.

[Aur. 18:56] This signifies that the heart of God had a loathing against the corruption, and so thrust away the corrupted being from himself, but laid hold on it again in the midst or center at the heart.

[Aur. 18:57] As the tongue breaks off or divides the word or syllable, and keeps it half without and half within, so the heart of God would not wholly reject the kindled Salitter, but the malignity, malice and impulse of the Devil; and the other part should be re-edified or built again after this time.

[Aur. 18:58] The word or syllable (=fang) goes swiftly from the heart out at the mouth, and is stayed also by the hinder part of the tongue and the gums; and when it is let loose, it makes another swift pressure from the heart, out at the mouth.

[Aur. 18:59] This signifies the sudden rejection at the riddance and thrusting out of the devils, together with the corrupted Salitter; for the strong and swift spirit thrusts the breath strongly away from it, and retains the true tone of the word or expression with it at the hindermost gum, and that is the true spirit of the word or syllable.

[Aur. 18:60] This signifies that the corrupted fierceness is thrust out eternally from the light of God, but the inward spirit, which is loaded therewith against its will, shall be set again in its first house.

[Aur. 18:61] The last after-pressure (=ang) signifies that the innermost spirits in the corruption are not altogether pure, and therefore they need a sweeping away, purging or consuming of the wrath in the fire, which will be done at the end of this time.

[Aur. 18:62] The word (schuff) conceives itself above and under the tongue, and shuts the teeth in the upper and lower gums, and so presses itself close together, and being held together, and spoken forth again, then it opens the mouth again swiftly, like a flash.

[Aur. 18:63] This signifies the astringent spirit’s strong driving together of the corrupted Salitter, as a lump on a heap.

[Aur. 18:64] For the teeth retain the word, letting the spirit go forth leisurely between the teeth. This signifies that the astringent quality holds the earth and stones firmly and fast together; and yet, for all that, lets the spirits of the earth spring up, grow and bear blossoms out of the astringent spirit; which signifies the regeneration or restitution of the spirits of the earth.

[Aur. 18:65] But that the mouth is swiftly opened again after the word is ended, it signifies, concerning the deep above the earth, that God the Lord will nevertheless dwell there, and reserve his regimen for himself, and hold the Devil as a prisoner in the wrath-fire.

[Aur. 18:66] The word (ΩΩΩΩ) conceives itself in the midst or center, upon the tongue, and is thrust there out of the heart, and leaves the mouth open, and stays sitting on its royal seat, and sounds without and within; but when it is spoken forth, then it makes another pressure between the upper teeth and the tongue.

[Aur. 18:67] This signifies that when God created heaven and earth, and all the creatures, he nevertheless remained in his divine, eternal, almighty seat, and never went away from it at all, and that HE alone is ALL. The last pressure signifies the sharpness of his spirit, whereby in a moment he effects all in his whole body.

[Aur. 18:68] The word (simmel) conceives itself in the heart, and is thrust forth to the lips, where it is shut up, and the syllable (=met) sets the lips open again, and is held on the middle of the tongue, and so the spirit goes forth on both sides of the tongue out of the mouth.

[Aur. 18:69] This signifies that the innermost birth is become shut up from the outermost by the horrible sins, and is incomprehensible to the outward corrupted birth or geniture.

[Aur. 18:70] But seeing it is a word with a twofold syllable, and that the second syllable (=met) opens the mouth again, it signifies that the gates of the Deity have been opened again.

[Aur. 18:71] But that by the word or syllable (=met) it is conceived again upon the tongue, and held fast with the upper gums, and that in the meanwhile the spirit goes out on both sides of the tongue.

[Aur. 18:72] This signifies that God would again give to this corrupted kingdom or place in God, a King or great Prince, who would open again the innermost birth or geniture of the clear and bright Deity, and thereby the Holy Ghost would go forth on both sides, that is, out of the innermost depth of the Father and of the Son, and would go forth again into this world, and would new regenerate this world again through the New King.

[Aur. 18:73] The word (unb) conceives itself in the heart, and is stayed and compacted, or incorporated by the tongue on the upper gums; but when it is let loose, it makes another pressure from the heart, out at the mouth.

[Aur. 18:74] Now this signifies the difference or distinction between the holy birth or geniture and the earthly. This syllable comes indeed from the heart, but is stayed by the tongue on the upper gums, so that one cannot yet perceive what kind of word it is; and this signifies that the earthly and corrupt birth or geniture cannot lay hold on, or apprehend the innermost birth or geniture, but is foolish and silly.

[Aur. 18:75] The last pressure from the heart signifies that it will indeed qualify, mix or unite with the innermost birth or geniture in its sensibility, perception or thoughts, but cannot apprehend it in its reason; therefore this syllable or word alone by itself is dumb, and has no signification or understanding in itself alone, but is used only for distinction’s sake, with some other word.

[Aur. 18:76] The word (Erben) is thrust forth from the heart, and is conceived on the hinder part upon the tongue, at the hinder gums, and trembles; the tongue is used about the first syllable (Er), yet not steadily, but the tongue recoils inwards at the nether gums, and crouches as it were before an enemy, trembling.

[Aur. 18:77] The other syllable (=ben) is conceived by the tongue and upper gums, and leaves the mouth open, and the spirit of formation goes forth at the nostrils, and will not go forth together in this word out at the mouth; and though it carries forth somewhat indeed along with it, yet the true tone or noise of the true spirit goes forth only through or at the nostrils, or organ of smelling.

This is a great Mystery.
The word or syllable (Er=) signifies the kindled astringent and bitter quality, the earnest severe wrath of God, which trembles at the hinder part of the gums, before which the tongue is as it were afraid, and crouches at the nether gums, and flies as it were from an enemy.

The word or syllable (=ben) conceives itself on the tongue again, and the spirit attracts the power and virtue out of the word, and there with goes forth another way at the nostrils, and so goes therewith up into or towards the brain before the royal seat. This signifies that the outermost Salitter of the earth is eternally rejected from God’s light and holiness.

But that the spirit lays hold on the power and virtue of the word, and goes another way through the nostrils into the brain before the throne of the senses or thoughts, signifies that God will extract the heart of the earth from the wrath of wickedness; and use it to his eternal royal praise.

Into what the Soul goes when we Die.

Observe: He will extract from the earth the kernel, and the best or the good spirit, and will regenerate it anew, to his honor and glory.

Here, O man, consider yourself well, and mind what manner of seed you sow into the earth, the very same will spring up, and bear blossoms and fruit forever, either in the love or in the wrath.

But when the good shall be separated from the evil, then you will live in that part which you have labored for here, be it either in heaven, or in hell-fire.

In whatsoever you endeavour, labor and act here, into that your soul goes when you die.

Or do you think that this which I have set down here my spirit has sucked out of the corrupted earth, or out of an old felt hat?

Truly no, for the spirit at this time of my description and setting it down did unite and qualify or mix with the deepest birth or geniture of God. In that I have received my knowledge, and from there it is sucked; not in great earthly joy, but in the anxious birth or geniture, perplexity and trouble.

For what I did hereupon undergo, suffer and endure from the Devil and the hellish quality, which as well does rule in my outward man as in all men whatsoever, this you cannot apprehend, unless you also dance in this round.

Had not our philosophers and doctors always played upon the fiddle of pride, but had played on the musical instrument of the prophets and apostles, there would have been far another knowledge and philosophy in the world.

Concerning which, in regard of my imbecility, want of literature or learning and study, as also the slowness and dullness of my tongue, I am very insufficient, but not so simple in the knowledge. Only I cannot deliver it in profound language, and in the ornament of eloquence, but I rest contented with my gift I have received, and am a philosopher among the simple.

Concerning the Creation of the Light in this World.

Here shut the eyes of your flesh a little, for here they will profit you nothing, seeing they are blind and dead, and open the eyes of your spirit, and then I will rightly show you the creation of God.

Observe:
[Aur. 18:91] When God had driven the corrupted Salitter of earth and stones, (which had generated itself in the outermost birth by the kindling), together on a heap as in a lump, then, for that cause, the third birth or geniture in nature in the deep, above the earth, was not pure and bright, because the wrath of God did yet burn therein.

[Aur. 18:92] And though the innermost birth or geniture was light and bright, yet the outermost, which stood in the wrath-fire, could not comprehend it, but was altogether dark.

[Aur. 18:93] For Moses writes,

Und es war Finster auf der Tieffe.
And it was dark on the deep. 175

The word (auf) on, signifies the outermost birth or geniture, and the word (in) signifies the innermost birth or geniture.

[Aur. 18:94] But if the innermost birth had been dark, then the wrath of God had rested in this world eternally, and it would never have been light; but the wrath has not thus touched or reached the heart of God.

[Aur. 18:95] Therefore he is a sweet, friendly, bounteous, good, meek, pure and merciful God, according to his heart in the innermost birth or geniture in the place of this world, and still continues so to be; and his meek love presses forth from his heart into the outermost birth or geniture of the wrath, and quenches the same, and therefore Sprach Er, He said, Es werde licht, Let there be light.

Here observe the sense in the highest depth.

[Aur. 18:96] The word (Sprach) or said, is spoken after the manner of men: you philosophers, open your eyes. I will, in my simplicity, teach you the Sprach Gottes, the speech, speaking or language of God, as indeed it must be.

[Aur. 18:97] The word (Sprach) conceives itself between the teeth, for they bite or join close together, and the spirit hisses forth through the teeth, and the tongue bows or bends in the middle, and sets its fore point, as if it did listen after the hissing, and was afraid.

[Aur. 18:98] But when the spirit conceives the word, that shuts the mouth, and conceives it at the hinder gums upon the tongue in the hole or hollowness, in the bitter and astringent quality.

[Aur. 18:99] There the tongue is terrified, trembles and crouches to the nether gums, and then the spirit comes forth from the heart, and closes the word, which conceives itself at the hinder gums, in the astringent and bitter quality, in the wrath, and goes forth mightily and strongly through the fierceness, as a king and a prince, and also opens the mouth, and rules with a strong spirit from the heart through the whole mouth within, and also without the mouth, and makes a mighty and long syllable, as a spirit which has broken the wrath.

[Aur. 18:100] Against which the wrath, with its snarling in the astringent and bitter quality, at the hinder gums in the hollow on the tongue, struggles, and keeps its right to itself, and keeps its seat in its place, and lets the meek spirit come forth from the heart, through itself [the wrath], and thunders with its [the wrath’s] snarling after the meek spirit, and so helps to form or frame the word, yet with its thundering cannot get away from its seat, but abides in its hollow hole, as a captive prisoner, and appears terrible.

This is a great Mystery.

[Aur. 18:101] Here observe the sense and meaning; if you apprehend it, then you understand the Deity aright, if not, then you are yet blind in the spirit.
[Aur. 18:102] Judge not, else here you run counter against a strong gate, and will be imprisoned; if the wrath-fire catches you, then you will remain eternally therein.

[Aur. 18:103] You child of man, behold now, how great a gate of heaven, of hell, and of the earth, as also of the whole Deity, the spirit opens to you.

[Aur. 18:104] You should not think that God at that time did speak in that way as men do, and that it is but a weak, impotent word, like man’s word.

[Aur. 18:105] Indeed man’s word conceives itself just in such a form, manner, proportion, quality and correspondency; only the half-dead man does not understand it: This understanding is very noble, dear and precious, for it is generated only in the knowledge of the Holy Ghost.

[Aur. 18:106] But God’s word, which he spoke then in power, has encompassed heaven and earth, and the heaven of heavens; yea, and the whole Deity also.

[Aur. 18:107] But it frames and conceives itself first between the teeth closed or clapped together, and hisses, which signifies that the Holy Ghost at the beginning of the creation went through the firmly closed wall of the third and outermost birth or geniture, which stands in the wrath-fire in this world.

[Aur. 18:108] For it is written, And it was dark on the deep, and the spirit of God moved on the wa- ter. The deep signifies the innermost birth or geniture; and the darkness signifies the outermost corrupt birth or geniture, in which the wrath burned. The water signifies the allaying or mitigation of the spirit.

[Aur. 18:109] But that the spirit does hiss through the teeth signifies that the spirit is gone forth from the heart of God through the wrath; but that the teeth remain closed together, while the spirit hisses, and do not open themselves, signifies that the wrath has not comprehended or reached the Holy Ghost.

[Aur. 18:110] But that the tongue does crouch towards the nether gums, and is sharp at the point, and will not be used about the hissing, signifies that the outward birth or geniture, together with all the creatures which are therein, cannot comprehend or reach to apprehend the Holy Spirit, which goes forth out of the innermost birth or geniture out from the heart of God, neither can they hinder him by their power.

[Aur. 18:111] For he goes and penetrates through all shut or closed doors, closets and births, and needs no opening of them; as the teeth cannot stay or hinder the spirit or breath from going or passing through them.

[Aur. 18:112] But that the lips stand open, when it is come hissing through the teeth, signifies that he with his going forth out of the heart of God, in the creation of this world, has opened again the gates of heaven, and is gone through the gates of God’s wrath, and has left the wrath of God strongly shut and bolted up, and has left the Devil his eternal kindled wrath-house close locked up, out of which he cannot come eternally.

[Aur. 18:113] It further signifies that the Holy Ghost in like manner has an open gate in the wrath-house of this world, where he may drive and perform his work, incomprehensibly as to the gates of hell, and where he gathers or congregates a holy seed to his eternal praise, against or without the will of the strong, fast, hellish gates, and altogether incomprehensibly as to them.

[Aur. 18:114] But in the same way as the spirit effects his going forth, and his conceived or intended will, through the teeth, and yet the teeth do not stir, nor can they comprehend the will of the spirit, so the Holy Ghost also, without the apprehension or comprehension, either of the Devil or of the wrath of God, builds or erects continually a holy seed or temple in the house of this world.
[Aur. 18:115] But that the whole word (Sprach) said, forms or conceives itself at the hinder gums on the tongue in the hollow hole in the center of the astringent and bitter quality, and snarls, signifies that God has conceived or framed the place of this world at the heart in the midst or center of it, and has built to himself again a house to his praise, against all the grumbling, murmuring and snarling of the Devil, in which he rules with his Holy Ghost.

[Aur. 18:116] And in the same way as the spirit goes forth from the heart through the grumbling, murmuring and snarling of the bitter and astringent quality, very strongly and powerfully, and with its going forth rules in the astringent and bitter quality, incomprehensibly as to the astringent and bitter quality, as a potent king, so also the spirit of God rules in the outermost birth or geniture of this world (in the wrath-house) mightily, and generates to himself a temple therein, incomprehensibly to the wrath-house.

From where fightings among all Creatures have their Original.

[Aur. 18:117] But that the astringent and bitter spirit does so grumble and murmur, when the spirit from the heart goes through its house, and rules powerfully, signifies that the wrath of God, together with the devils, are, in the house of this world, set in opposition to the love, so that both these, all the time of this world, must fight and strive one against the other, as two armies in the field; from where also wars and fightings among men, and among beasts, and all creatures, have their original.

[Aur. 18:118] But that the astringent and the bitter qualities conceive themselves together with the word, and unite and agree one with the other, and yet the spirit of the heart alone speaks forth the word at the mouth, signifies that all creatures, which were produced and put forth by the word alone, viz. the beasts, fowls, fishes, worms, trees, leaves, herbs and grass, were formed from the whole body, being good and evil.

[Aur. 18:119] And that in all these there would stand both the angry and corrupt quality, and also the love of God; and yet all would be driven on by the spirit of love, though those two would disturb, rub, plague, squeeze and vex each other.

Note.

[Aur. 18:120] Whereby then, in many a creature the wrath-fire would be so very hard kindled that the body, together with the spirit, will afford and produce an eternal wrath-Salitter in hell.

[Aur. 18:121] For the spirit, which is generated in the heart, must in its body walk through the midst or center of the hellish gates, and may very easily be kindled; they are as wood and fire, which will burn, if you pour no water in among them.

[Aur. 18:122] O man, you were not, by the Word, created together with and as the beasts, from good and evil; and if you had not eaten of good and evil, then the wrath-fire would not have been in you; but by that means you have also gotten a bestial body: It is done: The love of God take pity, and have mercy in that behalf.

[Aur. 18:123] But, that after the conceiving and compacting of the word together in the astringent quality at the hinder gums upon the tongue, the mouth opens itself wide, and the compacted and united spirit goes forth together at the mouth, which spirit is generated out of the heart and also out of the astringent and bitter quality, signifies that the creatures would live in great anguish and adversity, and would not be able to generate through one body, but through two.

[Aur. 18:124] For the astringent and bitter quality receives the power from the spirit out of the heart, and infects or affects itself therewith: Therefore is nature now become too weak in the spirit of the heart, and is not able to deliver [itself from] its own innermost birth of the heart; and for that cause nature has brought forth a male and a female.

[Aur. 18:125] Thus it denotes also the evil and the good will in the whole or universal nature, and in all the creatures; that there would be a continual wrestling, fighting and destroying; from which this world is rightly called a valley of misery, full of crosses, persecutions, toils and labors. For when the spirit of creation entered into the midst, and interposed its power, it was fain to make and form the creation in the midst or center of the kingdom of hell.

[Aur. 18:126] Now seeing the outermost birth or geniture in nature is twofold, that is, both evil and good, therefore it is that there is a perpetual tormenting, squeezing, lamenting and howling; and the creatures in this life are subject to torments and afflictions, so that this evil world is justly called a murderous den of the Devil.

[Aur. 18:127] But that the astringent and bitter spirit sits still in its seat at the hinder gums on the tongue, and thrusts forth the word at the mouth, and yet cannot get away from there, signifies that the Devil and the wrath of God would indeed be domineering in all the creatures, yet would not have full power in them, but must stay in prison; and that there they would belch forth or blow into all the creatures, and plague them, but would not overcome them, unless the creatures themselves are minded to tarry there in that place.

[Aur. 18:128] Just as the meek spirit of the heart goes through the astringent and bitter quality, and overcomes it; and though it be indeed infected with the astringent and bitter spirit, yet it tears and breaks thorough, as a conqueror: But if it should willfully sit still in the hollow hole in the astringent and bitter spirit, and suffer itself to be taken captive, and would not fight, then the fault were its own.

[Aur. 18:129] Thus it is also with those creatures that will continually sow and reap in the hellish fire, especially that man who lives in a continual desire of pride, covetousness, envy and wrath, and will at no time fight and strive against them with the spirit and fire of love; such a one himself attracts the wrath of God, and the burning hellish fire, upon his body and soul.

[Aur. 18:130] But that the tongue does crouch so much towards the nether gums, when the word goes forth, signifies and denotes the animated or soulish spirit of the creatures, especially of man.

[Aur. 18:131] The word which conceives itself at the upper gums, and which qualifies or unites with the astringent and bitter spirit, signifies the seven spirits of nature, or the astral birth or geniture, in which the Devil rules, and the Holy Ghost opposes him therein, and overcomes the Devil.

[Aur. 18:132] But the tongue signifies the soul, which is generated from the seven spirits of nature, and is the son; and so now when the seven spirits will, then the tongue must stir, and must perform their demands.

[Aur. 18:133] If the astral spirits would not prove false, and would not woo the Devil, to commit adultery with him, then they would hide the animated or soulish spirit, and hold it fast in their bands as a treasure, when they fight with the Devil: Just as they hide and cover the tongue as their best jewel, when they wrestle with the astringent and bitter quality.

[Aur. 18:134] Thus you have a short and real introduction concerning the word which God has spoken, rightly described in the knowledge of the spirit, faithfully imparted according to my gifts, and the talent I am entrusted with.

[Aur. 18:35] Now it may be asked, What then is it that God did speak, when he said, Let there be light, and there was light?
The Depth.

The light went forth from the innermost birth or geniture, and kindled itself in the outermost. It gave again to the outermost a natural peculiar light of its own.

[Aur. 18:136] You must not think that the light of the sun and of nature is the heart of God, which shines in secret. No; you ought not to worship the light of nature, it is not the heart of God, but it is a kindled light in nature, whose power and heart stand in the unctuosity or fatness of the sweet water, and of all the other spirits in the third birth or geniture, and is not called God.

[Aur. 18:137] Though it be generated in God and from God, yet it is but the instrument of his handiwork, which cannot apprehend and reach back again to the clear Deity in the deepest birth or geniture, as the flesh cannot apprehend or reach the soul.

[Aur. 18:138] But it must not so be understood as if the Deity were separated from nature; no, but they are as body and soul: Nature is the body, and the heart of God is the soul.

What Light was before the Sun and Stars.

[Aur. 18:139] Now a man might ask, What kind of light then was it that was kindled? Was it the sun and stars? No, the sun and stars were first created but on the fourth day, out of that very light: There was a light arisen in the seven spirits of nature which had no peculiar distinct seat or place, but did shine everywhere all over, but was not bright like the sun, but like an azure blue and light, according to the kind and manner of the qualifying or fountain spirits; till afterwards the right creation and kindling of the fire in the water, in the astringent spirit, followed, viz. the sun.
CHAPTER 19

Concerning the Created Heaven, and of the Form of the Earth and of the Water, as also concerning Light and Darkness.

Concerning Heaven.

[Aur. 19:1] THE true heaven, which is our own proper human heaven, into which the soul goes when it parts from the body, and into which Christ our King is entered, and from where it was that he came from his Father, and was born, and became man in the body or womb of the Virgin Mary, has till now been close hidden from the children of men, and they have had many opinions about it.

[Aur. 19:2] Also the learned have scuffled about it with many strange scurrilous writings, falling one upon another in calumnious and disgraceful terms, whereby the holy name of God has been reproached, his members wounded, his temple destroyed, and the holy heaven profaned with their calumniating and malicious enmity.

[Aur. 19:3] Men have always been of the opinion that heaven is many hundred, nay, many thousand miles distant from the face of the earth, and that God dwells only in that heaven.

[Aur. 19:4] Some naturalists or artists have undertaken to measure that height and distance, and have produced many strange and monstrous devices. Indeed, before this my knowledge and revelation of God, I held that only to be the true heaven, which in a round circumference and sphere, very azure of a light blue color, extends itself above the stars, supposing that God had therein his peculiar being, and did rule only in the power of his Holy Spirit in this world.

[Aur. 19:5] But when this had given me many a hard blow and repulse, doubtless from spirit, which had a great longing yearning towards me, at last I fell into a very deep melancholy and heavy sadness, when I beheld and contemplated the great deep of this world, also the sun and stars, the clouds, rain and snow, and considered in my spirit the whole creation of this world.

[Aur. 19:6] Wherein then I found to be in all things, evil and good, love and anger, in the inanimate creatures, viz. in wood, stones, earth and the elements, as also in men and beasts.

[Aur. 19:7] Moreover, I considered the little spark of light, man, what he should be esteemed for with God, in comparison with this great work and fabric of heaven and earth.

[Aur. 19:8] But finding that in all things there was evil and good, as well in the elements as in the creatures, and that it went as well in this world with the wicked as with the virtuous, honest, and Godly; also that the barbarous people had the best countries in their possession, and that they had more prosperity in their ways than the virtuous, honest and Godly had.

[Aur. 19:9] I was thereupon very melancholy, perplexed and exceedingly troubled, no Scripture could comfort or satisfy me, though I was very well acquainted with it, and versed therein; at which time the Devil would by no means stand idle, but was often beating into me many heathenish thoughts, which I will here be silent in.

[Aur. 19:10] But when in this affliction and trouble I elevated my spirit (for I then understood very little or not at all what it was), I earnestly raised it up into God, as with a great storm or onset, wrapping up my whole heart and mind, as also all my thoughts and whole will and resolution, incessantly to wrestle with the love and mercy of God, and not to give over, until he blessed me, that is, until he enlightened me with his Holy Spirit, whereby I might understand his will, and be rid of my sadness. And then the spirit did break through.

[Aur. 19:11] But when, in my resolved zeal, I gave so hard an assault, storm and onset upon God, and upon all the gates of hell, as if I had more reserves of virtue and power ready, with a resolution to hazard my life upon it, (which assuredly were not in my ability without the assistance of the spirit of God), suddenly, after some violent storms made, my spirit did break through the gates of hell, even into the innermost birth or geniture of the Deity, and there I was embraced with love, as a bridegroom embraces his dearly beloved bride.

[Aur. 19:12] But the greatness of the triumphing that was in the spirit I cannot express, either in speaking or writing; neither can it be compared to anything, but to that wherein the life is generated in the midst of death, and it is like the resurrection from the dead.

[Aur. 19:13] In this light my spirit suddenly saw through all, and in and by all the creatures, even in herbs and grass it knew God, who he is, and how he is, and what his will is: And suddenly in that light my will was set on by a mighty impulse, to describe the being of God.

[Aur. 19:14] But because I could not at once apprehend the deepest births of God in their being, and comprehend them in my reason, there passed almost twelve years, before, the exact understanding thereof was given me.

[Aur. 19:15] It was with me as with a young tree that is planted in the ground, and at first is young and tender, and flourishing to the eye, especially if it comes on lustily in its growing: But it does not bear fruit at once; and though it blossoms, the blossoms fall off; also many a cold wind, frost and snow pass over it, before it comes to any growth and bearing of fruit.

[Aur. 19:16] So also it went with this spirit: The first fire was but a seed, and not a constant lasting light: Since that time many a cold wind blew upon it; but the will never extinguished.

[Aur. 19:16a] This tree was also often tempted to try whether it would bear fruit, and show itself with blossoms; but the blossoms were struck off till this very time, wherein it stands in its first fruit, in the growth or vegetation.

From what Light this Author has his Knowledge.

[Aur. 19:17] From this light now it is that I have my knowledge, as also my will, impulse and driving, and therefore I will set down this knowledge in writing according to my gift, and let God work his will; and though I should irritate or enrage the whole world, the Devil, and all the gates of hell, I will look on and wait what the LORD intends with it.

[Aur. 19:18] For I am much too weak to know his purpose; and though the spirit affords in the light to be known some things which are to come, yet according to the outward man I am too weak to comprehend the same.

[Aur. 19:19] But the animated or soulish spirit, which qualifies or unites with God, that comprehends it well; but the bestial body attains only a glimpse thereof, just as if it lightened: For thus presents itself the innermost birth or geniture of the soul, when it tears through the outermost birth or geniture in the elevation of the Holy Ghost, and so breaks through the gates of hell; but the outermost birth presently shuts again; for the wrath of God bolts up the firmament, and holds it captive in its power.

[Aur. 19:20] Then the knowledge of the outward man is gone, and he walks up and down in an afflicted and anxious birth or geniture, as a woman with child, who is in her travail, and would always fain bring forth her child, but cannot, and is full of throes.
[Aur. 19:21] Thus it goes also with the bestial body, when it has once tasted of the sweetness of God, then it continually hungeres and thirsts after this sweetness: But the Devil in the power of God’s wrath opposes exceedingly, and so a man in such a course must continually stand in an anxious birth or geniture; and so there is nothing but fighting and warring in his births or genitures.

[Aur. 19:22] I write this not for mine own glory, but for a comfort to the Reader, so that if perhaps he be minded to walk with me upon my narrow bridge, he should not suddenly be discouraged, dismayed and distrustful, when the gates of hell and God’s wrath meet him, and present themselves before him.

[Aur. 19:23] When we shall come together over this narrow bridge of the fleshly birth or geniture, to be in yonder green meadow, to which the wrath of God does not reach or come, then we shall greatly rejoice at all our damages and hurts which we have sustained; though indeed at present the world does account us for fools, and we must suffer the Devil in the power of God’s wrath to domineer, and to rush and roar over us: It should not trouble us, for it will be a more excellent reputation to us in the other life, than if in this life we had worn a royal crown; and there is so very short a time to get there, that it is not worth the being called a time.

Now observe:

[Aur. 19:24] If you fix your thoughts concerning heaven, and would fain conceive in the mind what it is, and where it is, and how it is, you need not to swing or cast your thoughts many thousand miles off, for that place, or that heaven, is not your heaven.

[Aur. 19:25] And though indeed that is united with your heaven as one body, and so together is but the one body of God, yet you are not in that very place which is become a creature, aloft, many hundred thousand miles off; but you are in the heaven of this world, which contains also in it a deep, such as is not of any human number (or is not circumscriptive).

[Aur. 19:26] For the true heaven is everywhere, even in that very place where you stand and go, and so when your spirit apprehends the innermost birth or geniture of God, and presses in through the astral and fleshly geniture, then it is clearly in heaven.

[Aur. 19:27] But that there is assuredly a pure glorious heaven in all the three births or genitures aloft above the deep of this world, in which God’s being, together with that of the holy angels, rises or springs up very purely, brightly, beauteously and joyfully, is undeniable, and he is not born of God that denies it.

But you must know,

[Aur. 19:28] That the place of this world with its innermost birth and geniture unites or qualifies with the heaven aloft above us, and so there is one heart, one being, one will, one God, all in all.

[Aur. 19:29] But that the place of this world is not called heaven, and that there is a firmament or fast enclosure between the upper heaven above us, has this understanding or meaning, as follows.

[Aur. 19:30] The upper heaven comprises the two kingdoms, that of Michael, and that of Uriel, with all the holy angels that are not fallen with Lucifer, and that heaven continues as it was from eternity, before the angels were created.

[Aur. 19:31] The other heaven is this world, in which Lucifer was a king, who kindled the outermost birth or geniture in nature; and that now is the wrath of God, and cannot be called God or heaven, but perdition.
[Aur. 19:32] Therefore the upper heaven closes itself so far in its outermost birth or geniture, and reaches so far as the wrath of God reaches, and so far as the government or dominion of Lucifer has reached, for the corrupted or perished birth or geniture cannot comprehend the pure.

[Aur. 19:33] That is, the outermost birth or geniture of this world cannot comprehend the outermost birth or geniture of heaven aloft above this world, for they are one to the other as the life and the death, or as a man and a stone are one to the other.

[Aur. 19:34] Therefore there is a strong firmament or enclosure between the outermost birth or geniture of the upper heaven, and that of this world; for the firmament between them is death, which rules and reigns everywhere in the outermost birth in this world, and this world is so bolted up therewith that the outermost birth of the upper heaven cannot come into the outermost birth of this world; there is a great cleft or gulf between them. Therefore in our outermost birth or geniture we cannot see the angels, neither can the angels dwell with us in the outermost birth of this world; but in the innermost they dwell with us.

[Aur. 19:36] And if or as we fight with the Devil, they keep off his blows in the innermost birth, and are the defense and protection of the holy soul.

[Aur. 19:37] Therefore we can neither see nor comprehend the holy angels; for the outermost birth of their body is incomprehensible to the outermost birth or geniture of this world.

[Aur. 19:38] The second birth of this world stands in the life, for it is the astral birth, out of which is generated the third and holy birth or geniture, and therein love and wrath strive the one with the other.

[Aur. 19:39] For the second birth stands in the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of this world, and is in all places and in all the creatures, as also in man: But the Holy Ghost also rules and reigns in the second birth, and helps to generate the third holy birth or geniture.

[Aur. 19:40] But this third birth or geniture is the clear and holy heaven, which qualifies or unites with the heart of God without, distinct and above all heavens, as one heart; also they are the one heart, which, as an almighty, incomprehensible God, holds and bears up or sustains the place of this world, and holds the Devil captive in the outermost birth in the anger-fire.

How it was that Jesus Christ could take the Devil, Death, and Hell captive. In what Heaven he sitst at the Right Hand of God.

[Aur. 19:41] And out of this heart JESUS CHRIST, the Son of God, in the womb or body of the Virgin Mary, went into all the three births or genitures, and assumed them really, that he might, through and with his innermost birth or geniture, take the Devil, death and hell captive in the outermost birth, and overcome the wrath of God, as a king and victorious prince; and, in the power of his geniture or birth in the flesh, press through all men.

[Aur. 19:42] And so by this entering of the innermost birth of the heart of the heaven of this world into the astral and outermost, is JESUS CHRIST, the Son of God and of Mary, become the Lord and King of this our heaven and earth, who rules and reigns in all the three births or genitures over sin, the Devil, death and hell, and so we with him press through the sinful, corrupted and outermost dead birth or geniture of the flesh, through death and the wrath of God into our heaven.

[Aur. 19:43] In this heaven now sits our King JESUS CHRIST, at the right hand of God, and encompasses or surrounds all the three births, as an almighty Son of the Father, who is present in and throughout all the three births in this world, in all corners and places, and comprehends, holds and bears up or sustains all, as a new-born Son of the Father, in the power, and upon the seat or throne, of the once great, mighty, potent, and now expelled, accursed and damned king Lucifer, the Devil.

[Aur. 19:44] Therefore, you child of man, be not discouraged, be not so timorous and despondent; for if you sow in your zeal and earnest sincerity the seed of your tears, you do not sow it in earth, but in heaven; for in your astral birth you sow, and in your animated or soulish birth you reap, and in the kingdom of heaven you possess and enjoy it.

[Aur. 19:45] While you live in this struggling or striving birth or geniture you must buckle to, and suffer the Devil to ride upon you; but so hard as he strikes you, so hard you must strike him again, if you will defend yourself. For when you fight against him, you stir up his wrath-fire, and destroy his nest, and this is then as a great combustion, and as a great strong battle maintained against him.

[Aur. 19:46] And though your body may suffer pain, yet it is much worse with him when he is vanquished, for then he roars like a lion that is robbed of her young whelps, for the fierceness and wrath of God torments him; but if you let him lodge within you, then he grows fat and wanton, and will vanquish you in time.

[Aur. 19:47] Thus you have a real description of heaven: And though perhaps you cannot in your reason conceive it, yet I can very well conceive it; therefore consider rationally and seriously what God is.

[Aur. 19:48] You see in this world nothing but the deep, and therein the stars, and the birth or geniture of the elements: Now will you say, God is not there? Pray then, what was there in that place before the time of the world? Will you say, There was nothing? Then you speak without reason, for you must necessarily say that God was there, or else nothing would have come to be there.

[Aur. 19:49] Now if God was there then, who has thrust him out from there or vanquished him, that he should be there no more? But if God is there, then he is indeed in his heaven, and, moreover, in his Trinity.

[Aur. 19:50] But the Devil has kindled the bath or lake of wrath, by which the earth and the stones, also the elements, are become so fluctuating, as also cold, bitter, and hot. And so he has destroyed the outermost birth or geniture.

[Aur. 19:51] Whereupon now this treatise, and my whole purpose therein, is to describe how the outermost birth is come to be living and revived again, and how it regenerates itself again. From there also in the creatures the bestial flesh is come to be; but sin in the flesh is the wrath of God.

Where shall the Wrath of God come to be at the End.

[Aur. 19:52] Another question which is chiefly treated of in this book is this, viz. Where then shall the wrath of God come to be? Here the spirit answers, that at the end of the time of this corrupted birth or geniture, after the resurrection from the dead, this place or space where the earth now is will be left to the Devil for a propriety or possession and house of wrath, yet not through and in all the three births or genitures, but only in the outermost, in which he now stands: But the innermost will hold him captive in its might and strength, and use him for a footstool, or as the dust under its foot, which innermost birth he will never be able either to comprehend or to touch.
[Aur. 19:53] For it has not this understanding or meaning, that the wrath-fire should be extinguished, and be no more; for then the devils also must become holy angels again, and live in the holy heaven; but that not being so, a hole, burrow or dungeon in this world must remain to be their habitation.

[Aur. 19:54] If man’s eyes were but opened, he would see God everywhere in his heaven; for heaven stands in the innermost birth or geniture everywhere.

[Aur. 19:55] Moreover, when Stephen saw the heaven opened, and the Lord JESUS at the right hand of God, there his spirit did not first swing itself up aloft into the upper heaven, but it penetrated or pressed into the innermost birth or geniture, wherein heaven is everywhere.

[Aur. 19:56] Neither must you think that the Deity is such a kind of being as is only in the upper heaven, nor that the soul, when it departs from the body, goes up aloft into the upper heaven many hundred thousand miles off.

[Aur. 19:57] It need not do that, but it is set or put into the innermost birth, and there it is with God, and in God, and with all the holy angels, and can now be above, and now beneath; it is not hindered by anything.

[Aur. 19:58] For in the innermost birth the upper and nether Deity is one body, and is an open gate: The holy angels converse and walk up and down in the innermost birth of this world by and with our King JESUS CHRIST, as well as in the uppermost world aloft in their quarters, courts or region.

[Aur. 19:59] And where then would or should the soul of man rather be, than with its King and Redeemer JESUS CHRIST? For near and afar off in God is one thing, one comprehensibility, Father, Son and Holy Ghost, everywhere all over.

[Aur. 19:60] The gate of the Deity in the upper heaven is no other, also no brighter, than it is in this world: And where can there be greater joy than in that place, where every hour and moment there comes to Christ beautiful, loving, dear, new-born children and angels, who are pressed or penetrated through death into life?

[Aur. 19:61] Doubtless they will have to tell of many fights: and where can there be greater joy, than where, in the midst or center of death, life is generated continually?

[Aur. 19:62] Does not every soul bring along with it a new triumph? And so there is nothing else but an exceeding friendly welcoming and salutation there.

[Aur. 19:63] Consider, when the souls of children come to their parents, who in the body did generate them, whether heaven can choose but be there? Or do you think my writing is too earthly?

[Aur. 19:64] If you were come to this window, you would not then say that it is earthly: And though I must indeed use the earthly tongue, yet there is a true heavenly understanding couched under it, which in my outermost birth I am not able to express, either in writing or in speaking.

[Aur. 19:65] I know very well that the word concerning the three births cannot be comprehended or apprehended in every man’s heart, especially where the heart is too much steeped, soaked or drowned in the flesh, and bolted or barred up with the outermost birth.

[Aur. 19:66] But I cannot render it otherwise than as it is, for it is just so; and though I should write mere spirit, as indeed and truth it is no other, yet the heart understands only flesh.
Concerning the Constitution and Form of the Earth.

[Aur. 19:67] Many authors have written that heaven and earth were created out of NOTHING. But I wonder that, among so many excellent men, there has not one been found that could yet describe the true ground; seeing the same God which now is, has been from eternity.

[Aur. 19:68] Now, where nothing is, there nothing can come to be: All things must have a root, else can nothing grow: If the seven spirits of nature had not been from eternity, then there would have come to be no angel, no heaven, also no earth.

[Aur. 19:69] But the earth is come from the corrupted Salitter of the outermost birth or geniture, which you cannot deny, when you look on earth and stones, for then you must of necessity say that death is therein: On the other hand also you must necessarily say that there is a life therein, otherwise neither gold nor silver, nor any plant, herb, grass or vegetable, could grow therein.

Question.

[Aur. 19:70] Now one might ask, Are there also all the three births or genitures therein? Yes: the life presses through death; the outermost birth is the death; the second is the life, which stands in the wrath-fire and in the love; and the third is the holy life.

An Introduction or Information.

[Aur. 19:71] The outward earth is a bitter stink, and is dead; and that every man understands to be so. But the Salitter is destroyed or killed through the wrath; for you cannot deny but that God’s wrath is in the earth, otherwise the earth would not be so astringent, bitter, sour, venomous and poisonous, neither would it engender such poisonous, venomous, evil worms and creeping things. But if you should say that God has created them thus out of his purpose, that is as much as if you should say that God himself is evil, malice, malignity or wickedness.

[Aur. 19:72] Pray tell me, Why was the Devil expelled or thrust out? Surely you will say, Because of his pride, in that he would need to be above God. But guess, Sir, with what the Devil would be so: What power had he to do it? Here tell me, if you know anything of it; if you know nothing, be silent and attentive.

[Aur. 19:73] Before the times of the creation he sat in the Salitter of the earth, when the Salitter was yet thin or transparent, and stood in a heavenly, holy birth or geniture, and he was in the whole kingdom of this world, therein was neither earth nor stones, but a heavenly seed, which was generated out of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of nature; for in the kingdom of this world sprang up heavenly fruits, forms and ideas, which were a pleasant, delightful food of angels.

[Aur. 19:74] But when the wrath did burn in the seed, then the seed was killed and destroyed in death: Yet not so to be understood as if it were therefore altogether quite dead; for how can anything in God die totally, that has had its life from eternity?

[Aur. 19:75] But I. The outermost birth or geniture was burnt up, frozen, drowned, stupefied, chilled and stark benumbed.

[Aur. 19:76] But II. The second birth or geniture generates the life again in the outermost.

[Aur. 19:77] And III. The third is generated between the first and the second, that is, between heaven and hell, in the midst or center of the wrath-fire, and the spirit presses through the wrath-fire, and generates the holy life, which stands in the power of the love.
[Aur. 19:78] And in this same birth or geniture will those dead arise who have sown a holy seed, and those who have sown in the wrath will arise in the wrath-fire: For the earth will revive and be living again, seeing the Deity in Christ has regenerated it anew again through his flesh, and exalted it to the right hand of God: But the wrath-fire abides in its own birth or geniture.

[Aur. 19:79] But if you say that there is no life in the earth, you speak as one that is blind; for you may see plainly that herbs and grass grow out of it.

[Aur. 19:80] But if you say it has but one kind of birth or geniture, you speak again also like one that is blind; for the herbs and wood which grow out of it are not earth, neither is the fruit, which grows upon a tree, wood; so also the power and virtue of the fruit is not God either; but God is in the center, in the innermost birth in all the three natural births or genitures, hiddenly, but is not known, except in the spirit of man alone; also the outermost birth in the fruit does not comprehend, conceive or contain him, but he contains the outermost birth of the fruit, and forms it.

Another Question is:

[Aur. 19:81] Why the earth so mountainous, hilly, rocky, stony and uneven? The hills came so to be in the driving together or compaction: For the corrupted Salitter was more abounding in one place than in another, according as the wheel of God was, as to its innate standing, or instant qualifying or fountain spirits.

[Aur. 19:82] For in those places where the sweet water in the standing wheel of God was chief or predominant, there much earthly, comprehensible or palpable water came to be.

[Aur. 19:83] But where the astringent quality in the bitterness in Mercurius was chief or predominant, there much earth and stones came to be.

[Aur. 19:84] But where the heat in the light was chief or predominant, there much silver and gold, as also some fair, clear stones, in the flash of the light, came to be; but especially where the love in the light was chief or predominant, there the most precious stones or jewels, as also the best, purest and finest gold came to be.

[Aur. 19:85] But when the lump of the earth was pressed and compacted together, then thereby the water came to be squeezed and pressed forth: But where the water was enclosed and pressed in with the astringent quality by hard rocks, there it is yet in the earth still, and has since that time worn and made some great holes or veins for its passage.

[Aur. 19:86] In those places where there are great lakes and seas, there the water was chief or predominant over that place in that zenith or elevation of the pole; and there not being much Salitter in that place, there came to be as it were a dale or valley, wherein the water remained standing.

[Aur. 19:87] For the thin water seeks for the valley, and is a humility of the life, which did not exalt itself, as the astringent and the bitter qualities, and the fire’s quality, have done in those creatures the devils.

[Aur. 19:88] Therefore it always seeks the lowest places of the earth; which rightly signifies or resembles the spirit of meekness, in which the life is generated; as you may read concerning the creation of man, as also before, concerning the species or condition of water, meekness, and suchlike qualities.

Of Day and Night.

[Aur. 19:89] The whole Deity with all its powers and operations, together with its innate or instant being, as also its rising up, penetration, changing and alteration, that is to say the whole machine, fabric and work, or the whole generating or production, is all understood in the spirit of the word.\footnote{Aur. 19:90}

[Aur. 19:90] For in whatsoever proportion or harmony, or in whatsoever innate or instant generating or production of qualities, the spirit comprehends, conceives and forms the word, and goes forth therewith, just such an innate or instant birth, penetrating, rising, wrestling and overcoming it has also in nature.

[Aur. 19:91] For when man fell into sin, he was removed out of the innermost birth or geniture, and was set or put into the other two genitures, which presently embraced him, and mixed, qualified or united with him and in him, as in their own propriety; and so man instantly received the spirit, and all generatings or productions of the astral birth, and also of the outermost birth or geniture.

[Aur. 19:92] Therefore, now it expresses or speaks forth all words, according to the innate, instant generating or production of nature; for the spirit of man, which stands in the astral birth, and qualifies or unites with the total universal nature, and is as it were the whole nature itself, that forms the word, according to the innate, instant birth or geniture.

[Aur. 19:93] When the spirit of man sees anything, then it gives a name to that thing, according to the qualification or condition of the thing; but if it is to do this, then it must form or frame or put itself also into such a form, and generate itself also, with its tone, sound or articulation, just so as the thing to which it will give a name does generate or compose itself. Herein lies the kernel of the whole understanding of the Deity.

[Aur. 19:94] I do not write this, and bring it to light, that others after me should presently fall a writing, and publish the conceits of their own spirit herein, and cry them up for sanctity, or for a holy thing.

[Aur. 19:95] Hear me friend, there belongs more than so to this; your animated or soulish spirit must first qualify, operate or unite with the innermost birth or geniture in God, and stand in the light, that it may rightly know and understand the astral birth or geniture, and that it may have a free and open gate into all the births or genitures; otherwise you will not be able to write a holy and true philosophy, but a philosophy full of lice and fleas,\footnote{Aur. 19:95} as it were, and so you will be found a mocker against God.

[Aur. 19:96] I conceive already that the Devil will get many a one to ride upon his proud prancing nag; and many will make themselves ready for the journey before they be well girt;\footnote{Aur. 19:96} but I will not bear the blame for that.

[Aur. 19:97] For what I here reveal or manifest I must do; for the time of breaking through is at hand: He that will now sleep, the stormy tempest of the fierceness will rouse him.

[Aur. 19:98] But now, that every one might have a care of his affairs and doings, I would have men faithfully warned, according to the impulse, driving and will of the spirit.

\textit{Observe:}

[Aur. 19:99] The writer, Moses, said, God separated the light from the darkness, and called the light day, and the darkness night, so out of evening and morning the first day came to be.\footnote{Aur. 19:99}

[Aur. 19:100] But seeing these words, evening and morning, are contrary to the current of philosophy and reason, therefore it may be conceived that Moses was not the sole original author thereof, but that it was derived down to him from his forefathers, who reckoned all the six days of the creation in one continued course, and preserved and kept the memory of the creation from Adam, in an obscure word, and so left it to posterity.
[Aur. 19:101] For evening and morning were not before the time of the sun and stars, which most certainly and really were first created but on the fourth day, which I shall demonstrate from an assured, certain ground, concerning the creation of the sun and stars.

[Aur. 19:102] But there was day and night, which I will here declare according to my knowledge: You must here once more open wide the eyes of your spirit, if you intend to understand it; if not, then you will remain blind.

[Aur. 19:103] Though this great work in man has remained hidden till this very day, yet God be praised, it will now once be day, for the dayspring or morning-redness breaks forth. The breaker-through, or opener of the innermost birth, shows and presents itself with its red, green and white flag, in the outermost birth upon the rainbow.

Of Morning and Evening.

[Aur. 19:104] Now you object, How then could there be day and night, and not also morning and evening? Morning and evening are and reach up from the earth to the moon only, and take their original from the light of the sun, and this makes evening and morning, as also the outward day, and the outward dark night, as everyone knows.

[Aur. 19:105] But there was not a twofold creation of evening and morning at that time; but when evening and morning did once begin, they kept their constant course all along from that time to this.

Of the Day. (Lag.)

[Aur. 19:106] The word (Lag) conceives itself at the heart, and goes forth at the mouth through the way or passage of the astringent and the bitter qualities, and does not awaken or rouse up the astringent and the bitter qualities, but goes forth directly through their place, which is at the hinder gums upon the tongue, very softly or gently, and incomprehensibly as to the astringent and the bitter qualities.

[Aur. 19:107] But when it comes forth upon the tongue, then the tongue and the upper gums close the mouth; but when the spirit thrusts at the teeth, and will go forth, then the tongue opens the mouth at the teeth, and will go forth before the word, and at the mouth does as it were leap forth for joy.

[Aur. 19:108] But when the word breaks through, then the mouth within opens wide, and the word conceives itself once more with its sound behind the astringent and the bitter qualities, and rouses them up, as if they were lazy sleepers in the darkness, and goes forth suddenly out at the mouth.

[Aur. 19:109] Then the astringent quality drails after it, as a drowsy man who is awakened from sleep; but the bitter spirit which goes forth from the fire flash lies still, and hears or regards not, neither does it move. These are very great things, and not so slight matters as the countryman supposes.

[Aur. 19:110] Now, that the spirit first conceives itself at the heart, and breaks through all watches and guards till it come upon the tongue, unperceived or unobserved, signifies that the light brake forth out of the heart of God, through the corrupted, outermost, fierce, dead, bitter and astringent birth or geniture in the nature of this world, incomprehensibly both as to death and the Devil, together with the wrath of God; as it is written in the Gospel of St John, The light shines in darkness, and the darkness comprehended it not.

[Aur. 19:111] But that the tongue and the upper gums close the mouth, when the spirit comes upon the tongue, signifies that the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of nature in this world, at the time of the creation, were not mortified and dead through the wrath of God, but were lively, active and vigorous. For the tongue signifies or denotes the life of nature, in which stands the animated, soulish and holy birth or geniture: For it is a type of the soul.

[Aur. 19:112] But that the spirit suddenly affects the tongue, when the spirit comes upon it, whereupon it leaps for joy, and will go before the spirit forth at the mouth, signifies that the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of nature, (which are called the astral birth), when the light of God (which is called the day), rose up in them, suddenly got the divine life and will, and so highly rejoiced; as the tongue in the mouth here does.

[Aur. 19:113] But that the fore gums widen inward, and give room for the spirit to do as it pleases, signifies that the whole astral birth yielded itself very friendly and courteously to the will of the light, and did not awaken the fierceness in it.

[Aur. 19:114] But that the spirit, when it goes forth at the mouth, conceives itself yet once more behind the astringent quality upon the tongue at the hindermost gums, and awakens or rouses up the astringent quality, being as it were asleep, and then goes suddenly forth at the mouth:

[Aur. 19:115] It signifies, I. That the astringent spirit indeed must hold, preserve and image or frame all in the whole nature, but this is [only] after the spirit of the light has first formed it, and that then the light first awakens the astringent spirit, and gives all into the hands thereof to hold or preserve it.

[Aur. 19:116] And that must be, because of the outermost comprehensibility or palpability, which must be held and sustained by the astringent fierceness, else nothing would subsist in its body, neither could the compressed, compacted earth and stones subsist, but would be again a broken, thick, muddy and dark Salitter, such as at first moved in the whole deep.

[Aur. 19:117] It signifies also, II. That this Salitter, at last, when the spirit has done with its creation and work in this world, shall be roused up and revived at the Last Judgment Day.

[Aur. 19:118] But that the spirit conceives itself behind the astringent quality, and not in the astringent quality, and so awakens or rouses it up, signifies that the astringent nature will not comprehend the light of God in its own proper way, but shall rejoice in the light of the grace, and be awakened or raised up thereby, and perform the will of the light; as the bestial body of man effects and performs the will of the spirit, and yet these are not two severed things.

[Aur. 19:119] But that the bitter spirit lies still, and neither hears nor comprehends nor apprehends the work of the spirit, signifies that the bitter wrath-fire, which arises in the flash of fire at the time of the birth or geniture of the light, is not awakened by the light, neither comprehends it, but lies captive, imprisoned in the outermost birth or geniture, and must give leave to the spirit of light to do its work in nature, how it pleases, and yet can neither see nor hear nor comprehend the work of the light.

[Aur. 19:120] Therefore no man ought to think that the Devil is able to tear the works of the light out of his [man’s] heart, for he can neither see nor comprehend them: and though he rages and raves in the outermost birth in the flesh, as in his castle of robbery or fort of prey, do not despair; only take heed that you yourself bring not the works of wrath into the light of your heart. Then your soul will be safe enough from the deaf and dumb devil, who is blind in the light.

[Aur. 19:121] You should not suppose that which I write here to be as a doubtful opinion, questionable as to whether it be so or no: For the gates of heaven and of hell stand open to the spirit, and in the light it presses through them both, and beholds them; also proves or examines them; for the astral birth or geniture lives between them both, and must endure to be squeezed.
[Aur. 19:122] And though the Devil cannot take the light from me, yet he often hides or eclipses it with the outward and fleshly birth or geniture, so that the astral birth or geniture is in anxiety, and in a strait, as if it were captivated or imprisoned.

[Aur. 19:123] These are only his blows and strokes, whereby the mustard-seed is overwhelmed, covered and obscured: Concerning which also the holy Apostle Paul said, that a great thorn was given him in his flesh, and he besought the Lord earnestly to take it from him, whereupon the Lord answered, Let my grace be sufficient for you.193

[Aur. 19:124] For he also was come to this place, and would fain have had the light without obstruction or hindrance, as his own in the astral birth or geniture. But it could not be; for the wrath rests in the fleshly birth, and must bear or endure the corruption or putrefaction in the flesh: But if the fierceness should be wholly taken away from the astral birth or geniture, then, in that [birth], man would be like God, and know all things, as God himself does.

[Aur. 19:125] Which now at present only that soul which qualifies, operates or unites with the light of God knows, though it cannot perfectly bring it back again into the astral birth or geniture; for it is another person.

[Aur. 19:126] Just as an apple on a tree cannot bring its smell and taste back again into the tree, or into the earth, though it be indeed the son of the tree: So it is in nature also.

[Aur. 19:127] The holy man Moses was so high and deep in this light, that the light transfigured the astral birth also, whereby the outermost birth of the flesh in his face was transfigured; and he also desired to see the light of God perfectly, in the astral birth or geniture.

[Aur. 19:128] But that could not be; for the bar or bolt of the wrath lies before it: For even the whole or universal nature of the astral birth in this world cannot comprehend the light of God, and therefore the heart of God is hidden and concealed, which, however, dwells in all places, and comprehends all.

[Aur. 19:129] Thus you see that the day was created before the time of the sun and stars; for when God said, Let there be light:195 there the light brake through the darkness, but the darkness did not comprehend it, but remained sitting in its seat.

[Aur. 19:130] You see also how the wrath of God lies hid and rests in the outermost birth of nature, and cannot be awakened, unless men themselves rouse or awaken it, who with their fleshly birth or geniture qualify, operate or unite with the wrath in the outermost birth of nature.

[Aur. 19:131] Therefore if anyone should be damned into hell, he ought not to say that God has done it, or that God wills it to be so; but man awakens or stirs up the wrath-fire in himself, which, if it grows burning, afterwards qualifies, mixes or unites with God’s wrath and the hellish fire, as one thing.

[Aur. 19:132] For when your light is extinguished, then you stand in the darkness, and in the darkness the wrath of God is hidden, and so if you awaken it, then it burns in you.

[Aur. 19:133] There is fire even in a stone, and if you do not strike upon the stone, the fire remains hidden, but if you strike it, then the fire springs forth; and then, if any combustible matter be near it, that matter will take fire and burn, and so it comes to be a huge fire; and thus it is with man also, when he kindles the resting wrath-fire, which otherwise is at rest.

Of the Night. (Racht).

[Aur. 19:134] The word (Racht) conceives itself first at the heart, and the spirit grunts with or in the astringent quality, yet not wholly comprehensible to the astringent quality; afterwards it conceives itself upon the tongue: But all the while it grunts at the heart the tongue shuts the mouth, till the spirit comes and conceives itself upon the tongue, and then it opens the mouth quickly, and lets the spirit go forth.

[Aur. 19:135] Now that the word conceives itself first at the heart, and grunts with or in the astringent quality, signifies that the Holy Ghost conceived itself in the darkness upon the heart of God in the astral birth or geniture of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits. But that it grunts within or at the astringent quality, signifies that the darkness was a contrary or opposite will against the Holy Ghost, at or against which the spirit was displeased.

[Aur. 19:136] But that it goes likewise through the dark way or passage, signifies that the spirit goes forth also through the darkness, which is yet in a quiet rest, and generates it to be light, if it holds still, and does not kindle the fire.

[Aur. 19:137] Here is the cause for the judging world, which condemns man in his mother’s body or womb, to see and consider (for it does not know) whether the wrath-fire of the parents be fully kindled in the fruit or not, since also the spirit of God moves in the darkness which stands in quiet rest, and can easily generate the darkness to be light. Towards this, moreover, the hour of man’s nativity is very helpful to him; and to many [it is] very harmful.

[Aur. 19:138] But that the mouth shuts, when the spirit conceives itself upon the heart, and that the astringent quality grunts against and with or in it, signifies that the whole court, extent or place of this world was very dark in the astral, and also in the outermost birth or geniture, and by the strong going forth of the spirit became light.

[Aur. 19:139] But that the bitter spirit is not awakened, while the spirit goes through its place, signifies that the dark night in the outermost birth or geniture of this world has never comprehended the light; also never will comprehend it in all eternity.

[Aur. 19:140] Therefore it is that the creatures see the astral light with their eyes alone, else, if the darkness were not yet in the outermost birth or geniture, then the astral spirit could see through wood and stones, as also through the whole earth, and could not be hindered by anything, just as it is in heaven.

[Aur. 19:141] At the present time the darkness is separated from the light, and abides in the outermost birth or geniture, wherein the wrath of God rests till the Last Judgment Day; but then the wrath will be kindled, and the darkness will be the house or habitation of eternal perdition, wherein lord Lucifer, together with all wicked men who have sown into the darkness in the soil of the wrath, will have his eternal dwelling and residence.

[Aur. 19:142] But the astral birth, in which the natural light now stands, and wherein the holy birth is generated, will be also kindled at the end of this time, and the wrath and the holy birth will be separated asunder, for the wrath will not comprehend the holy birth or geniture.

[Aur. 19:143] But the wrath in the astral birth will be given to the house of darkness for a life, and the wrath will be called the hellish fire: And the house of darkness, which is the outermost birth, will be called death: And king Lucifer will be the god therein, and his angels and all damned men will be his ministers, officers and servants.

[Aur. 19:144] In this devouring abyss will rise up all manner of hellish fruits and forms, all according to the hellish quality and kind; as in heaven there spring up heavenly fruits and forms, according to the heavenly quality and kind.

[Aur. 19:145] Thus you may understand what the creation of heaven and earth signifies and is, also what God made on the first day. Though indeed the first three days were not distinguished or severed asunder by evening and morning, but a time is to be reckoned and accounted as of twenty-four hours, as there is on high above the moon such a time and day.
Secondly, it is also therefore counted for a human day, because, doubtless, the earth instantly began its revolution and did turn round about once in such a period of time, while God was separating, and so till he had separated, the light from the darkness; and thus it performed and finished its course the first time.

Of the Second Day: How God separated the Waters beneath the Firmament from the Waters above the Firmament.

[Aur. 20:1] CONCERNING the second day, it is written thus: And God said, Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters, and let it be a distinction or division between the waters: So there God made the firmament, and divided the waters under the firmament, from the waters above the firmament, and it was so done. And God called the firmament, heaven; and so out of the evening and the morning the second day came to be.

[Aur. 20:2] This description shows once more that the dear man Moses was not the original author thereof; for it is written very obscurely and baldly, though indeed it has a very excellent understanding and meaning.

[Aur. 20:3] Without doubt the Holy Ghost would not have it revealed, lest the Devil should know all the mysteries in the creation. For the Devil does not know the creation of the light, viz. how heaven is made out of the midst or center of the water.

[Aur. 20:4] For he can neither see nor comprehend nor apprehend the light and holy generation or production, which stands in the water of the heaven, but he can see the generation or production only which stands in the astringent, bitter, sour and hot quality, from which existed the outermost birth or geniture, which is his royal fort or castle.

[Aur. 20:5] The meaning is not that he has no power in the elementary water, to possess it; for the outermost corrupted birth or geniture in the elementary water belongs also to the wrath of God, and death is also therein, as well as in the earth.

[Aur. 20:6] But the spirit in Moses means here quite another sort of water, which the Devil can neither understand nor comprehend: But if it should have been declared so long a time ago, then the Devil would have learned it from man, and had without doubt strewed his hellish chaff also into it.

[Aur. 20:7] Therefore the Holy Ghost has kept it hidden almost till the last hour before the evening, wherein his thousand years are accomplished, and then he must be let loose again for a little season, as is to be read in the Revelation.

[Aur. 20:8] But seeing he is now loose from the chains of darkness, God causes lights to be set up everywhere in this world, whereby men might learn to know him, and his feats and wiles, and beware of him.

[Aur. 20:9] Whether he be loose or no I offer it to everyone to consider; but view the world in the clear light, and you will find, that at present the four new sons which the Devil generated when he was thrust out of heaven, do govern the world, viz. 1. Pride, 2. Covetousness, 3. Envy, 4. Wrath; these rule the world at present, and are the Devil’s heart, his animated or soulish spirit.

[Aur. 20:10] Therefore view the world very well, and then you will find that it fully qualifies, unites and co-works with these four new sons of the Devil. Therefore men have cause to look circumspectly to themselves. For this is the time of which all the prophets have prophesied; and Christ in the Gospel, saying, Think you that the Son of Man will find any faith, when he shall come again to judge the world?
[Aur. 20:11] The world supposes that it flourishes now, and stands in its flower, because the clear light has moved over it. But the spirit shows to me that it stands in the midst or center of hell.

[Aur. 20:12] For it forsakes the love, and hangs on covetousness, extortion and bribery; there is no mercy at all therein: Every one cries out, If I had but money! Those that are in authority and power suck the very marrow from the bones of men of low degree and rank, and feed upon the sweat of their brows. Briefly, there is nothing else but lying, deception, robbing and murdering, and so [this world] may very justly be called the Devil’s nest and dwelling-house.

[Aur. 20:13] The holy light is nowadays accounted a mere history and bare knowledge, and that the spirit will not work therein; and yet they suppose that is faith which they profess with their mouths.

[Aur. 20:14] O you blind and foolish world! full of the Devil. It is not faith, to know that Christ died for you, and has shed his blood for you, that you might be saved: This in you is but a mere history and knowledge, the Devil also knows as much, but it profits him nothing; so you also, you foolish world, go no further, but content yourself with the bare knowledge, and therefore this your knowledge will judge you.

[Aur. 20:15] But if you would know what the true faith is, then Observe: your heart must not qualify or cooperate with the four sons of the Devil, in pride, covetousness, envy, wrath, extortion, oppression, lying, deceiving, murder, and tearing the bread out of your neighbor’s throat, studying day and night to do mischief in bringing subtle devices and designs to effect, that you may court and give satisfaction to the fourfold devil of pride, covetousness, envy and wrath, and exercise yourself in worldly pleasures and voluptuousness.

[Aur. 20:16] For thus says the spirit in its zeal, or in the jealousy of God’s wrath in this world: While your spirit and will qualifies or co-operates with and in the four vices or sins of the Devil, you are not one spirit with God; and though you did every hour offer [the worship or prayer of] your lips, and bow the knee before me, yet I will accept none of your labor: Is not my breath, however, continually before me? What shall your incense be to me in my fierce wrath? Do you think I will receive the Devil into myself, or exalt hell into heaven?

We should strive against the Malice and Wickedness that is in our Hearts.

[Aur. 20:17] Convert! Convert! And strive against the malice and wickedness of the Devil, and incline your heart towards the LORD your GOD, and walk in his will. If your heart will incline to me, says the spirit, then will I also incline to you: Or do you think that I am false and wicked, as you are?

[Aur. 20:18] Therefore I say now, if your heart does not qualify, mix or co-operate with God in your knowledge, out of a true purpose of love, then you are a dissemler, liar and murderer in the sight of God. For God does not hear any man’s prayer, unless his heart be fully directed and bent in obedience to God.

[Aur. 20:19] Would you fight against the wrath of God? Then you must put on the helmet of obedience and of love, otherwise you will not break through; and if you do not break through, then you fight in vain, and remain to be a servant or minister of the Devil, in one way as well as in another.

[Aur. 20:20] What good will your knowledge do you, if you will not strive and fight therein? It is just as if one knew of a great treasure, and would not go for it; but, though he knows he might have it, would rather starve for hunger in the bare knowing of it.
Thus says the spirit, Many Heathen, who have not your knowledge, and yet strive or fight against the wrath, will enter into the kingdom of heaven before you. For who shall judge them, if their heart do qualify, unite or operate with God? For though they do not know him, and yet work and labor in his spirit, in righteousness, and in the purity of their heart, in true love one to another, they testify assuredly that the law of God is in their heart.

But seeing you know it, and do it not, and the others know it not, but yet do it, they, with their doing, judge your knowledge; and you are found to be a hypocrite, a dissembler, and an unprofitable servant, who were put into the vineyard of the Lord, and will not work therein.

What do you suppose the Master of the house will say to you, when he shall require and demand his talent with which he entrusted you, you having buried it in the earth? Will he not say, You perverse wicked servant, why did you not put my talent out upon use, and then I could have demanded the principal and the interest or profit?

And so the sufferings of Christ will be quite taken from you, and will be given to the Heathen, who had but one talent, and yet yielded to the Master of the house five; and you will have to howl with the dogs.

Now observe:

If we rightly consider how God separated the water under the firmament, from the water above the firmament, then great things will be found therein.

For the water which rests on the earth is as corrupt and perished and mortal or dead a being or thing as the earth is, and belongs also to the outermost birth, which with its comprehensibility, or as to its palpability, stands in death, even as the earth and stones do.

The meaning is not that the water is quite reprobated, rejected or thrust out from God; for the heart therein belongs yet to the astral birth or geniture, out of which the holy birth becomes generated.

But death stands in the outermost birth, and therefore is the palpable water separated from the impalpable.

Now you will ask, How is that? Behold the water in the deep above the earth, which qualifies, mixes or unites with the elementary air and fire, that is the water of the astral birth or geniture, wherein stands the astral life, and wherein especially the Holy Ghost moves, and through which the third and innermost birth does generate incomprehensibly as to the wrath of God therein: That water to our eyes seems like the air.

But that, in the deep above the earth, water, air and fire are one in another, every intelligent man may see and understand.

For you see that often the whole deep is very clear and pure, and then, in a quarter of an hour, is covered with watery clouds; that is, when the stars from above, and the water upon the earth from beneath, kindle themselves, and so water is suddenly there also generated; which would not be, if the wrath did not also stand in the astral birth or geniture.

But seeing all is corrupted, therefore must the upper water in the wrath of God come to help the astringent, bitter and hot quality of the earth, and soften the quality and quench its fire, so that the life may always be generated, and that the holy birth, between death and the wrath of God, may be generated also.
[Aur. 20:34] But that also the element of fire is, and does rule in the deep of the air and water, you see in tempests of lighting; also you perceive how the light of the sun kindles the element of fire on the earth with its reflection, although many times aloft in the upper region towards the moon it is very cold.

[Aur. 20:35] But now God separated the palpable water from the impalpable, and placed the palpable on the earth, and the impalpable remained still in the deep, in its own seat, as it had been from eternity.

[Aur. 20:36] But seeing the wrath also is in that water in the deep above the earth, therefore constantly, through the kindling of the stars, and of the water in the wrath, such palpable water generates itself, which, with its outermost birth, stands in death.

[Aur. 20:37] And which, seeing it qualifies or unites with the innermost birth of the astral birth or geniture, comes to help the Salitter of the corrupted earth, and quenches its wrath; whereby, in the astral birth or geniture, all stands in the life. And so the earth generates the life through the death.

What the Moon or Luna is.
The Gate of the Mystery.

[Aur. 20:38] But that there is a firmament between the waters, which firmament is called heaven, has this understanding or meaning:

[Aur. 20:39] The whole deep, from the moon to the earth, stands with its whole working in the wrathful and comprehensible or palpable birth or geniture; for the moon is the goddess of the palpable birth; so the house of the Devil, of death, and of hell, is in the circuit, orb or extent between the moon and the earth.

[Aur. 20:40] Where, therefore, the fierce wrath of God, in the outermost birth or geniture in the deep, becomes daily kindled and blown up by the devils and all wicked men, through the great sins of man, which still qualify, mix, unite or cooperate with the astral birth or geniture in the deep.

[Aur. 20:41] Therefore God has made the firmament, which is called heaven, between the outermost and the innermost birth; and that is a partition or division between the outermost and the innermost birth or geniture.

[Aur. 20:42] For the outermost birth of the water cannot comprehend the innermost birth of the water which is called heaven, and which is made out of the midst or center of the water. ("Heaven is the firmament, viz. the fire-sea, or sea of fire, out of the seven spirits of nature, out of which the stars, as a quintessence, were concreted, incorporated or created by the Word FIAT: It has or contains both fire and water, and hangs in itself inwardly on the first Principle, and will bring its wonders, with or as to the figure of them, into the eternal; but its birth or geniture fades or passes away.")

[Aur. 20:43] Now the innermost birth of heaven reflects strongly upon the earth, and holds the outermost water upon the earth strongly captive, together with the earth also.

[Aur. 20:44] If that were not, then, with the revolution of the globe of the earth, the water would be divided or dissolved again; also then would the earth crumble, break and molder away in the deep (and all would be a Chaos again).

[Aur. 20:45] Therefore that firmament, between the outermost palpable water and the inward, holds the earth and the palpable water captive.
How the Heavens are not pure in God’s sight.

[Aur. 20:46] But now you may ask, What kind of firmament of heaven then is that which I can neither see nor apprehend? It is the firmament between the clear Deity and the corrupt nature, which you must break through when you intend to come to God; and it is that very firmament which does not quite stand in the wrath, neither is it altogether or perfectly pure; concerning which it is written, The very heavens are not pure in the sight of God. But at the Last Judgment Day the wrath will be purged from them. For it is written, Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away, said Christ.

[Aur. 20:47] Now that impurity in that heaven is the wrath, but the purity is the word of God, which he once spoke, saying; Let the water under the firmament be separated from the water above the firmament. And that word stands and is comprised in the firmament of the water, and holds captive or fixed the outward water, together with the earth.

The Gate of the Deity.

[Aur. 20:48] When you behold the deep above the earth, you ought not to say that it is not the gate of God, where God in his holiness dwells: No, no, think not so; for the whole holy Trinity, God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, dwells in the center under the firmament of heaven, though that very firmament cannot comprehend him.

[Aur. 20:49] Indeed, all is as it were one body, the outermost and the innermost birth, together with the firmament of heaven, as also the astral birth therein, in and with which the wrath of God also qualifies, mixes and unites; but yet they are one to another as is the government, frame or constitution in man.

[Aur. 20:50] The flesh signifies, 1. The outward birth or geniture, which is the house of death. 2. The second birth or geniture in man is the astral, in which the life stands, and wherein love and wrath wrestle the one with the other; and thus far man himself knows himself; for the astral birth generates the life in the outermost, that is, in the dead flesh. 3. The third birth is generated between the astral and the outermost, and that is called the animated or soulish birth or geniture, or the soul, and is as large as the whole man.

[Aur. 20:51] And that birth or geniture the outward man neither knows nor comprehends; neither does the astral comprehend it, for every qualifying or fountain spirit comprehends only its innate or instant root, which signifies or resembles the heaven.

[Aur. 20:52] And that animated or soulish man must press through the firmament of heaven to God, and live with God, else the whole man cannot come into heaven to God.

[Aur. 20:53] For every man that desires to be saved, must, with his innate, instant births or genitures, be as the whole Deity with all the three births in this world is.

[Aur. 20:54] Man cannot be absolutely or wholly pure, or devoid of wrath and sin, for the births of the depth in this world are not fully pure before the heart of God; love and wrath always wrestle the one with the other, by which God is called an angry zealous God.

[Aur. 20:55] Now as a man is, in the government or order of his nativity, birth or geniture, just so also is the whole body of God in or of this world; but in the water stands the meek life.

[Aur. 20:56] As, I. First in the outward body of God, in or of this world, there is the congealed, astringent, bitter and hot death, in which the palpable water is also congealed and dead.
[Aur. 20:57] Therein now is the darkness, wherein king Lucifer and his angels, as also all fleshly or carnal wicked men, lie captive, even with or in their living bodies, as also the separated spirits of damned men.

[Aur. 20:58] This birth can neither see, hear, feel, smell nor comprehend the heart of God, but is a foolish virgin, which king Lucifer in his pride has caused so to be.

[Aur. 20:59] II. The second birth is the astral, which you must understand to be the life of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, wherein now the love and the wrath are against each other; therein stands the upper water, which is a spirit of the life, and therein, or between, is the firmament of heaven, which is made out of the midst or center of the water.

[Aur. 20:60] Now this birth or geniture presses through the outward congealed birth quite through death, and generates the astral life in the death, that is, in the congealed earth, water and flesh of the beasts and of men, also of the fowls, fishes and worms or creeping things.

[Aur. 20:61] The Devil can reach half into this birth, so far as the wrath comprehends or reaches, but no deeper, and thus far goes his dwelling, but no deeper. Therefore the Devil cannot know how the other part in this birth has a root; and so far man is come in his knowledge, from the beginning of the world to this time, since his fall. But the other root, called the heaven, the spirit has kept hidden and concealed from man till this time, lest the Devil should have learned it from man, and should have strewed poison into it for man before his eyes.

In what Heaven the Man that fears God dwells.

[Aur. 20:62] This other part of the astral birth, which stands in the love in the sweet water, is the firmament of heaven, which holds captive the kindled wrath, together with all the devils, for they cannot enter thereinto; and in that heaven dwells the Holy Spirit, which goes forth from the heart of God, and strives or fights against the fierceness, and generates to himself a temple in the midst, in the fierceness of the wrath of God.

[Aur. 20:63] And in this heaven dwells the man that fears God, even with and in the living body, for that heaven is as well in man as in the deep above the earth. As is the deep above the earth, so is man also, both in love and wrath, till after the departure of the soul; but when the soul departs from the body, then it abides either in the heaven of love only, or only in the heaven of wrath.

[Aur. 20:64] That part, which here it has comprehended in its departure, is now its eternal and indissoluble dwelling-house, and from there it can never get; for there is a great cleft between them; as Christ speaks of the rich man.

[Aur. 20:65] And in this heaven the holy angels dwell amongst us, and the devils in the other part: and in this heaven man lives between heaven and hell, and must endure and suffer from the fierceness many hard blows, temptations, persecutions, and many times torments and squeezings.

[Aur. 20:66] The wrath is called the cross, and the love-heaven is called patience, and the spirit that rises up therein is called hope and faith, which qualifies, mixes or unites with God, and wrestles with the wrath till it overcomes and gets the victory.

[Aur. 20:67] And herein lies the whole Christian doctrine: He that teaches otherwise does not know what he teaches, for his doctrine has no foot, ground or foundation, and his heart always totters, wavers and doubts, and knows not what it should do.

[Aur. 20:68] For his spirit always seeks for rest, but finds it not; for it is impatient, and always seeks after novelties, or some new thing; and when it finds somewhat, it tickles itself therewith, as if it had found some new treasure, and yet there is no steadfastness, stability or certainty in him, but he seeks continually for abstinence or for a diversion.

[Aur. 20:69] O you theologists! The spirit here opens a door and gate for you: If you will not now see, and feed your sheep and lambs on a green meadow, but on a dry, seared heath, you must be accountable for it before the severe, earnest and wrathful judgment of God; therefore look to it.

[Aur. 20:70] I take heaven to witness that I perform here what I must do; for the spirit drives me to it, so that I am wholly captivated therewith, and cannot be freed from it, whatever may befall me hereafter, or ensue upon it.

The Holy Gate.

[Aur. 20:71] III. The third birth or geniture in the body of God, in or of this world, is under the firmament of heaven, hidden or concealed; and the firmament of heaven qualifies, mixes or unites therewith, but yet not fully bodily, but creaturely, as the angels and the souls of men do.

[Aur. 20:72] And this third birth or geniture is the almighty and holy heart of God, wherein our King Jesus Christ, with his natural body, sits at the right hand of God, as a King and Lord of the whole body or place of this world, who encompasses, holds and preserves all with his heart.

[Aur. 20:73] And this firmament of heaven is his throne or footstool, and the qualifying or fountain spirits of his natural body rule in the whole body of this world, and all is tied, bound or united with them, all whatsoever that stands in the astral birth in the part of love: The other part of this world is tied, bound and united with the Devil.

[Aur. 20:74] You must not think, as Johannes Calvus or Calvinus thought, which was, that the body of Christ is not an almighty being, and that it comprehends or reaches no farther than the little circumscribed place wherein it is.

[Aur. 20:75] No; you child of man, you err, and do not rightly understand the divine power: Does not every man in his astral, qualifying or fountain spirits comprehend the whole place or body of this world, and the place comprehends man? It is all but one body, only there are distinct members.

[Aur. 20:76] Why then should not the qualifying or fountain spirits in the natural body of Christ qualify, mix or unite with the qualifying or fountain spirits of nature? Is not his body also out of the qualifying or fountain spirits of nature, and is not his heart animated or become soulish from or out of the third birth or geniture, which is the heart of God, which comprehends all angels and the heaven of heavens, even the whole Father?

[Aur. 20:77] You Calvinists, desist from your opinion, and do not torment yourselves with the comprehensible or palpable being; for God is a Spirit, and in the comprehensibility or palpability stands death.

[Aur. 20:78] The body of Christ is no more the hard comprehensibility or palpability, but the divine comprehensibility or palpability of nature, like the angels.

[Aur. 20:79] For our bodies also, at the resurrection, will not consist of such hard flesh and bones, but will be like the angels. And though indeed all forms and powers will be therein, and all faculties and members, even to the privy parts, yet these will be in another manner of form, and so also will the entrails and guts; but we shall not have the hard comprehensibility or palpability.

[Aur. 20:80] For Christ, after his resurrection, said to Mary Magdalene, at the sepulcher in Joseph’s garden, Touch me not, for I am not yet ascended to my God and to your God. As if he would say, I have not now the bestial body anymore, although I show myself to you in my form or shape which I had, otherwise, you, in your bestial body, could not see me.

[Aur. 20:81] And so during the forty days after his resurrection he did not always walk visibly among the disciples, but invisibly, according to his heavenly and angelical property; though when he would speak or talk with his disciples, then he showed or presented himself in a comprehensible or palpable manner and form, that thereby he might speak natural words with them: for the corruption cannot comprehend or apprehend the divine (words or things).

_How Christ could go through closed Doors._

[Aur. 20:82] Also it sufficiently appears that his body was of an angelical kind, in that he went to his disciples through closed doors.216

[Aur. 20:83] Thus now you must know, that his body qualifies, mixes or unites with all the seven spirits in nature in the astral birth in the part of love, and holds sin, death and the Devil captive in its wrath part.

[Aur. 20:84] Thus you now understand what God made on the second day, when he separated the water under the firmament from the water above the firmament. You see also, how you are in this world everywhere in heaven, and also in hell, and dwell between heaven and hell, in great danger.

[Aur. 20:85] You see, also, how heaven is in a holy man; and that everywhere, wheresoever you stand, go or lie, if your spirit does but qualify or co-operate with God, then, as to that part, you are in heaven, and your soul is in God. Therefore also said Christ, My sheep are in my hands, no man can pull them away from me.217

[Aur. 20:86] In like manner you see, also, how you are always in hell among all the devils, as to the wrath; if your eyes were but open, you would see wonderful things; but you stand between heaven and hell, and can see neither of them, and walk upon a very narrow bridge.

[Aur. 20:87] Some men have many times, according to or in the sidereal or astral spirit, entered in there, and been ravished in an ecstasy, as men call it, and have presently known the gates of heaven and of hell, and have told, shown and declared how that many men dwell in hell, with or in their living bodies, or with their bodies alive: Such indeed have been scorned, derided or laughed at, but with great ignorance and indiscretion, for it is just so as they declare; which I will also describe more at large in its due place, and show in what manner and condition it is with them.

[Aur. 20:88] But the water has a twofold birth, and I will here prove that also, with or by the language of nature; for that is the root or mother of all the languages which are in this world; and therein stands the whole perfect knowledge of all things.

[Aur. 20:89] For when Adam spoke at the first, he gave names to all the creatures, according to their qualities and innate, instant operations, virtues or faculties. And it is the very language of the total, universal nature, but is not known to everyone. For it is a hidden secret mystery, which is imparted to me by the grace of God from the spirit, which has a delight and longing towards me.

_Now Observe:_

[Aur. 20:90] The word waffer (Water) is thrust forth from the heart, and closes together the teeth, and passes over the astringent and bitter qualities, and touches them not, but goes forth through the teeth, and the tongue contracts and rouses up itself, together with the spirit, and helps to hiss, and so qualifies, mixes or unites with the spirit, and the spirit presses very forcibly through the teeth. But when the spirit is almost quite gone forth, then the astringent and bitter spirit contracts and rouses up itself, and afterwards first qualifies with the word, but yet sits still in its seat, and afterwards jars mightily and strongly in the syllable =fer.

[Aur. 20:91] But now, that the spirit conceives itself at the heart, and comes forth and closes together the teeth, and hisses with the tongue through the teeth, signifies that the heart of God has moved itself, and with its spirit made a closure round about it, which is the firmament of heaven: Also, as the teeth do shut and close together, and then the spirit goes through the teeth, so also the spirit goes forth from the heart into the astral birth or geniture.

[Aur. 20:92] And as the tongue frames itself for the hissing, and qualifies, mixes or unites with the spirit, and moves therewith, so the soul of man co-images or frames itself with the Holy Spirit, and qualifies, operates or unites therewith, and presses together jointly in the power thereof, through heaven, and rules together also therewith in the word of God.

[Aur. 20:93] But, that afterwards the astringent and bitter qualities awaken behind, and co-image afterwards to the framing of the word, signifies that indeed all is as it were one body, but the heaven and the Holy Spirit, together with the heart of God, has its proper seat to itself; and the Devil, together with the wrath of God, can comprehend neither the Holy Spirit nor the heaven; but the Devil, together with the wrath, hangs in the outward birth in the word, and the wrath helps to image all in the outermost birth in this world, all whatsoever that stands in the comprehensibility or palpability; just as the astringent and bitter qualities afterwards rouse themselves behind to the framing of the word, and qualify, operate or unite therewith.

[Aur. 20:94] That the spirit first goes over the astringent and bitter qualities unperceived, signifies that the gate of God is everywhere in this world all over, wherein the Holy Ghost rules; and that the heaven stands open everywhere, even in the midst or center of the earth; and that the Devil nowhere can either see or comprehend or apprehend the heaven, but is a grumbling and snarling hell-hound, which afterwards, when the Holy Ghost has built or raised to himself a Church and Temple, first comes out from behind and destroys it in the wrath, and hangs behind at the word as an enemy, who will not endure that a Temple of God should be raised or built in his land or country, whereby his kingdom might be lessened or diminished.

Of the Third Day.

[Aur. 21:1] ALTHOUGH in the writings of Moses the spirit has kept the deepest mysteries secret, hidden and concealed in the letter, yet all is so very regularly described that there is no defect at all in the order thereof.

[Aur. 21:2] For when God through the Word had created heaven and earth, and had separated the light from the darkness, and had given a place to each of them, then each began at once its birth or geniture and qualifying or working.

[Aur. 21:3] On the first day God drove together (or compacted) the corrupt Salitter, which so came to be in the kindling of his wrath, I say, God then drove it together or created it through the strong spirit; for the word Schuff (created) signifies here a driving together (or compaction).

[Aur. 21:4] In this driving together or compaction of the corrupted Wrath-Salitter, was king Lucifer also, as an impotent prince, together with his angels, driven into the hell of the Wrath-Salitter, into that place where the outward half-dead comprehensibility is generated, which is the place or space between the nature-goddess, the moon, and the dead earth.

The Diurnal Motion of the Earth.

[Aur. 21:5] Now when this was done the deep became clear, and with the hidden or concealed heaven the light was separated from the darkness, and the globe of the earth in the great wheel of nature was rolled or turned once about; and accordingly there passed the time of one revolution, or of one day, which contains twenty-four hours.

[Aur. 21:6] In the duration of the second day began the sharp separation, and the incomprehensible cleft was made between the wrath and the love of the light; and so king Lucifer was firmly, strongly or fast bolted up into the house of darkness, and was reserved to the final Judgment.

[Aur. 21:7] So also the water of life was separated from the water of death, yet in that manner as that, in this time of the world, they hang the one to the other, as body and soul, and yet neither of them comprehends the other. The heaven which was made out of the midst or center of the water is the cleft between them, so that the comprehensible or palpable water is a death, and the incomprehensible or impalpable is the life.

[Aur. 21:8] Thus now the incomprehensible spirit, which is God, rules everywhere in this world, and replenishes or fills all, and the comprehensible hangs or depends on him, and dwells in the darkness, and can neither see nor hear nor smell nor feel the incomprehensible one, but sees the works thereof, and is a destroyer of them.

[Aur. 21:9] Now when God had bound up the Devil in the darkness through the closure of the heaven, which heaven is everywhere in all places, then he began again his wonderful birth or geniture in the seventh nature-spirit, and all generated again as it had done from eternity.

[Aur. 21:10] For Moses writes thus: And God said, Let the earth send forth grass and herbs that yield a seed, and the fruit tree yielding or bearing fruit after its kind, which has its own seed in itself, upon the earth, and it was so done. And the earth sent forth grass, and the herb that yields seed, each after its kind, and the tree yielding fruit, which has its seed in itself, every one according to its kind; and God saw that it was good. And so out of evening and morning the third day came to be.219
[Aur. 21:11] This indeed is very rightly and properly described, but the true ground sticks hidden or concealed in the word, and has never been understood by man. For man since the fall could never comprehend or apprehend the inward birth or geniture, to perceive how the heavenly birth or geniture is; but his reason lay captivated in the outward comprehensibility or palpability, and could not penetrate and press through heaven, and see the inward birth or geniture of God, which also is in the corrupted earth, and everywhere, in all places.

[Aur. 21:12] You must not here think that God has made some new thing, which never was before; for if that were so, then there had been another God, which is not possible to be. For without or besides this one only God, nothing is at all, for the gates of hell are not anywhere without, beyond or absent from this one only God; only, there is a partition or distinction between the love in the light, and the kindled wrath in the darkness, so that the one cannot comprehend the other, and yet the one hangs to the other as one body.

[Aur. 21:13] The Salitter, out of which the earth is come to be, was from eternity, and stood in the seventh qualifying or fountain spirit, which is the nature-spirit, and the other six have generated the seventh continually, and are encompassed or surrounded therewith, or lie captivated or enclosed therein, as in their mother, and are the power and life of the seventh, just as is the astral birth in the flesh.

[Aur. 21:14] But when king Lucifer had stirred the wrath in this birth or geniture, and had with his loftiness brought the poison and death into it, then in the wrathful birth, in the fierceness or sting of death, such earth and stones were generated.

[Aur. 21:15] Upon this now ensued the spewing out thereof; for the Deity could not endure such a birth or geniture in the love and light of God, but the corrupted Salitter must be driven together into a lump, and lord Lucifer also with it. So then presently the innate light in the corrupted Salitter went out or extinguished, and the closure of the heaven was made between the wrath and the love, that so such Salitter might be generated no more, and that heaven might hold the wrath in the outermost birth or geniture in nature captive in the darkness, and be an eternal partition or separation between them.

[Aur. 21:16] This being accomplished in the two days, then on the third day the light rose up in the darkness, and the darkness, together with the prince thereof, could not comprehend it.

[Aur. 21:17] For out of the earth there sprang up grass and herbs and trees, and now also it stands written thus: Each according to its kind. In these words lies hidden or concealed the kernel of the eternal birth or geniture, and it cannot be comprehended or apprehended by or with flesh and blood, but the Holy Ghost, through the animated or soulish birth, must kindle the astral man, otherwise he is blind herein, and understands nothing but concerning earth and stones, also grass, herbs and wooden trees.

[Aur. 21:18] But now is it written here, God spatch (said), Let the earth bring forth grass, and herbs, and fruitful trees.

Observe here:

[Aur. 21:19] The word spatch (said), is an eternal word, and was before the times of the wrath from eternity in this Salitter, when the Salitter still stood in the heavenly form and life, and now also it is not quite dead in its center, but only in the comprehensibility or palpability.

[Aur. 21:20] But now when the light rose up again in the outward comprehensibility, or in death, then the eternal word stood in its full birth, and generated the life through and out of death, and the corrupted Salitter brought forth fruit again.
[Aur. 21:21] But seeing the eternal word must qualify, mix or unite with the corruption in the wrath, thereupon the bodies of the fruits were evil and good. For the outward birth or geniture of the fruits must be out of or from the earth which is in death; and the spirit of life must be out of the astral birth which stands in love and wrath.

[Aur. 21:22] For thus stood the birth or geniture of nature in the time of the kindling, and was thus together incorporated in the earth, and must also in such a birth spring up again: For it is written, That the dead earth should let the grass and herbs and trees spring up, each according to its kind, that is, according to the kind and quality that it had been in from eternity, and as it had been in the heavenly quality, kind and form. For that is called its own kind which is received in the mother’s body or womb, and is its own by right of nature, as its own peculiar life.

[Aur. 21:23] Thus the earth brought forth no strange life, except that which had been in it from eternity: As before the time of the wrath it had brought forth heavenly fruits, which had a holy, pure heavenly body, and were the food of angels, so now it brought forth fruits according to its comprehensible, palpable, hard, evil, wrathful, poisonous, venomous, half-dead kind; for as the mother was, so were her children.

[Aur. 21:24] Not that the fruits of the earth are thereupon wholly in the wrath of God; for the one only, incorporated or compacted word, which is immortal and incorruptible, which was from eternity in the Salitter of the earth, sprang up again in the body of death, and brought forth fruit out of the dead body of the earth; but the earth comprehended not the word, though the word comprehended the earth.

[Aur. 21:25] And now as the whole earth was, together with the word, so was the fruit also; but the word remained in the center of the heaven, which is also in this place hiddenly; and this birth or geniture caused the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, out of or from the outermost, corrupt and dead birth or geniture, to form the body; and itself, viz. the Word or Heart of God, remained in its heavenly seat, sitting on the throne of majesty, and filled the astral and also the mortal birth or geniture, but to them was the holy life altogether incomprehensible.

[Aur. 21:26] You must not think that thereupon the outermost dead birth or geniture of the earth has gotten such a life, through the risen word that sprang up, that it is no more a death, and that death no longer is in her fruit: No; that can never be; for that which is once dead in God is really dead, and in its own power can never be living again; but the word, which qualifies, mixes or unites with the astral birth in the part of the love, generates the life through the astral birth or geniture, through the death.

[Aur. 21:27] For you see plainly how all the fruits of the earth, whatsoever it brings forth, must putrefy and rot; also that they are a death.

[Aur. 21:28] But that the fruits get a body other than the earth is, which body is much fuller of virtue, fairer or more beautiful, also of a better taste, relish and smell, is because the astral birth or geniture receives power or virtue from the word, and forms or frames another body, which stands half in the death and half in the life, and stands hidden between the wrath of God and the love.

[Aur. 21:29] But, that the fruits upon the body are much pleasanter, more lovely, sweeter and milder, and with a good taste and relish, that is [because of] the third birth out of the earth, according to which the earth shall be purged and cleansed at the end of this time, and shall be set or put again into its first place; but the wrath will abide in death.
Man is made out of the Seed of the Earth.
The richly joyful Gate of Man.

[Aur. 21:30] Behold, thus says the spirit in the word, which is the very heart of the earth, and which rises or springs up in his heaven, in the clear flash of the life, wherewith my spirit in its knowledge qualifies, mixes or unites, and through which I write these words.

[Aur. 21:31] Man is made out of the seed of the earth, out of an incorporated or compacted mass or lump (“Understand, out of the matrix of the earth, wherein the eye is twofold, the one in God and the other in this world, out of three Principles.”), and not out of the wrath, but out of the birth or geniture of the earth, as a king or heart of the earth, and stood in the astral birth or geniture in the part of the love; but wrath hung to him, which he should have put forth from himself, as the fruit puts forth from itself the bitterness of the tree.

[Aur. 21:32] But that, he did not, but reached back from the love into the wrath, and lusted after his dead or mortal mother, to eat of her, and to suck her breast, and to stand upon her stock.

[Aur. 21:33] Now according to his wrestling so also it befell him, and so he brought himself with his outermost birth or geniture into the death or mortality of his mother, and with his life he brought himself out from the love into the part of the wrathful, astral birth or geniture.

[Aur. 21:34] And there he stands now, between heaven and hell, in the face of the Devil in his kingdom, against whom the Devil wars, fights and strives continually, that he might either banish him out of his country into the earth, or make him a child of wrath in hell. And what is now his hope?

[Aur. 21:35] Behold! You blind Heathen; behold! You render, perverter, obscurer and wrester of the Scriptures, open your eyes wide, and be not ashamed at this simple plainness; for God lies hid in the center, and is yet much more simple and plain; but you see him not.

[Aur. 21:36] Behold! Your spirit or your soul is generated from or out of your astral birth or geniture, and is the third birth in you, just as an apple upon a tree is the third birth or geniture of the earth, and has not its vegetation in, from, or within the earth, but from above the earth; and if it were a spirit, as your soul is, it would not suffer the earth anymore to tie or bind it to corruption.

[Aur. 21:37] But you must know, however, that the apple on its stock or branch, with its innermost birth or geniture, qualifies, mixes or unites with the word of God, through whose power it is grown out of the earth.

[Aur. 21:38] But since the wrath is in the body of the mother of the apple, this same mother cannot get the apple out of the palpable birth, and the apple must remain, as to its body, in the palpability, in death.

[Aur. 21:39] But in its power, in which its life stands, wherewith it qualifies, mixes or unites with the word of God, this apple will, in its mother, in the power of the word at the Last Judgment Day, be set or put again into its heavenly place, and be separated from the wrathful and dead or mortal palpability, and spring up in the heaven of this world, in a heavenly form, and be a fruit for men in the other life. (“Here understand the power of the Principle, out of which the apple and all things grow, will, in the renovation of the world, spring up again in paradise with the wonders.”)

[Aur. 21:40] But seeing you are made out of the seed of the earth (“Red earth is fire and water, conceived with or by the Word Fiat out of the matrix of the earth: when man imagined or set his desire into the earth he became earthly.”), and have set or put your body back again into your mother, therefore your body also is become a palpable, dead or mortal body, such as your mother is.
How Man’s hope stands in God.

[Aur. 21:41] Your body has the same hope which your mother the earth has, viz. that at the Last Judgment Day, in the power of the word, it will be set or put again into its first place.

[Aur. 21:42] But seeing your astral birth stands here on earth in the wrath, and qualifies, mixes or unites with the love in the word, (just as the fruit on the tree does, for the power of the fruit qualifies or unites with the word), therefore your hope stands in God. For the astral birth or geniture stands in love and wrath, and that, in this time, it cannot boast of, on account of the outermost birth or geniture in the flesh, which stands in death.

[Aur. 21:43] For the dead or mortal flesh has encompassed the astral birth, and man’s flesh is a dead carcass, while it is yet in the mother’s body or womb, and is encompassed with hell and God’s wrath.

[Aur. 21:44] But now the astral birth generates the animated soulish birth, viz. the third, which stands in the word, wherein the incorporated or compacted word lies hidden in its heaven. (“The Sulphur to the (production of the) soul is the first Principle in the eternal will-spirit, and come to life in the third Principle, and so lives between love and wrath, and hangs to both.”)

[Aur. 21:45] Now, since you have your reason, and are not like the apple on the tree, but are created an angel and the similitude or image of God, instead of the expelled devils, and know how you can with your astral birth, in the part of love, qualify or unite with the word of God, therefore you can, in the center of the word, set or put your animated or soulish birth into heaven, and you can with your soul, even with your living body in this dead or mortal palpability, rule with God in heaven.

[Aur. 21:46] For the word is in your heart, and qualifies or unites with the soul, as if it were one being; and if your soul stands in the love, then it also is one being. And, you may say, that according to your soul you sit in heaven, and live and reign with God. (“Understand, according to the spirit of the soul, with the image out of the animated or soulish fire.”)

[Aur. 21:47] For the soul, which apprehends the word, has an open gate in heaven, and can be prevented by nothing; neither does the Devil see the soul, because it is not in his country or dominions.

[Aur. 21:48] But seeing your astral birth stands with the one part in the wrath, and that the flesh through the wrath stands in death, thereupon the Devil, in the part of the wrath, sees continually even into your heart, and if you let him have any room or place there, then he tears out from the word that part of the astral birth which stands in the love.

[Aur. 21:49] Then your heart is a dark valley: And if you do not labor and work quickly again to the birth of the light, then he kindles the wrath-fire therein, and then shall your soul be spewed out from the word, and then it qualifies or unites with the wrath of God, and so afterwards you are a devil, and not an angel, and cannot, with your animated or soulish birth, reach the gates of heaven.

[Aur. 21:50] But if you fight and strive with the Devil, and keep the gate of love in your astral birth, and so depart from here as to the body, then your soul remains in the word quite hidden from the Devil, and reigns with God, even unto the day of the restitution of that which was lost.

[Aur. 21:51] But if you stand with your astral birth in the wrath, when you depart from here as to the body, and your soul be not comprehended in the word, then you can never reach the gates of heaven; but into what part you have sown your seed, that is, your soul, in that very part will your body also rise.
The Gate of the Power.

[Aur. 21:52] That soul and body will come together again at the Day of the Resurrection you may perceive here by the earth. For the Creator said, Let the earth bring forth grass and herbs, and trees bearing fruit, each according to its kind. Then each sprang up according to its kind, and grew. And as before the time of the wrath it had a heavenly body, so it got now an earthly one, answerable to its mother.

[Aur. 21:53] But it is to be considered how all was comprised in the word at the great tumult and uproar of the Devil, so that all sprang up in its own being according to its power, virtue and kind, as if it had never been destroyed, but Only altered.

[Aur. 21:54] Now if it was thus at that time, when there was such murdering and robbing, sure it will be much more so at the Last Judgment Day, when the earth shall be separated in the kindled wrath-fire, and will be living again or revived. Then, surely, it will be comprehended in the word of love, as it has in the same word here generated its fruit of grass, herbs and trees, as also all manner of mineral ores of silver and gold.

[Aur. 21:55] But seeing the astral birth of the earth stands in the love, and the outwards stands in death, therefore will each remain in its seat, and so life and death will sever themselves.

[Aur. 21:56] Where, now, would the soul of man rather be at the day of regeneration, than in its father? That is, in the body which has generated it?

[Aur. 21:57] But seeing the soul, all the while the body had been in death, remained hidden in the word, and seeing the same word also holds the earth in the astral birth in the love, therefore it [the soul] qualifies, mixes or unites through the word, all the time of its hiddenness and secrecy, also with its mother the body, according or as to the astral birth or geniture in the earth, and so body and soul in the word were never separated the one from the other, but live jointly and equally together in God.

[Aur. 21:58] And though indeed the bestial body must putrefy and rot, yet its power and virtue live, and in the meanwhile there grow out of its power, in its mother, fair, beautiful roses; blossoms and flowers; and though it were quite burnt up and consumed in the fire, yet its power and virtue stand in the four elements in the word, and the soul qualifies, mixes or unites therewith; for the soul is in heaven, and the same heaven is everywhere, even in the midst or center of the earth.

[Aur. 21:59] O, dear man, view yourself for a while in this looking-glass; you will find it more largely to be read of concerning the creation of man. This I set down here for this very cause, that you might the better understand the power of creation, and that you might the better conceive and fit yourself for this spirit, and so learn to understand its language.

The Open Gate of the Earth.

[Aur. 21:60] Now it might be asked, From or out of what matter or power and virtue, then, did the grass, herbs and trees spring forth? What manner of substance or condition or constitution has this kind of creature? The simple say, God made all things out of nothing. But he knows not that God; neither does he know what God is: for when he beholds the earth, together with the deep above the earth, he thinks truly all this is not God; or else he thinks God is not there. He always imagines that God dwells only above the azure heaven of the stars, and rules, as it were, with some spirit which goes forth from him into this world; and that his body is not present here upon the earth, nor in the earth.
[Aur. 21:61] Just such opinions and tenets I also have read in the books and writings of doctors (der Doctoren), and there are also very many opinions, disputations and controversies arisen about this very thing among the learned.

[Aur. 21:62] But seeing God, in his great love, opens to me the gate of his being, and remembers the Covenant which he has with man, therefore I will, according to my gifts, faithfully and earnestly unlock and set wide open all the gates of God, so far as God will give me leave.

[Aur. 21:63] It is not so to be understood as that I am sufficient enough in these things, but only so far as I am able to comprehend.

[Aur. 21:64] For the being of God is like a wheel, wherein many wheels are made one in another, upwards, downwards, crossways, and yet they continually turn, all of them together.

[Aur. 21:65] Which, indeed, when a man beholds the wheel, he highly marvels at it, and, in its turning, cannot at once learn to conceive and apprehend it: But the more he beholds the wheel, the more he learns its form or frame; and the more he learns, the greater longing he has to the wheel; for he continually sees somewhat that is more and more wonderful, so that a man can neither behold it, nor learn it enough.

[Aur. 21:66] Thus I also, what I do not enough describe in one place concerning this great Mystery, that you will find in another place; and what I cannot describe in this book, in regard of the largeness of the Mystery, and my incapacity, that you will find in the others following.

[Aur. 21:67] For this book is the first sprouting or vegetation of this twig, which springs or grows green in its mother, and is as a child that is learning to walk, and is not able to run apace at the first.

[Aur. 21:68] For though the spirit sees the wheel, and would fain comprehend its form or frame in every place, yet it cannot do it exactly enough, because of the turning of the wheel: But when the wheel comes about again, so that the spirit can again see the first apprehended or conceived form, then continually it learns more and more, and always delights in and loves the wheel, and longs after it still more and more.

How Sins are the cause that the Deity is hidden from us.

Now Observe:

[Aur. 21:69] The earth has just such qualities and qualifying or fountain spirits as the deep above the earth or as heaven has, and all of them together belong to one only body; and the whole or universal God is that one only body. But that you do not wholly and fully see and know him, sins are the cause thereof, with and by which you, in this great divine body, lie shut up in the dead or mortal flesh; and the power or virtue of the Deity is hidden from you, even as the marrow in the bones is hidden from the flesh.

[Aur. 21:70] But if you, in the spirit, break through the death of the flesh, then you see the hidden God. For as the marrow in the bones penetrates, presses or breaks through and gives virtue, power and strength to the flesh, and yet the flesh cannot comprehend or apprehend the marrow, but only the power and virtue thereof, so no more can you see the hidden Deity in your flesh, but you receive its power, and understand therein that God dwells in you.

[Aur. 21:71] For the dead or mortal flesh belongs not to the birth of life, and therefore cannot receive or conceive the life of the light as a propriety; but the life of the light in God rises up in the dead or mortal flesh, and generates to itself, from or out of the dead or mortal flesh, another heavenly and living body, which knows and understands the light.
[Aur. 21:72] For this body is but a husk, from which the new body grows (“The new body grows out of the heavenly substantiality in the Word, out of the flesh and blood of Christ, out of the mystery of the old body.”), as it is with a grain of wheat in the earth. The husk or shell will not rise again, no more than it does in the wheat, but will remain forever in death and in hell.

[Aur. 21:73] Therefore man carries about with him here upon earth, in his body, the Devil’s eternal dwelling-house. O you fair excellent goddess! May you not well prance and trick yourself therein, and in the meanwhile invite the Devil into the new birth for a guest, will it not profit you very much? Take heed that you do not generate a new devil who will remain in his own house.

[Aur. 21:74] Behold the mystery of the earth: as that generates or brings forth, so must you generate or bring forth. The earth is not that body which grows or sprouts forth, but it is the mother of that body; as also your flesh is not the spirit, but the flesh is the mother of the spirit.

[Aur. 21:75] But now in both of them, viz. in the earth and in your flesh, there is hidden the light of the clear Deity, and it breaks through, and generates to itself a body according to the kind of each body; for man according to his body, and for the earth according to its body; for as the mother is, so is the child also.

[Aur. 21:76] Man’s child is the soul, which is generated out of the astral birth from or out of the flesh; and the earth’s child is the grass, the herbs, the trees, silver, gold, and all mineral ores.

[Aur. 21:77] Now you ask, How then shall I do, that I may understand somewhat concerning the birth or geniture of the earth? Behold! The birth of the earth stands in its birth or geniture as the whole Deity does, and there is no difference at all, but only as to the corruption in the wrath, wherein comprehensibility or palpability stands; that only is the difference or distinction, and is the death between God and the earth.

[Aur. 21:78] You must know that all the seven spirits of God are in the earth, and generate as they do in heaven: For the earth is in God, and God never died; but the outermost birth or geniture is dead, in which the wrath rests, and is reserved for king Lucifer, to be a house of death and of darkness, and to be an eternal prison or dungeon.

Of the Seven Spirits of God, and of their Operation in the Earth.

[Aur. 21:79] The first is the astringent spirit, and that contracts or draws together in the astral birth of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits a mass or lump in the earth, through the kindling of the superior birth or geniture above the earth, and dries up that with its sharp coldness; just as it contracts or draws the water together and makes ice thereof, so also it contracts or draws together the water in the earth, and makes thereof a dry mass or lump.

[Aur. 21:80] Then next the bitter spirit, which exists in the fire-flash, is also in the matter or mass, and that cannot endure to be captivated or imprisoned in the dried exsiccated matter, but rubs itself against the astringent spirit in the dried mass or lump, so long till it kindles the fire; and so when that is done, then the bitter spirit is terrified, and gets its life.

Conceive this here aright.

[Aur. 21:81] In the earth you cannot trace nor find, besides plants and metals, anything but astringency, bitterness, and water: But the water now therein is sweet, opposite to the other two qualities: Also it is thin or transparent, and the other two are hard, rough and bitter, and always the one is against the other. Thereupon there is a perpetual struggling, fighting and wrestling, but in the struggling of these three the life does not yet stand; but they are a dark valley, and they are three things which can never endure one another, but there is an eternal struggling among them.

[Aur. 21:82]²²⁷

[Aur. 21:83] From this mobility takes its original; also God’s wrath, which rests in the hidden secrecy, takes its original from here; and so also the original of the Devil, of death and of hell, arises from here; as you may read thereof concerning the fall of the Devil.

The Depth in the Center of the Birth or Geniture.

[Aur. 21:84] Now when these three, viz. the astringency, the bitterness, and the sweetness, rub themselves one against another; then the astringent quality grows predominant, for it is the strongest, and forcibly attracts or draws the sweetness together; for the sweetness is meek and extensive on account of its suppleness, and must yield to be captivated or imprisoned.

[Aur. 21:85] So when that is done, then the bitterness is also together captivated or imprisoned in the body of the sweet water, and becomes also together dried up, and then the astringent, the sweet and the bitter are one in another, and struggle so strongly in the dried mass or lump till the mass be quite dry: For the astringent quality always contracts it together, and dries it more and more.

[Aur. 21:86] But when the sweet water can defend itself no longer, then anguish rises up in it; just as in man, when he is dying, when the spirit is departing from the body, and so the body yields itself captive as a prisoner to death; just so the water also yields itself captive as a prisoner.

[Aur. 21:87] And in this anxious rising up an anguishing heat is generated, whereby a sweat²²⁸ presses forth, as it does in a dying man; and that sweat qualifies, mixes or unites with the astringent and bitter qualities, for it is their son, which they have generated out of the sweet water, and which they had killed and brought to death.

[Aur. 21:88] Now when that is done, then the astringent and bitter qualities rejoice in their son, understand, in the sweat, and both of them give to it their power, virtue and life, and stuff it like a greedy gormandizing hog, so that it soon comes to grow full and swelled: For the astringent quality, and also the bitter, always draw the sap out of the earth, and stuff it into their young son.

[Aur. 21:89] But the body, which was first contracted or drawn together out of the sweet water, remains dead or mortal, and the sweat²²⁹ of the body, which qualifies, mixes or unites with the astringent and bitter qualities, has the house therein, where it spreads itself forth, grows gross, full²³⁰ and lusty or wanton.

[Aur. 21:90] But now the two qualities, viz. the astringent and the bitter, cannot leave their contention and opposition, or contrary will, but wrestle continually one with the other: The astringent is strong, and the bitter is swift.

[Aur. 21:91] So now, when the astringent grapples with the bitter, the bitter leaps aside, and takes the son’s sap along with it; and then the astringent everywhere presses hard after it, and would fain captivate it. Then the bitter rushes out from the body, and extends itself as far as it can.

[Aur. 21:92] But when the body begins to be too strait or narrow for it, that it can extend or stretch it no more, and that the contention is too great, then the bitter must yield itself captive. Yet, for all that, the astringent cannot kill the bitter, but only holds it captive, and so the strife in them is so great that the bitter breaks out of the body in strings\textsuperscript{231} like threads, and takes some of the son’s sap or body along with it. And this now is the vegetation or growing, and incorporating or embodying of a root in the earth.

[Aur. 21:93] Now you ask, How can God be in that birth or geniture? Behold! That is the birth or geniture of nature; and so, if in these three qualities, viz. the astringent, the bitter and the sweet, the wrath-fire were not kindled, then you would plainly see where God is.

[Aur. 21:94] But now the wrath-fire is in all three; for the astringent is much too cold, and contracts or draws the body too hard together; and the sweet is much too thick and dark, which the astringent soon catches, and holds it captive, and dries it too much; and then the bitter is too stinging, murderous and raging; and so they cannot be reconciled to agree.

[Aur. 21:95] Else if the astringent were not so much kindled in the cold fire, and the water were not so thick, also the bitter not so swelling, rising and murderous, then they might kindle the fire\textsuperscript{232} from where the light would exist, and from the light the love; and so out of the fire-flash the love would exist. Then you would see plainly whether there would not be a heavenly body there, wherein the light of God would shine.

[Aur. 21:96] But seeing the astringent is too cold, and dries the water too much, thereupon it captivates the hot fire in its coldness, and kills or destroys the body of the sweet water, and so the bitter captivates it, and dries it up.

[Aur. 21:97] So in this exsiccation or drying up, the unctuousness or fatness in the sweet water is killed or destroyed, in which the fire kindles itself, and so out of that unctuousity or fatness an astringent and bitter spirit comes to be. For when the unctuousness or fat in the sweet water dies, then it is turned into an anguishing sweat, in which the astringent and the bitter qualify, mix or unite.

[Aur. 21:98] The meaning is not that the water dies quite; no, that cannot be, but the astringent spirit takes captive in its cold fire the sweetness or the unctuousity and fatness of the water, and qualifies, mixes or unites therewith, and makes use thereof for its spirit: Its own spirit being wholly benumbed, and in death, therefore it makes use of the water for its life, and draws out the water’s unctuousity or fatness to itself, and bereaves the water of its power.

[Aur. 21:99] Then the water becomes an anguishing sweat, which stands between death and life, and so the fire of the heat cannot kindle itself: For the unctuousity or fatness is captivated in the cold fire, and so the whole body remains a dark valley, which stands in an anguishing birth or geniture, and cannot comprehend or reach the life. For the life which stands in the light cannot elevate itself in the hard, bitter and astringent body; for it is captivated in the cold fire, but not quite dead.

[Aur. 21:100] You must see that all this is really so. For example, take a root which is of a hot quality, put it in warm water, or take it into your mouth, and make it warm and supple or moist; then you will soon perceive its life, and active or operative quality: But so long as it is without or absent from the heat, it is captivated in death, and is cold, as any other root or piece of wood is.

[Aur. 21:101] Then you see that the body upon the root is dead also; for when the virtue is gone out of the root, then the body is but a dead carcass and can operate or effect nothing at all. And that is because the astringent spirit and the bitter have killed or destroyed the body of the water and attracted the fatness or unctuousity thereof to themselves; and thus they have drawn or sucked up the spirit thereof into the dead body.\textsuperscript{233}

[Aur. 21:102] Otherwise, if the sweet water could keep its unctuousity or fatness in its own power, and the astringent spirit and the bitter did rub themselves one with another very gently in the sweet water, then they would kindle the unctuousity or fatness in the sweet water, and then

The light would instantly generate itself in the water, and would enlighten the astringent and the bitter quality.

[Aur. 21:103] Whereupon they would get their true life, and would be satisfied by the light, and rejoice highly therein, and from that living joy love would arise, and then the tone would rise up in the fire-flash, through the rising up of the bitter quality in the astringent. If that were done there would be a heavenly fruit, just as it [the fruit] springs up in heaven.

[Aur. 21:104] But you are to know that the earth has all the qualifying or fountain spirits. For through the Devil’s kindling the spirits of life were incorporated or compacted together also in death, and, as it were, captivated, but not quite murdered.

[Aur. 21:105] The first three, viz. the astringent, the sweet, and the bitter, belong to the imaging or forming of the body; and therein stands the mobility, and the body or corporeity. And these now have the comprehensibility or palpability, and are the birth of the outermost nature.

[Aur. 21:106] The other three, viz. the heat, the love, and the tone, stand in the incomprehensibility, and are generated out of the first three; and this now is the inward birth, wherewith the Deity qualifies, mixes or unites.

[Aur. 21:107] If the first three were not congealed or benumbed in death they could kindle the heat, and then you would soon see a bright, shining, heavenly body, and you would see plainly where God is.

[Aur. 21:108] But seeing the first three qualities of the earth are congealed or benumbed in death, therefore they remain also a death, and cannot elevate their life into the light, but remain a dark valley, in which there stands God’s wrath, death, and hell, as also the eternal prison and source or torment of the Devil.

[Aur. 21:109] Not that these three qualities of the outermost birth, in which the wrath-fire stands, are rejected and reprobated of the innermost; no, but only the outward palpable body, and therein the outward hellish source, quality or torment.

[Aur. 21:110] Here you see once more how the kingdom of God and the kingdom of hell hang one to the other, as one body, and yet the one cannot comprehend the other. For the second birth, viz. the heat, light, love, and the sound or tone, is hidden in the outermost, and makes the outward moveable, so that the outward gathers itself together, and generates a body.

[Aur. 21:111] Though the body stands in the outward palpableness, yet it is formed according to the kind and manner of the inward birth, for in the inward birth or geniture stands the word, and the word is the sound or tone, which rises up in the light in the fire-flash through the bitter and astringent quality.

[Aur. 21:112] But seeing the sound of God’s word must rise up through the astringent bitter death, and generate a body in the half-dead water, thereupon that body is good, and also evil, dead and also living; for it must instantly attract the sap of fierceness and the body of death, and stand in such a body and power, as does the earth, its mother.

[Aur. 21:113] But that the life lies hid under and in the death of the earth, as also in the children of the earth, I will here demonstrate to you.

[Aur. 21:114] Behold! Man becomes weak, faint and sick, and if no remedy be used, then he soon falls into death. The sickness is caused either by some bitter and astringent herb which grows out of the earth, or else is caused by an evil, mortiferous deadly water, or by several mixtures of earthly herbs, or by some evil stinking and rank flesh or meat, and surfeit from there to loathing.
[Aur. 21:115] Now if a learned physician inquires of the sick person from what his disease is proceeded, and takes that which is the cause of the disease, whether it be flesh, water or herbs, and distils or burns it to powder, according as the matter is, and so burns away the outward poison thereof, which stands in death; then, in that distilled water, or burnt powder, the astral birth remains in its seat, where life and death wrestle one with the other, and are both capable of being raised up; for the dead body is gone.

[Aur. 21:116] So now, if you mingle with this water or powder some good treacle or the like, which holds captive the rising up and the power of the wrath in the astral birth, and give it to the sick party or patient in a little warm drink, be it beer or wine, then operates the innermost and hidden birth of the thing which, through its outermost dead birth, has caused the disease in man.

[Aur. 21:117] For when it is put into warm liquor, then the life in the thing becomes rising, and would fain raise itself, and be kindled in the light; but it cannot, because of the wrath, which is opposite to it in the astral birth or geniture.

[Aur. 21:118] But it can do thus much, viz. it can take away the disease from a man; for the astral life rises up through death, and takes away the power from the sting of death: And so when that has gotten the victory, then the party becomes sound again.

[Aur. 21:119] Thus you see how the power or virtue of the Word and eternal life in the earth, and in its children, lies hidden in the center in death, and springs up through death, incomprehensibly as to the death, and continually travails in anguish to the birth of the light, and yet cannot flourish or bud, till the death be severed from it.

[Aur. 21:120] But it has its life in its seat, and that cannot be taken from it, but death hangs to it in the outermost birth or geniture, as also the wrath in death; for the wrath is the life of death and of the Devil; and in the wrath stands also the corporeal being, or the bodies of the devils, but the dead birth or geniture is their eternal dwelling-house.

Why the Astral Birth of the Earth did begin a day sooner that the Astral Birth in the Deep above the Earth.

The Depth in the Circle of the Birth or Geniture.

[Aur. 21:121] Now one might ask, What manner of substance has it, or what is the condition thereof, that the astral birth of the earth did begin its qualifying, operating and generating one day sooner than the astral in the deep above the earth; seeing the fire in the deep above the earth is much sharper and easier to be kindled, than the fire in the earth; and seeing also that the earth must be kindled by the fire in the deep above the earth, else it can bear no fruit? Behold, you understanding spirit: The spirit speaks to you, and not to the dead spirit of the flesh: Open wide the door of your astral birth, and elevate that one part of the astral birth in the light, and let the other in the wrath stand still, and take heed also that your animated or soulish spirit do wholly unite with the light.

[Aur. 21:122] So when you stand in such a form, then you are as heaven and earth are, or as the whole Deity is with its births or genitures in this world.

[Aur. 21:123] But now if you are not thus, then you are blind herein, though you were the Wittiest and wisest doctor that ever could be found in the world.

[Aur. 21:124] But if you are thus, then raise up your spirit and see: through your astrological art, your deep sense and your measuring of circles you cannot apprehend it; it must be born IN YOU, else you get neither grace nor art.

Web: www.janelead.org Email: diane@janelead.org
[Aur. 21:125] If the eyes of your spirit are to stand open, then you must generate thus, else your comprehensibility is a foolish virgin, and it befalls you, as if a limner should offer to portray the Deity on a table, and tell you, It is made right, the Deity is just so.

[Aur. 21:126] Then the believer and the limner are both alike, both of them see nothing but wood and colors only, and the one, blind, leads the other: Surely you are not to fight there with beasts, but with gods.

Now Observe:

[Aur. 21:127] When the whole Deity in this world moved itself to the creation, then, not only the one part did move, and the other rest, but all stood jointly in the mobility, even the whole deep, so far as lord Lucifer was king, and so far as the place of his kingdom reached, and so far as the Salitter in the wrath-fire was kindled.

[Aur. 21:128] The motion of the three births lasted the length of six days and nights, wherein all the seven spirits of God stood in a full moving birth or geniture, as also the heart of the spirits; and the Salitter of the earth turned about in that while six times in the great wheel; which wheel is the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of God. At each turning about or diurnal revolution there was generated a several special work or production, according to the innate, instant qualifying or fountain spirits.

[Aur. 21:129] For the first qualifying or fountain spirit is the astringent, cold, sharp and hard birth or geniture, and that belongs to the first day; in the astral birth or geniture the astrologers call it the Saturnine, which was performed on the first day. For therein the hard, dry, sharp earth and stones came to be, and were incorporated or compacted together; moreover, then also was generated the strong firmament of heaven, and the heart of the seven spirits of God stood hidden in the hard sharpness.

[Aur. 21:130] Astrologers appropriate or attribute the second day to Sol or the sun, but it belongs to Jupiter, to speak astrologically; for on the second day the light brake forth out of the heart of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, through the hard quality of heaven, and caused a mitigation, or an allaying in the hard water of the heaven, and the light became shining in that meekness and allaying.

[Aur. 21:131] Then the meekness and the hard water separated themselves asunder, and the hardness remained in its hard place, as a hard death, and the meekness or softness penetrated through the hardness in the power of the light.

[Aur. 21:132] And this now is the water of life, which is generated in the light of God out of the hard death. And thus the light of God in the sweet water of heaven brake through the astringent and hard, dark death; and thus the heaven is made out of the midst or center of the water.

[Aur. 21:133] The hard firmament is the astringent quality, and the gentle, mild or meek firmament is the water, in which the light of life rises up, which is the clarity or bright light of the Son of God. In this manner or form also the knowledge, and the light of life, rises up in man, and the whole light of God in this world stands in such a form, birth, and rising up.

[Aur. 21:134] The third day is very rightly attributed to Mars, because Mars is a bitter, and a furious raging and stirring spirit. It the third revolution of the earth the bitter quality rubbed itself with the astringent.

From where Mobility existed.

[Aur. 21:135] Understand this Thing rightly. When the light in the sweet water did penetrate through the astringent spirit, then the fire-flash, terror or crack of the light, when it kindled itself in the water, rose up in the astringent and hard, dead quality, and made all stirring: from there existed the mobility.

[Aur. 21:136] Now I speak here not only of the heaven above the earth, but this stirring and birth or geniture was also in the earth, and everywhere.

[Aur. 21:137] But seeing the heavenly fruits, before the time of the wrath, sprang up only in this stirring of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, and vanished and passed away again by their stirring, and so changed or altered themselves, therefore on the third day of the birth or geniture of the creation they sprang up also through the stirring of the fire-flash in the astringent quality of the earth.

[Aur. 21:138] Though indeed the whole Deity is in the center of the earth, hidden, yet the earth could not, for all that, bring forth heavenly fruit, for the astringent quality had shut and barred the hard bolt of death upon it, and so the heart of the Deity, in all the births, remained hidden in its meek and light heaven.

[Aur. 21:139] For the outermost birth is nature, and that ought not to reach back into the heart of God, neither can it, but it is the body, in which the qualifying or fountain spirits generate themselves, and show forth and manifest their birth or geniture by their fruits.

[Aur. 21:140] Therefore on the third day the earth began to spring, just as the qualifying or fountain spirits stood in the crack of the word or fire-flash.
CHAPTER 22

Of the Birth or Geniture of the Stars, and Creation of the Fourth Day. Also the reason of the title Dawning or Morning Redness.

[Aur. 22:1] HERE now is begun the describing of the astral birth. It ought well to be observed what the first title of this book means, which is thus expressed: The Day-Spring or Dawning in the East, or Morning-Redness in the Rising. For here will a very simple man be able to see and comprehend or apprehend the being of God.

[Aur. 22:2] The Reader should not make himself blind through his unbelief and dull apprehension; for here I bring in the whole or total nature, with all her children, for a witness and a demonstration. If you are rational, then look round about you, and view yourself; also consider yourself aright, and then you will soon find from or out of what spirit I write.

[Aur. 22:3] For my part, I will obediently perform the command of the spirit, only, have you a care, and suffer not yourself to be shut out by an open door; for here the gates of knowledge stand open to you.

[Aur. 22:4] Though the spirit will indeed go against the current of some astrologers, that is no great matter to me, for I am bound to obey God rather than men; men are blind in or concerning the spirit, and if they will not see, then they may remain blind still.

Now Observe:

[Aur. 22:5] Now when upon the third day the fire-flash rose up out of the light, which was shining in the sweet water, which flash is the bitter quality which generates itself out of the kindled terror or crack of fire in the water:

[Aur. 22:6] Then the whole nature of this world became springing, boiling and moving in the earth, as well as above the earth, and everywhere, and began to generate itself again in all things.

[Aur. 22:7] Out of the earth sprang up grass, herbs and trees; and in the earth, silver, gold, and all manner of ores came to be; and in the deep above the earth sprang up the wonderful forming of power and virtue.

[Aur. 22:8] But that you may understand what manner of substance and condition all these things and births or genitures have, I will describe all in order one after another, that you may rightly understand the ground of this Mystery. I will treat,

1. Of the earth.
2. Of the deep above the earth.
3. Of the incorporating or compacting of the bodies of the stars.
4. Of the seven chief qualities of the planets, and of their heart, which is the sun.
5. Of the four elements.
6. Of the outward comprehensible or palpable birth or geniture, which exists out of this whole regimen or dominion.
7. Of the wonderful proportion and fitness or dexterity of the whole wheel of nature.
[Aur. 22:9] Before this looking-glass I will now invite all lovers of the holy and highly-to-be-esteemed arts of philosophy, astrology, and theology, wherein I will lay open the root and ground of them.

[Aur. 22:10] Though I have not studied nor learned their arts, neither do I know how to go about to measure their circles; I take no great care about that. However, they will have so much to learn from here, that many will not comprehend the ground thereof all the days of their lives.

[Aur. 22:11] I have no use for their tables, formula or schemes, rules and ways, for I have not learned from them, but I have another teacher or schoolmaster, which is the whole or total NATURE.

[Aur. 22:12] From that whole nature, together with its innate, instant birth or geniture, have I studied and learned my philosophy, astrology, and theology, and not from men, or by men.

[Aur. 22:13] But seeing men are gods, and have the knowledge of God the only Father, from whom they are proceeded or descended, and in whom they live, therefore I despise not the canons, rules and formula of their philosophy, astrology, and theology: For I find, that for the most part they [the philosophers, etc.] stand upon a right ground, and I will diligently endeavour to go according to their rules and formula.

[Aur. 22:14] For I must necessarily say that their scheme of formulation is my master; from it I have the first elements of my knowledge, and it is not my purpose to controvert or amend their formula (for I cannot do it, neither have I learned them), but rather leave them where they are.

[Aur. 22:15] I will not, however, build upon their ground, but as a laborious, careful servant I will dig away the earth from the root, that thereby men may see the whole tree, with its root, stock, branches, twigs and fruits; and they may also see that my writing is no new thing, but that their philosophy and my philosophy are one body, one tree, bearing one and the same sort of fruit.

[Aur. 22:16] Neither have I any command to bring in complaints against them, to condemn them for anything, except for their wickedness and abominations, as pride, covetousness, envy and wrath, against which the spirit of nature complains very exceedingly, and not I: For what can I do, that am poor dust and ashes, also very weak, simple, and altogether unable?

Why the Spirit of Nature itself will open the Door.

[Aur. 22:17] Only the spirit shows thus much: that to them is delivered and entrusted the weighty talent, and the key; and they are drowned in the pleasures of the flesh, and have buried their weighty talent in the earth, and have lost the key in their proud drunkenness.

[Aur. 22:18] The spirit has a long time waited on them, and importuned them that they would once open the door, for the clear day is at hand; yet they walk up and down in their drunkenness, seeking for the key, when they have it about them, though they know it not; and so they go up and down in their proud and covetous drunkenness, always seeking about like the country man for his horse, who all the while he went seeking for him was riding upon the back of that very horse he looked for.

[Aur. 22:19] Thereupon, says the spirit of nature, seeing they will not awake from sleep and open the door, I will therefore do it myself.

[Aur. 22:20] What could I, poor, simple layman, teach or write of their high art, if it were not given to me by the spirit of nature, in whom I live and am? I am in the condition or state of a vulgar or layman, and have no salary, wages or pay for this writing: Should I, then, oppose the spirit, that he should not begin to open where, and in whom, he pleases? I am not the door, but an ordinary wooden bolt upon it: Now if the spirit should pluck me out from there, and fling me into the fire, could I hinder it?

[Aur. 22:21] But if I should be an unprofitable bolt, which would stubbornly resist to be pulled out, and would bolt up and hinder the spirit in the opening, would not the spirit be angry with me, tear me off, and cast me away, and provide a more profitable and a fitter bolt? Then should I lie on the ground and be trampled underfoot, whereas formerly I made so fair a show upon the door: What would be the use of the bolt, except as firewood?

[Aur. 22:22] Behold! I tell you a Mystery: so soon as the door is set wide open to its angle, all useless, fast-nailed, sticking bolts or bars will be cast away, for the door will never be shut anymore at all, but stands open, and then the four winds will go in and out at it.

[Aur. 22:23] But the sorcerer sits in the way, and will make many so blind that they will not see the door; and then they return home and say, There is no door at all, it is a mere fiction. And so they go there no more.

[Aur. 22:24] Thus men suffer themselves easily to be turned away, and so live in their drunkenness.

[Aur. 22:25] Now when this is done, then the spirit which has opened the gates is angry, because none will go OUT and IN at its doors anymore, and then it flings the door-posts into the abyss, and then there is no more time at all. Those that are within, remain within; and those that are without, remain without. AMEN.

What the Stars are.

[Aur. 22:26] Now it may be asked, What are the stars? Moses writes concerning them thus: And God said; Let there be lights in the firmament of heaven, to divide or distinguish the day from the night; and let them give signs and seasons, days and years; and let them be lights in the firmament of heaven to shine or give light upon the earth; and it was so done. And God made two great lights; the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night; as also the stars. And God set them in the firmament of the heaven, to shine or give light upon the earth; and to rule day and night; also to divide or distinguish the light from the darkness; and God saw that it was good, so out of the evening and the morning the fourth day came to be.

[Aur. 22:27] This description shows sufficiently that the dear man Moses was not the original author thereof; for the first writer did not know either the true God, or the stars, what they were. It is very likely that the creation, before the flood, was not described in writing, but was kept as a dark word in men’s memories, and so delivered from one generation to another, till after the flood, and till people began to lead epicurean lives in all voluptuousness.

[Aur. 22:28] Then the holy patriarchs, when they saw that, described the creation, that it should not be quite forgotten, and that the swinish, epicurean world might have a looking-glass in the creation, wherein they might see that there is a God, and that this being of the world did not so stand from eternity; whereby they might have a glass to look into, and so fear the hidden God.

[Aur. 22:29] This was the chief teaching and doctrine of the patriarchs, both before and after the flood, [namely] to direct men [i.e. men’s attention] to the creation, which [object] the whole book of Job also drives at.

[Aur. 22:30] After these patriarchs came the wise Heathen, who went somewhat deeper into the knowledge of nature. And I must necessarily say according to the ground of the truth, that they, in their philosophy and knowledge, did come even before the face or countenance of God, and yet could neither see nor know him.

[Aur. 22:31] Man was so altogether dead in death, and so bolted up in the outermost birth or geniture in the dead palpability; or else they could have thought, that in this palpability there must necessarily be a divine power hidden in the center, which had so created this palpability, and moreover preserves, upholds and rules the same.

[Aur. 22:32] Indeed they honored, prayed to, or worshipped the sun and stars for gods, but knew not how these were created or came to be, nor out of what they came to be: For they might well have thought that that which proceeded from somewhat, and that that which created this, must necessarily be older and higher or greater than all the stars.

[Aur. 22:33] Besides, they had the stones and the earth for an example, to show that these must proceed from somewhat, as also men, and all the creatures upon the earth. For all give testimony that there must necessarily be in these things a mightier and greater power at hand, which had so created all these things, in that manner as they are.

[Aur. 22:34] But, indeed, why should I write much of the blindness of the Heathen; are not our doctors, in their crowned ornaments of hoods and cornered caps, as blind as they? Our doctors know indeed that there is a God, who has created all this, but they know not where that God is, nor how he is.

[Aur. 22:35] When they would write of God, then they seek for him without, and absent from, this world, above only, in a kind of heaven, as if he were some image that may be likened to somewhat. Indeed they grant that that God rules all in this world with a spirit; but his corporeal propriety or habitation they will needs have in a certain heaven aloft, many thousand miles off.

Sixteen Questions asked of the Doctors.

[Aur. 22:36] Come on you doctors! If you are in the right, then give answer to the spirit: I will ask you a few questions:

1. What do you think stood in the place of this world before the time of the world? Or,

2. Out of what do you think the earth and stars came to be? Or,

3. What do you think there is in the deep above the earth? Or,

4. From where did the deep exist? Or,

5. How do you think man is the image of God, wherein God dwells? Or,

6. What do you suppose God’s wrath to be? Or,

7. What is that in man which displeases God so much, that he torments and afflicts man so, seeing he has created him? And,

8. That he imputes sin to man, and condemns him to eternal punishment?

9. Why has he created that wherein or wherewith man commits sin? Surely that thing must be far worse.

10. Wherefore, and out of what, is that come to be? Or,

11. What is the cause or beginning, or the birth or geniture of God’s fierce wrath, out of or from which hell and the Devil are come to be? Or,

12. How comes it that all the creatures in this world do bite, scratch, strike, beat and worry one another, and yet sin is imputed to man alone? Or,

13. Out of what are poisonous and venomous beasts and worms and all manner of vermin come to be? Or,
14. Out of what are the holy angels come to be? And,

15. What is the soul of man? And lastly,

16. What is the great God himself?

[Aur. 22:37] Give your direct and fundamental answer to all this, and demonstrate what you say, and leave off your verbal contentions. Now if you can demonstrate out of all your books and writings,

1. That you know the true and only God; and,

2. How he is in love and wrath: Also,

3. What that God is. And

4. If you can demonstrate that God is not in the stars, elements, earth, men, beasts, worms, leaves, herbs and grass, nor in heaven and earth; also that all this is not God himself, and that my spirit is false and wicked; then I will be the first that will burn my book in the fire, and recall and recant all whatsoever I have written, and will accurse it, and in all obedience willingly submit myself to be instructed by you.

[Aur. 22:38] I do not say that I cannot err at all. For there are some things which are not sufficiently explained, but are described, as it were, from a glimpse of the great God, when the wheel of nature whirled about too swiftly, so that man, with his half-dead and dull capacity or apprehension, cannot sufficiently comprehend it; though what you find not sufficiently explained in one place you will find it done in another; if not in this book, then in the others.

[Aur. 22:39] Now you will say, It does not become me to ask such questions; for the Deity is a Mystery, which no man can search into. Listen: If it does not become me to ask, then it does not become you to judge me. Do you boast in the knowledge of the light, and are a leader of the blind, and yet are blind yourself? How will you show the way to the blind? In your blindness must you not both fall?

[Aur. 22:40] But you will say, We are not blind; for we well-see the way of the light. Why then do you contend or dispute about the way of the light, if none can see it rightly? You teach others the way; and you are always seeking after it yourselves, and so you grope in the dark, and discern it not. Or do you suppose that it is sin for any man to ask after the way?

[Aur. 22:41] O you blind men! Leave off your contentions, and shed not innocent blood; also do not lay waste countries and cities, to fulfill the Devil’s will, but put on the helmet of peace, gird yourselves with love one to another, and practice meekness. Leave off pride and covetousness, grudge not the different forms of one another, also suffer not the wrath-fire to kindle in you; but live in meekness, chastity, friendliness and purity, and then you are and live ALL in God.

[Aur. 22:42] For you need not ask, Where is God? Hear me, you blind man; you live in God, and God is in you, and if you live holily, then therein you yourself are God. For, wheresoever you look, there, is God.

[Aur. 22:43] When you behold the deep between the stars and the earth, can you say, ‘That is not God, or, There God is not?’ O, you miserable corrupt man! be instructed; for in the deep above the earth, where you see and know nothing, and say there is nothing, yet even there is the light-holy God in his Trinity, and he is generating there, as well as in the high heaven aloft above this world.

[Aur. 22:44] Or do you think that in or at the time of the creation of this world he departed and went away from his seat wherein he did sit from eternity? O no; that cannot be, for though he would himself do so, he cannot do it, for he himself is All: As little as a member of the body can be rent off from itself, so little also can God be divided, rent or separated from being everywhere.

[Aur. 22:45] But that there are so many formings, figurings or framings in him, is caused by his eternal birth or geniture, which first is threefold, and out of or from that Trinity or Ternary it generates itself infinitely, immeasurably or inconceivably.

How this work is the Holy Ghost’s dear Revelation.

[Aur. 22:46] Of these births or genitures I will here write, and show to the children of the last world what God is; not out of any boasting or pride, thereby to disgrace or reproach anybody! No; the spirit will instruct you, meekly and friendly, as a father does his children; for the work is not from my fleshly reason, but the Holy Ghost’s dear revelation, or breaking through in the flesh.

[Aur. 22:47] In my own faculties or powers I am as blind a man as ever was, and am able to do nothing; but in the spirit of God my innate spirit sees through ALL, though not always with long stay or continuance; but only when the spirit of God’s love breaks through my spirit, then is the animated or soulish birth or geniture and the Deity one being, one comprehensibility, and one light.

[Aur. 22:48] Am I alone only so? No, but all men are so, be they Christians, Jews, Turks, or Heathen. In whomsoever love and meekness is, in them is also the light of God. If you say, No, this is not so; consider:

[Aur. 22:49] Do not the Turks, Jews, and Heathen live in the same body or corporeity wherein you live, and do they not make use of that same power and virtue of body which you use; moreover, they have even the same body which you have, and the same God which is your God also?

[Aur. 22:50] But you will say, They know him not; also they honor him not. Yes, dear man, now boast yourself that you have hit it well! Indeed you, above others, know God! Behold, you blind man, wherever love rises up in meekness, there the heart of God rises up. For the heart of God is generated in the meek water of the kindled light, be it in man, or anywhere else without man; it is everywhere generated in the center, between the outermost and the innermost birth or geniture.

[Aur. 22:51] Whatsoever you do but look upon, there, is God, but in this world the comprehensibility stands in the wrath, which the Devil has kindled; and in the hidden kernel, in the midst or center of the wrath, the light or heart of God is generated, incomprehensibly as to the wrath; and so each of them remains in its seat.

[Aur. 22:52] Yet, for all that, I do no way approve or excuse the unbelief of the Jews, Turks, and Heathen, nor their stiff-necked stubbornness, nor their fierce wrath, furious malice and hatred against the Christians. No; these things are mere snares of the Devil, whereby he allures men to pride, covetousness, envy and hatred, that he may kindle in them the hellish fire: Neither can I say that these four sons of the Devil are not domineering in Christendom, and, indeed, in every man.

[Aur. 22:53] Now you say, What then is the difference between Christians, Jews, Turks, and Heathen? Here the spirit opens both door and gate; if you will not see, then be blind.

[Aur. 22:54] I. The first difference, which God has always held and maintained for all those who know what God is, and how they should serve him, is that they should be able by their knowledge to press through the wrath into God’s love, and overcome the Devil: But if they do it not, then they are no better than those that know it not.
But if he that knows not the way presses through the wrath into the love, then is he like the man who pressed through by his knowledge. But those that persevere in the wrath, and wholly kindle it in themselves, they are all alike, one and other, be they Christians, Jews, Turks, or Heathen.

Or what do you suppose it is, wherewith man can serve God? If you will dissemble with God, and adorn or magnify your birth, then I suppose you to be a very fine angel indeed! He that has love in his heart, and leads a merciful, meek, and lowly-minded life, and fights against malice and hatred, and presses through the wrath of God into the light, he lives with God, and is one spirit with God.

For God needs no other service, but that his creature, which is in his body, do not slide back from him, but be holy, as he is.

Therefore also God gave the Law to the Jews, that they should diligently study and endeavour after meek holiness and love, that thereby all the world might have them for their looking-glass or mirror. But when the Jews grew proud, and boasted in their birth, instead of entering into love, they turned the law of love into sharpness of wrath; then God removed their candlestick, and went to the Heathen.

II. Secondly, There is this difference between the Christians, Jews, Turks, and Heathen: the Christians know the Tree of Life, which is CHRISTUS, CHRIST, who is the Prince of our heaven and of this world, and rules in all births or genitures as a King in God his Father, and men are his members.

Now Christians know how they can, by the power of this Tree, press out from their death, through his death, to him into his life, and reign and live with him, wherein they also, with their pressing through with their new birth out from this dead body, can be with him in heaven.

And though the dead body is in the midst or center of hell among all the devils, yet, for all that, the new man reigns with God in heaven, and the Tree of Life is to them a strong gate, through which they do enter into life: But of this you will find more largely in its proper place.

Now Observe:

Moses writes, that God said, Let there be lights in the firmament of heaven, which should give a light to the earth, and divide or distinguish day and night; also make years and times or seasons.

This description shows that the first writer did not know what the stars are, though he was capable of understanding the right or law of God, and has taken hold on the Deity at the heart, and looked upon or had respect to the heart, to consider what the heart and kernel of this creation is; though the spirit kept the astral and outermost dead birth or geniture hidden from him, and did only drive him in faith to the heart of the Deity.

Which is also the principal point most necessary for man: For when he lays hold on true faith, then he presses through the wrath of God, through death into life, and reigns with God.

But seeing men now, at the end of this time, do listen and long very much after the root of the tree, through which nature shows that the time of the discovery of the tree is at hand, therefore the spirit will show it to them. And the whole Deity will reveal itself, which is the Day-spring, Dawning, or Morning-redness, and the breaking-forth of the great day of God, in which whatsoever is generated from death to the regeneration of life shall be restored and rise again.
Behold, when God said, let there be light, then the light in the powers of nature, or the seven spirits of God, rose up, and the firmament of heaven, which stands in the Word, in the heart of the water, between the astral and the outermost birth or geniture, was closed or shut up by or with the Word and heart of the water, and the astral birth is the place of the parting-mark or limit, which stands half in heaven and half in the wrath.

For from or out of that half part of the wrath the dead birth generates itself continually, and out of the other half part, which reaches with its innermost degree even into the innermost heart and light of God, the life generates itself now continually through death, and yet the astral birth or geniture is not two bodies, but one body.

But when, in these two days, the creation of heaven and of earth was completed, and the heaven was made in the heart of the water, for a difference or distinction between the light of God and the wrath of God, then, on the third day, through the terror or crack of the fire-flash, which rose up in the heart of the water, and presses through death, incomprehensibly as to death, there sprang up all manner of ideas, forms and figures, as was done before the time of the kindled wrath.

But seeing the water, which is the spirit of the astral life, stood in the midst or center of wrath, and also in death, thereupon also every body formed itself as was the birth or geniture to life and mobility.

Of the Earth.

But now the earth was the Salitter, which was cast up out of the innermost birth and stood in death: But when the fire-flash, through the word, rose up in the water, then it was a terror or crack, from which existed the mobility in death; and that mobility, in all the seven spirits, is now the astral birth or geniture.

The Depth. Understand this aright.

Now when, on the third day, the fire-flash in the water of death had kindled itself, then the life pressed forth quite through the dead body of the water and of the earth.

But yet the dead water and earth comprehend no more than the flash or terror or crack of the fire, through which their mobility exists: But the light that rises up very softly, gently or meekly in the fire-flash neither the earth nor the dead water can comprehend.

But it retains its seat in the kernel, which is the unctuosity or fatness, or the water of life, or the heaven; for it is the body of life, which the death cannot comprehend, and yet it rises up in the death.

Neither can the wrath take hold of it or apprehend it, but the wrath remains in the terror or crack of the fire-flash, and makes the mobility in the dead body of the earth and the water.

But the light presses in very gently after, and forms the birth, which birth, through the terror or crack of the fire-flash, has gotten its [the birth’s] compacted body.

Of the Growths or Vegetables of the Earth.

When now the wrathful fire-flash awakened, and roused up the spirits of nature, which stand in death in the earth, and made them moveable by its fierce terror or crack, then the spirits began, according to their peculiar divine right, to generate themselves, as they had done from eternity, and form, figure or frame a body together, according to the innate, instant qualities of that place.
[Aur. 22:77] Now, that kind of Salitter which, in the time of the kindling of the wrath, did become torpid in death, as it did qualify or operate at that time, in the innate, instant life of the seven spirits of God, that also did rise again in the time of the regeneration in the fire-flash, and is not become any new thing, but only another form of the body, which stands in the comprehensibility or palpability in death.

[Aur. 22:78] But now the Salitter of the earth and of the water is no more able to change or alter itself in its dead being, and show forth itself infinitely, as it did in the heavenly place or seat; but when the qualifying or fountain spirits form the body, then it rises up in the power and virtue of the light.

[Aur. 22:79] And the life of the light breaks through the death, and generates to it another body out of death, which is not conformable to, or of the condition of, the water and the dead earth; also it does not get their taste and smell; but the power of the light presses through, and tempers or mixes itself with the power of the earth, and takes from death its sting, and from the wrath its poisonous, venomous power, and presses forth up together in the midst or center of the body, in the growth or vegetation, as a heart thereof.

[Aur. 22:80] And herein sticks now the kernel of the Deity in the center in its heaven, which stands hidden in the water of life, if you can now apprehend or lay hold of it.

Of the Metals in the Earth

[Aur. 22:81] The metals have the same substance, condition and birth or geniture as the vegetables upon the earth. For the metals or mineral ores, at the time of the kindling of the wrath in the innate, instant wheel of the seventh nature-spirit, stood in the fabric, work or operation of the love, wherein the meek beneficence or well-doing generates itself behind the fire-flash; wherein the holy heaven stands, which in this birth or geniture, when the love is predominant, presents or shows forth itself in such a gracious, amiable and blessed clarity or brightness, and in such beauteous colors, like gold, silver and precious stones.

[Aur. 22:82] But silver and gold in the dead palpability or tangibility are but as a dark stone, in comparison with the root of the heavenly generating; but I set it down here only that you may know from where it has its original.

[Aur. 22:83] But seeing it has been the most excellent rising up and generating in the holy heavenly nature, therefore also it is loved by man above all other things in this world. For nature has indeed written in man’s heart that it is better than other stones and earth; but nature could not reveal or manifest to him the ground thereof, from where it is come or proceeded, whereby now you may observe the Day-spring or Morning-redness.

[Aur. 22:84] There are many several sorts of mineral ores, according as the Salitter in nature’s heaven was predominant at its rising up in the light of love: For every qualifying or radical spirit in the heavenly nature contains the property or kind of all the qualifying or fountain spirits, for it is ever infected or affected with the other, from where the life and the unsearchable birth or geniture of the Deity exists: But yet it is predominant as to its own power, and that is its own body, from where it has the name,

[Aur. 22:85] But now every qualifying or fountain spirit has the property of the whole or total nature, and its fabric or work, at the time of the kindling of the wrath, was together also incorporated in death; and out of every spirit’s fabric or work, earth, stones, mineral ores, and water came to be.

[Aur. 22:86] There also in the earth there are found, according to the quality of each spirit, mineral ores, stones, water and earth; and therefore it is that the earth is of so many various qualities, all as each qualifying or fountain spirit, with its innate, instant birth or geniture, was at the time of the kindling.

[Aur. 22:87] Nature has likewise manifested or revealed so much to man, that he knows how he may melt away the strange or heterogeneous matter from every qualifying or fountain spirit’s strange infected innate birth or geniture; whereby that qualifying or fountain spirit might remain chief in its own primacy.

[Aur. 22:88] You have an example of this in gold, and in silver, which you cannot make to be pure or fine gold or silver, unless it be melted seven times in the fire. But when that is done, then it remains in the middle or central seat in the heart of nature, which is the water, sitting in its own quality and color.

[Aur. 22:89] I. First, the astringent quality, which holds the SalIter captive in the hard death, must be melted away, which is the gross stony dross.

[Aur. 22:90] II. Then secondly, the astringent death of the water is to be separated, from which proceeds a poisonous venomous water of separation, or aqua fortis, which stands in the rising up of the fire-flash in death, and which is the evil, malignant, even the very worst, source of all in death, even the astringent and bitter death itself; for this is the place where the life, which exists in the sweet water, died in death: And that separates itself now in the second melting.

[Aur. 22:91] III. Thirdly, the bitter quality, which exists in the kindling of the water in the fire-flash, is melted away, for that is a rager, raver, tyrant and destroyer. Also no silver or gold can subsist, if that be not killed or mortified; for it makes all dry and brittle, and presents or shows forth itself in several colors; for it rides through all spirits, assuming the colors of all spirits.

[Aur. 22:92] IV. Fourthly, the fire-spirit, which stands in the horrible anguish and pangs of life, must be also melted away, for it is a continued father of the wrath, and out of or from that is generated the hellish woe.

[Aur. 22:93] Now when the wrath of these four spirits is killed, then the mineral ore SalIter stands in the water, like a tough matter, and looks like that spirit which is predominant in the mineral ore; and the light which stands in the fire colors it according to its own quality, be it silver or gold.

[Aur. 22:94] And now this matter in the fourth melting looks like silver or gold, but it is not yet fixed, nor is it tough or malleable and pure enough; its body indeed is subsistent, but not the spirit.

[Aur. 22:95] V. Now when it is melted a fifth time, then the love-spirit rises up in the water through the light, and makes the dead body living again, so that the matter, which remained in the first four melttings, gets power or strength again, which was the proper own of that qualifying or fountain spirit which was predominant in this mineral ore.

[Aur. 22:96] VI. Now when it is melted the sixth time, then it grows somewhat harder, and then the life, which is risen up in the love, moves and stirs itself. From this stirring exists the tone in the hardness, and the mineral ore gets a clear sound, for the hard and dead beating or noise of the bitter fiery matter is gone away.

[Aur. 22:97] In this sixth melting I hold to be the greatest danger for chemists about the preparing of their silver and gold. For there belongs to it, and is required for it, a very subtle fire, and it may soon be burnt or made dead or deaf; and it becomes very dim or blind if the fire be too cold.
[Aur. 22:98] For it must be a middle or mild fire; to keep the spirit in the heart from rising it must be gently simmering, then it gets a very sweet and meek ringing sound, and continually rejoices, as if it would now be kindled again in the light of God.

[Aur. 22:99] But if the fire be too hot in the fifth and sixth meltings, then the new life, which has generated itself in the love in the rising up of the light’s power out of the water, is kindled again in the fierceness in the wrath-fire, and the mineral ore becomes a burnt scum and dross, and the alchemist has dirt instead of gold.

[Aur. 22:100] VII. Now when it is melted the seventh time, then there belongs to, and is required for, the process, a yet more subtle fire, for therein the life rises up and rejoices in the love, and will show forth itself in infinity, as it has done in heaven before the time of the wrath.

[Aur. 22:101] And in this motion it grows unctuous or fat, and luscious or luxuriant; it increases and spreads itself, and the highest depth generates itself very joyfully out of or from the heart of the spirit, just as if it would begin an angelical triumph, and present or show forth itself infinitely in divine power and form, according to the right of the Deity: and thereby the body gets its greatest strength and power, and the body colors or tinctures itself with the highest degree, and gets its true beauty, excellency and virtue.

[Aur. 22:102] And now, when it is almost made, then it has its true virtue and color, and there is nothing wanting except in this, that the spirit cannot elevate itself with its body into the light, but must remain to be a dead stone; and though indeed it be of greater virtue than other stones, yet the body remains in death.

[Aur. 22:103] And this now is the earthly god of blind men, which they love and honor, and leave the living God, who stands hidden in the center, sitting in his seat. For the dead flesh comprehends only a dead god, and longs also only after such a dead god. But it is such a god as has thrown many men headlong into hell.

[Aur. 22:104] Do not take me for an alchemist, for I write only in the knowledge of the spirit, and not from experience. Though indeed I could here show something else, viz. in how many days, and in what hours, these things must be prepared; for gold cannot be made in one day, but a whole month is requisite for it.

[Aur. 22:105] But it is not my purpose to make any trial at all of it, because I know not how to manage the fire; neither do I know the colors or tinctures of the qualifying or fountain spirits in their outermost birth or geniture, which are two great defects; but I know them according to (another or) the regenerate man, which stands not in the palpability.

[Aur. 22:106] At the description of the SUN you will find more and deeper things concerning it: My intention is only to describe the whole or total Deity, as far as I am capable in my weakness to apprehend [it], viz. how that is, in love and in wrath, and how it does generate itself now at present in this world. You will find more concerning jewels and precious stones at the description of the seven planets.

Of the Deep above the Earth.

[Aur. 23:1] WHEN man beholds the deep above the earth he sees nothing but stars, and clouds of water, and then he thinks, Sure there must be another place, where the Deity presents or shows forth itself, together with the heavenly and angelical government: man will needs have the deep, together with its regimen or dominion, severed from the Deity; for there he sees nothing but stars; and the regimen or dominion between, is fire, air, and water.

[Aur. 23:2] Then presently he thinks, God has made this thus, out of or from his predestinate purpose, out of nothing: How then can God be in this being? Or, how could that be God himself? He continually imagines that this is only a house, wherein God dwells and rules by his spirit. God cannot be such a God, whose being consists in the power of this government or dominion.

[Aur. 23:3] Many will dare to say, What manner of God would that be, whose body, being, and power or virtue, stands or consists in fire, air, water and earth?

[Aur. 23:4] Behold! You inapprehensive man, I will show you the true ground of the Deity. If this whole or universal being be not God, then you are not God’s image. If he be any other or strange God, then you have no part in him: For you are created out of this God, and live in this very God, and this very God continually gives you power or virtue, and blessing, also meat and drink, out of himself; also all your knowledge stands in this God, and when you die, then you are buried in this God.

[Aur. 23:5] Now, if there be any other or strange God, without and besides this God, who then shall make you living again out of this God, in whom you shall be when you are departed and turned to dust? How shall that strange God, out of whom you are not created, and in whom you did never live, bring your body and spirit together again?

[Aur. 23:6] Now if you are of any other matter than God himself, how then can you be his child? Or how can the man and king Christ be God’s bodily or corporeal Son, whom God has generated or begotten out of his heart?

[Aur. 23:7] Now, if his Deity be another being, substance or thing than his body, then there must be a twofold Deity in him; his body would be of or from the god of this world, and his heart would be of or from the unknown God.

[Aur. 23:8] O, you child of man! Open the eyes of your spirit, for I will here show you the right and real proper gate of the Deity, as indeed that very one only God will have it.

[Aur. 23:9] Behold! That is the true one only God, out of whom you are created, and in whom you live; and when you behold the deep, and the stars, and the earth, then you behold your God, and in that same you live, and also are, or have your being therein; and that same God also governs or rules you, and also out of or from that same God you have your senses, and you are a creature out of or from him and in him; else you had been nothing, or would never have been.

[Aur. 23:10] Now perhaps you will say that I write in a heathenish manner. Listen and behold! Observe the distinct understanding, how all this is so; for I write not heathenishly or barbarously, but philosophically; neither am I a Heathen, but I have the deep and true knowledge of the one only great God, who is ALL.

[Aur. 23:11] When you behold the deep, the stars, the elements, and the earth, then you comprehend not with your eyes the bright and clear Deity, though indeed it is there and in them; but you see and comprehend with your eyes, first death, and then the wrath of God and the hellish fire.

[Aur. 23:12] But if you raise your thoughts, and consider where God is, then you apprehend the astral birth or geniture, where love and wrath move one against the other. But when you draw up the faith in God, who rules in holiness in this government or dominion, then you break through heaven, and apprehend or lay hold on God at his holy heart.

[Aur. 23:13] Now when this is done, then you are as the whole or total God, who himself is heaven, earth, stars, and the elements, and have also such a regimen or dominion in you, and are also such a person, as the whole God in the place of this world.

Now you say, How shall I understand this? For the kingdom of God and the kingdom of hell and of the Devil are distinct one from the other, and cannot be one body. Also the earth and stones are not God; nor the heaven, stars and elements; much less can a man be God; for if so, he could not be rejected by God. Here I will, by degrees, tell you the ground of all, one thing after another; therefore keep the question in mind.

Of the Astral Birth or Geniture, and of the Birth or Geniture of God.

[Aur. 23:14] Before the times of the created heavens, the stars, and the elements, and before the creation of angels, there was no such wrath of God, no death, no devil, no earth nor stones, neither were there any stars. But the Deity generated itself very meekly and lovingly, and formed, framed and figured itself in ideas, shapes, and images, which were incorporated according to the qualifying or fountain spirits in their generating, wrestling, and rising up, and passed away again also through their wrestling, and figured or framed themselves into another form or condition, all according to the primacy or predominancy of each qualifying or fountain spirit, as you may read before.

The Severe Geniture, out of which the Wrath of God, Hell and Death, are come to be.

[Aur. 23:15] But observe here rightly the earnest and severe birth or geniture, out of which the wrath of God, hell, and death, are come to be, which indeed have been from eternity in God, but not liable to be kindled or to become predominant. 250

[Aur. 23:16] For the whole or total God stands in seven species or kinds, or in a sevenfold form or generating; and if these births or genitures were not, then there would be neither God, nor life, nor angel, nor any creature.

[Aur. 23:17] And these births or genitures have no beginning, but have so generated themselves from eternity; and as to this depth, God himself knows not what he is: For he knows no beginning of himself, also he knows not anything that is like himself, as also he knows no end of himself.

[Aur. 23:18] These seven generatings in all are none of them the first, the second, or the third, or last, but they are all seven, every one of them, both the first, second, third, fourth, and last. Yet I must set them down one after another, according to a creaturely way and manner, otherwise you could not understand it: For the Deity is as a wheel with seven wheels made one in another, wherein a man sees neither beginning nor end.

Now Observe:
[Aur. 23:19] I. First, there is the astringent quality, which is always generated from the other six spirits, which in itself is hard, cold, sharp like salt, and yet far sharper. For a creature cannot sufficiently apprehend its sharpness, seeing the sharpness is not singly and alone in a creature; but according to the manner and kind of the kindled hellish quality I know how it is: This astringent sharp quality attracts or draws together, and in the divine love holds or retains the forms and images, and so dries them that they subsist or are fixed.

[Aur. 23:20] II. The second generating is the sweet water, which is also generated out of all the six spirits; for it is the meekness, which is generated out of the other six, and presses itself forth in the astringent birth or geniture, and always kindles again the astringent, and then quenches and mitigates it, that it be not too much astringent, as it might be in its own sharpness, if it were not for the water.

[Aur. 23:21] III. The third generating is the bitterness, which exists out of the fire in the water; for it rubs and vexes itself in the astringent and sharp coldness, and makes the coldness moveable, from where mobility exists.

[Aur. 23:22] IV. The fourth generating is the fire, which exists from the mobility or rubbing in the astringent spirit, and that is now a sharp burning, and the bitter is a stinging and raging. But when the fire-spirit rubs itself thus ragingly in the astringent coldness, then there is an anxious horrible quaking, a trembling, and a sharp, opposite, contentious generating.

Observe here the Depth.

[Aur. 23:23] I speak here as to the kind and manner of the Devil, as if the light of God had not yet kindled itself in these four kinds; and as if the Deity had a beginning; I can no other or nearer way offer it to your judgment, that you may understand it.

[Aur. 23:24] In this fourth rubbing is a very hard, and most horrible, sharp and fierce coldness, like a refined, melted, and very cold salt-water, which yet is not water, but such a hard kind of power and virtue that is like stones.

[Aur. 23:25] There is also therein a raging, raving, stinging and burning, and that water is continually as a dying man, when body and soul are parting asunder, a most horrible anxiety, a woeful, painful birth or geniture.

[Aur. 23:26] O Man! Here consider yourself, here you see from where the Devil and his fierce, wrathful malice has its original, as also God’s wrath, and the hellish fire, also death and hell, and eternal damnation. You philosophers, observe that!

[Aur. 23:27] Now when these four generatings rub themselves one upon another, then heat gets the primacy and predominancy, and kindles itself in the sweet water, and then instantly the light rises up.

Understand this rightly.

[Aur. 23:28] When the light kindles itself, then the fire-terror or crack comes forth first. As when you strike upon a stone the fire-crack is first, and then the light first conceives itself from the fire-crack.

[Aur. 23:29] Now the fire-crack in the water goes through the astringent quality, and makes it moveable, but the light generates itself in the water, and becomes a shining light, and is an impalpable, meek, and most richly loving being, of which neither I nor any other creature can sufficiently write or speak, but I only stammer, like a child which would fain learn to speak.

[Aur. 23:30] That same light is generated in the midst or center, out of these four species, out of the unctuosity or fatness of the sweet water, and replenishes the whole body of this generating. But it is such a meek, pleasing, well-doing, good-smelling and well-tasting relish, that I know no similitude to liken it to, but where life is generated in the midst or center of death; or as if a man did sit in a huge, scorching, hot, flaming fire, and were suddenly snatched out from there, and set in such a very exceeding easy place of refreshment, where instantly all the smarting, scalding pains, which he felt afore by the burning of the fire, should suddenly pass away, and he be put into such a pleasing temper and soundness. Just so the generating of the four kinds or species are set or put into such a soft and meek well-doing and refreshment, as soon as the light rises up in them. You must understand me here aright.

[Aur. 23:31] I write, and mean it, in a creaturely kind and manner, as if a man had been the Devil’s prisoner, and were suddenly removed out of the hellish fire into the light of God.

[Aur. 23:32] For the light has had no beginning in the generating of God, but has shone or given light from eternity in the generating, and God himself knows no beginning therein.

[Aur. 23:33] Only, the spirit here sets open for you the gates of hell, that you may see what is the condition of the devils and of hell, and what is the condition of man, when the divine light extinguishes in him, so that he sits in the wrath of God and lives in such a generating, in such an anguish, in such smarting pains, in such woe and misery.

[Aur. 23:34] Neither can I declare it unto you in any other manner; for I must write as if the generating or geniture of God had or took a beginning when things came to be thus; but I write here very, really true and precious dear words, which the spirit alone understands.

What is called the Animal or Soulish Birth.

Now observe the Gates of God.

[Aur. 23:35] The light, which generates itself from the fire and becomes shining in the water, and replenishes or fills the whole geniture and enlightens it, and mitigates it, that light is the true Heart of God, or Son of God; for he is continually generated out of the Father, and is a Person other than the qualities and geniture of the Father.

[Aur. 23:36] For the generating or geniture of the Father cannot catch or comprehend the light, and use it to its generating, but the light stands by itself, and is not comprehended by any geniture, and it replenishes and enlightens the whole geniture, viz. the only begotten Son of the Father.251 This light I call, in the human birth or geniture, the animated or soulish birth (“Understand, the image which budded forth out of the essences of the soul, according to the similitude of God.”), or the soul’s birth or geniture which qualifies, mixes or unites with this animated or soulish birth or geniture of God; and herein is man’s soul one heart with God: but that is when it stands in this light.

[Aur. 23:37] V. The fifth generating in God is when this light thus very gently, mildly and amiably presses through the first four births or generatings, and then it brings along with it the heart, and most pleasant lovely power and virtue of the sweet water, and so when the sharp births or genitures taste of it, then are they very meek, and richly full of love, and it is as if the life did continually rise up in and from death.

[Aur. 23:38] There each spirit tastes of the others, and gets mere new strength and power, for the astringent quality grows now very pliable and yielding, because it is mitigated by the power of the light that springs out of the sweet water, and in the fire the meek love rises up, for it warms the coldness, and the sweet water makes the sharp taste very pleasant, lovely, and mild.

[Aur. 23:39] And so in the sharp and fiery births or generatings there is nothing but a mere longing of love, a tasting, friendly affecting, gracious, amiable and blessed generating; there is nothing but mere love, and all wrath and bitterness in the center are bolted up as in a strong hold. This generating is a very meek, beneficial well-doing, and the bitter spirit is now the living mobility.

[Aur. 23:40] VI. Now the sixth generating in God is when the spirits, in their birth or geniture, thus taste one of another, for then they become very full of joy: For the fire-flash, or the sharpness out of or from the birth or geniture, rises up aloft, and moves as the air in this world does.

[Aur. 23:41] For when one power or virtue touches another, then they taste one another, and become very full of joy; for the light becomes generated out of all the powers, and presses again through all the powers; whereby and wherein the rising joy generates itself, from where the tone or tune$^{252}$ exists.

[Aur. 23:42] For from the touching and moving the living spirit generates itself, and that same spirit presses through all births or generatings, very inconceivably and incomprehensibly to the birth or geniture, and is a very richly joyful, pleasant, lovely sharpness, like melodious, sweet music.

[Aur. 23:43] And now when the birth generates, then it conceives or apprehends the light, and speaks or inspires the light again into the birth or geniture through the moving spirit. This moving spirit is the third Person in the birth or geniture of God, and is called God the Holy Ghost.

[Aur. 23:44] VII. The seventh generating is, and keeps its birth or geniture and forming in, the Holy Ghost; and so when that goes through the sharp births or genitures, then it goes forth with the tone, and so forms and images all manner of figures, all according to the wrestling of the sharp births or genitures one with another.

[Aur. 23:45] For they wrestle in the birth or geniture continually one with another, like a loving play or scene, and according as the birth or geniture is with the colors and taste in the rising up, so also are the figures imaged.

Of the being of the Deity, and of the Tree Persons.

[Aur. 23:46] And this birth or geniture now is called GOD the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost: Not one of them is the first, and not one of them is the last: though I make a distinction, and set the one after the other, yet not one of them is the first or the last, but they have all been from eternity thus seated in the same equality of being.

[Aur. 23:47] I must write thus by way of distinction, that the Reader may understand it; for I cannot write mere heavenly words, but must write human words. Indeed all is rightly, truly and faithfully described: But the being of God consists only in power, and only the spirit comprehends it, and not the dead or mortal flesh.

[Aur. 23:48] Thus you may understand what manner of being the Deity is, and how the three Persons in the Deity are. You must not liken the Deity to any image; for the Deity is the birth or geniture of all things. If, in the first four species or kinds, there were not the sharp birth or generating, then there would be no mobility, neither could the light kindle itself and generate the life.

Where the Living and the Rational Spirit exists.

[Aur. 23:49] But now this sharp birth or geniture is the original of mobility and of life, as also of the light, from where exists the living and rational spirit, which distinguishes, forms and images all in this generating.

[Aur. 23:50] For the astringent cold birth or geniture is the beginning of all things, which quality is astringent, severe, contracting and retentive, and forms and contracts together the birth, and makes the birth thick or solid, so that out of it nature comes to be; thus nature and comprehensibility has its original in the whole body of God.

[Aur. 23:51] Now this nature is as a dead, unintellectual being, and stands or consists not in the power of the birth or geniture, but is a body, wherein the power generates.

[Aur. 23:52] But it is the body of God, and has all power as the whole geniture has, and the generating spirits take their strength and power out of or from the body of nature, and continually generate again, and the astringent spirit continually compacts or draws together again, and dries up; and thus the body subsists, and the generating spirits also.

[Aur. 23:53] Now the other birth or geniture is the water, which takes its original in the body of nature.

Observe:

[Aur. 23:54] Now when the light shines through the astringent, contracted body of nature, and mitigates it, then the mild, beneficent well-doing generates itself in the body, and then the hard power grows very mild, and melts, as ice in the heat of the sun, and is extenuated or rarefied, as water is in the air; and yet the stock of nature, as to the heavenly comprehensibility, remains the same.

[Aur. 23:55] For the astringent and fire-spirit holds it fast, and the meek water, which melts from the body of nature in the kindling of the light, goes through the severe, earnest, cold and fiery birth or geniture, and is very sweet, pleasant and lovely.

[Aur. 23:56] Whereby now the earnest and austere birth or geniture is refreshed; and when it tastes thereof it grows capable to be raised up, and rejoices, and also is a joyful rising up, where-in the life of meekness generates itself.

What is the Water of Life.

[Aur. 23:57] For this is the water of life, wherein the love in God, as also in angels and in men, generates itself; for it is all of one sort of power, virtue and birth or geniture.

[Aur. 23:58] And now when the births or genitures of the powers taste the water of life, then they quake or tremble for very love-joy, and that trembling or moving, which rises up in the midst or center of the birth or geniture, is bitter. For it rises up swiftly out of the birth, when the water of life comes into the birth or geniture, like a joyful leaping or springing up of the birth.

[Aur. 23:59] But seeing it rises up so swiftly, that the birth elevates itself so suddenly, before it be fully affected with the water of life, thereupon that terror or crack keeps its bitterness which it has out of or from the austere birth; for the beginning or inceptive birth or geniture is very austere, cold, fiery and astringent.

[Aur. 23:60] Therefore also is the terror or crack now so swelling and trembling; for it moves the whole birth, and rubs itself therein, till it kindles the fire in the hard fierceness, from where the light takes its original. Then the trembling crack becomes enlightened with the meekness of the light, and goes in the birth or geniture up and down, and crossways, both upwards and downwards, like a wheel made with seven wheels one in another.

[Aur. 23:61] In this pressing through and turning about exists the tone, according to the quality of each spirit; and always one power affects another, for the powers are as loving brethren in one body; and the meekness rises up; and the spirit generates and shows itself infinitely.

[Aur. 23:62] For that power which in the turning about shows itself the strongest in the generating, according to that power, manner and color, the Holy Ghost also images, shapes or frames the figures in the body of nature.
Thus you see that none of the powers is the first, also none the second, third, fourth or last; but the last generates the first, as well as the first the last, and the middlemost takes its original from the last, as also from the first, as well as from the second, third, or any of the rest.

You see also that nature cannot be distinguished from the powers of God, but is all one body.

The Deity, that is, the holy power of the heart of God, is generated in nature, and so also the Holy Ghost exists or goes forth out of the heart of the light continually, through all the powers of the Father, and figures all, and images or frames all.

This birth or geniture is now in three distinct parts, every part being several and total, and yet not one of them is divided asunder from the others.

The Gate of the Holy Trinity.

The whole birth or geniture, which is the heaven of all heavens, as also this world, which is in the body of the whole, as also the place of the earth and of all creatures, and whatev-er you can think on, all that together is God the Father, who has neither beginning nor end; and wheresoever and upon whatsoever you think, even in the smallest circle that can be imagined, is the whole birth or geniture of God, perfectly, incessantly and irresistibly.

But if in a creature, or in any place, the light be extinguished, then in that place is the austere birth or geniture, which lies hid in the light in the innermost kernel: And this now is one part.

The second part, or the second Person, is the light, which is continually generated from or out of all powers, and enlightens again all the powers of the Father, and has the fountain of all powers; but it is therein distinguished from the Father as a singular Person, in that it cannot comprehend the birth or geniture of the Father, and yet is the Father’s Son, which is always ge-nerated from or out of the Father: An instance whereof you have in all the kindled fires in this world; do but consider of it.

Therefore the Father loves this his only begotten or innate Son so heartily, because he is the light and the meek beneficent well-doing in his body, through whose power the Father’s joy and delight rises up.

Now these are two Persons, and neither of them can apprehend, retain, or compre-hend the other, and the one is as great as the other; and if either of them were not, the other could not be.

Observe here, you Jews, Turks, and Heathen, for it concerns you; to you here are opened the gates of God, harden not yourselves, for now is the acceptable time.

You are not forgotten of God at all, but if you convert, then the light and heart of God will rise up in you, as the bright sun at noonday.

This I write in the power and perfect knowledge of the great God, and I understand his will herein very well. For I live and am in him, and spring up with this work and labor out of his root and stock; and it must be so: Only, take you heed, if you blind yourself, then there is no remedy more; neither can you say you knew not of it, therefore arise, for the day breaks!

The third diversity, or the third Person in the being of God, is the moving spirit, which exists from the rising up in the terror or crack, where life is generated, which now moves in all powers, and is the spirit of life; and the powers can no more comprehend him, or apprehend him; but he kindles the powers, and by his moving makes figures and images, and forms them according to that kind and manner as the wrestling birth stands in every place.

[Aur. 23:76] And if you are not willfully blind, you may know that the air is that very spirit; but in the place of this world nature is kindled therein very swelling in the wrath-fire, which lord Lucifer effected, and the Holy Ghost, who is the spirit of meekness, lies hidden therein in his heaven.

[Aur. 23:77] You need not to ask where that heaven is. It is in your heart, do but open your heart, the key is here shown to you.

[Aur. 23:78] Thus there is one God, and three distinct Persons one in another, and not one of them can comprehend, or withhold, or fathom the original of the others, but the Father generates the Son, and the Son is the Father’s heart, and his love and his light, and is an original of joy, and the beginning of all life.

[Aur. 23:79] And the Holy Ghost is the spirit of life, and a former, framer and creator of all things, and a performer of the will in God; that has formed and created out of or from the body, and in the body of the Father, all angels and creatures, and holds and forms all still, daily, and is the sharpness and the living spirit of God: As the Father speaks or expresses the Word, out of or from his powers, so the spirit forms or frames them.

Of the great Simplicity of God.

[Aur. 23:80] Come on, brave Sir, upon your brown nag! You who ride from heaven into hell, and from hell into death, and therein the sting of the Devil lies. View yourself here, you worldly-wise man, that are full of base wit, cunning, and subtle policy.

[Aur. 23:81] Take notice, you worldly-wise lawyers, if you will not come before this looking-glass, even before the bright and clear face of God, and view yourselves therein, then the spirit presents to you the birth or geniture in the innermost astringent circle; where wit, cunning and prudence are generated, where the sharpness of the anxious birth or geniture of God is, for there your prudence, cunning and deep-reaching wit are generated.

[Aur. 23:82] Now if you will be gods, and not devils, then make use of the holy and meek law of God; if not, then you shall forever eternally generate in the austere and severe birth or geniture of God. Thus says the spirit, as the word of God, and not of my dead or mortal flesh.

[Aur. 23:83] You must know that I do not suck it out from the dead or mortal reason, but my spirit qualifies, mixes or unites with God, and proves or searches the Deity, how it is in all its births or genitures in its taste and smell: And I find that the Deity is a very simple, pure, meek, loving and quiet being; and that the birth of the Ternary of God generates itself very meekly, friendly, lovingly and unanimously, and the sharpness of the innermost birth can never elevate or swell itself into the meekness of the Ternary, but remains hidden in the deep.

[Aur. 23:84] And the sharpness in the hidden secrecy is called God’s WRATH; and the being of meekness in the Ternary or Trinity is called GOD. Here nothing goes out of, or forth from, the sharpness which perishes, or which does kindle the wrath, but the spirits play very gently one with another, like little children when they rejoice one with another, where everyone has his work, and so they play one with another, and lovingly caress one another.

[Aur. 23:85] In such a work also the holy angels exercise themselves; and in the Ternary of God there is a very meek, pleasant, and sweet being, where the spirit always elevates itself in the tone, and one power moves the other, as if there were a rising up of lovely song, and play upon stringed instruments.
[Aur. 23:86] And as is the rising up of the spirits in every place, so the tone also forms itself, but very meekly, and incomprehensibly to the bodies of the angels, but very comprehensibly to the animated or soulish birth or geniture of angels: and as the Deity presents itself in each place, so the angels also present themselves: For the angels were created out of this being, and have among them their princes of the qualifying or fountain spirits of God, as these princes are in the birth or geniture of God.

[Aur. 23:87] Therefore as the being of God presents or shows forth itself in the birth or geniture, so do the angels also; and whatsoever be the power which at any time is predominant in the birth of God, and rejoices out of the heart of God in the Holy Ghost, the prince of that power in the angels begins his hymn of praise before all the others, and jubilates with his host; now it is one, then the other; for the birth or geniture of God is like a wheel.

[Aur. 23:88] But when the heart of God shows forth itself with its clarity or brightness, then there rises up the whole host or army of all the three kingdoms of the angels; and in this rising up of the heart of God the Man JESUS CHRIST is King and Chief. He leads the royal chorus or choir, with all the holy souls of men, till the Last Judgment Day. And then the holy men are perfect angels, and the wicked, perfect devils, and that in its eternity.

[Aur. 23:89] Here view yourself, you witty, subtle world, and consider from where your prudence, subtlety and wit proceed.

Now you will say to me:

[Aur. 23:90] Do not you seek after deeper subtlety than we? You will wish to climb into the most hidden secrets of God, which is not fit for any man to go about. We seek only after human prudence and subtlety, but you would be equal with God, and know all; how God is in everything, both in heaven and in hell, in devils, angels and men. Therefore, sure it is not unlawful to seek for a cunning, sharp wit, and after crafty designs, which bring honor, power or authority, and riches.

A Reply.

[Aur. 23:91] If you climb up this ladder on which I climb up into the deep of God, as I have done, then you have climbed well: I am not come to this meaning, or to this work and knowledge, through my own reason, or through my own will and purpose; neither have I sought this knowledge, nor so much as knew anything concerning it. I sought only for the Heart of God, therein to hide myself from the tempestuous storms of the Devil.

[Aur. 23:92] But when I got in there, then this great, weighty and hard labor was laid upon me, which is, to manifest and reveal to the world, and to make known, the great day of the LORD; and, seeing men seek and long so eagerly after the root of the tree, to reveal to them what the whole tree is, thereby to intimate that it [the present time] is the Dawning, or Morning-Redness of the Day, which God has long ago decreed in his council. AMEN.

[Aur. 23:93] Thus you see what God is, and how his love and wrath have been from eternity, also how his birth or geniture is: And now you cannot say that you are not in God, or do not live in God, or that God is any strange thing which you cannot come at, but must confess, that where you are, there is the gate of God.

[Aur. 23:94] Now if you are holy, then, as to your soul, you are with God in heaven; but if you are wicked, then, as to your soul, you are in hell-fire.

Now observe further:

[Aur. 23:95] When God created the angels, all of them were created wholly out of this birth or geniture of God; their body was compacted or incorporated out of nature, therein their spirit and light generated themselves, as the Deity generated itself. And, as the qualifying or fountain spirits of God always took their power and strength out of or from the _body_ of nature, so the angels also took their power and strength always out of or from the nature of God.

[Aur. 23:96] And as the Holy Ghost in nature forms and images or frames _all_, so the spirit of the angels also qualified or united with the Holy Ghost, and did _help_ to form, frame and image _all_, that all might be one heart and will, and a mere delight and joy: For the angels are the children of the great God, whom he has generated in his body of _nature_ for the multiplying of the divine joy.

[Aur. 23:97] But here you must know that the _bodies_ of angels cannot apprehend the birth or geniture of God, neither does their body _understand_ it, their _spirit_ alone understands it, but the body holds still, as the _nature_ in God does, and lets the spirit co-work and labor with God, and play lovingly.

[Aur. 23:98] For the angels play before and in God, as little children play before their _parents_, whereby the divine joy is increased.

[Aur. 23:99] But when the mighty, potent prince and king _Lucifer_ was created, he would not do so, but elevated and swelled himself, and would alone be God, and kindled the wrath-fire in himself, and so did all _his_ angels also.

[Aur. 23:100] Now when that was done he roared with his kindled fire-spirit abroad into the _nature_ of God, and then the whole body in the nature of God, as far as _Lucifer’s_ kingdom and dominion _reached_, was kindled. But seeing his light was _instantly_ extinguished, he could no more qualify or unite with his spirit in the _two_ births or genitures, _viz._ of the Son of God, and of the Holy Spirit of God, but remained fixed in the _sharp_ birth or geniture of God.

[Aur. 23:101] For the light of God, and the spirit of God, _cannot_ comprehend the sharp birth or geniture, and _therefore_ they are _two distinct Persons_; and so lord _Lucifer_ could no more touch, see, _feel_ or taste the Heart of God and the Holy Spirit of God, with his _austere_, cold and hard fire-birth, but was _spewed_ out with his fire-spirit into the outermost nature, wherein he _had kindled_ the wrath-fire.

[Aur. 23:102] This same nature is, indeed, the body of God, wherein the Deity generates itself; but the devils cannot apprehend the _meek birth_ of God which rises up in the light. For their body is _dead_ to the light, and lives in the outermost and austere birth or geniture of God, wherein the light _never_ kindles itself again anymore.

[Aur. 23:103] For their _unctuousness_ or fatness in the sweet water is _burnt_ up, and that water is turned into a sour _stink_, wherein the light of God can no more kindle itself, and the light of God can no more enter into it.

[Aur. 23:104] For the qualifying or fountain spirits of the _devils_ are shut up in the hard wrath; their bodies are a hard _death_, and their spirits are a fierce _sting_ of the wrath of God, and their qualifying or fountain spirits generate themselves continually in the innermost sharpness, according to the sharp law of the Deity.

[Aur. 23:105] For otherwise they cannot generate themselves; neither can they die, nor pass away and vanish, and be no more; but they _stand_ in the most anguishing birth or geniture, and there is nothing in them but mere _fierceness_, wrath and malice; the kindled fire-source rises from eternity to eternity, and they can never touch nor see nor apprehend the _sweet_ and _light_ birth or geniture of God anymore.
[Aur. 23:106] Now God has therefore kindled nature so much and so hard, and did so kindle the burning in his wrath therein, that he might thereby build a dwelling-house for the devils, and keep them prisoners therein, in that they were the children of wrath, in whom he rules, with his fierce zeal or jealousy, and they rule in the wrath.

Of the Incorporating or Compaction of the Stars.

[Aur. 24:1] NOW when the whole body of nature in the extent, space or circumference of this world was benumbed or deadened, as in the hard death, and yet that the life was hid therein, thereupon God moved the whole body of the nature of this world on the fourth day, and generated the stars from or out of nature, out of the risen light. For the wheel of God’s birth or geniture moved itself again, as it had done from eternity.

[Aur. 24:2] Indeed it had moved on the first day, and had begun the birth or geniture in the body of the corrupt nature; for on the first day the life separated itself from the death, and on the second day a firmament was created between, and on the third day the life broke forth through death. For there the light broke forth through the darkness, and made the dead body of nature to spring, to flourish, and to be stirring and agile.

[Aur. 24:3] For on the third day the body of nature did travail so hard in anxiety till the love-fire had kindled itself in the death, and till the light of life was broken forth through the congealed body of death, and had sprung up out of death; but on the third day it stood only in the fire-crack, from where mobility existed.

[Aur. 24:4] On the fourth day the light rose up, and made its seat in the house of death, and yet death could not, and cannot, comprehend it. As little as the austere birth of God, (which stands in the innermost kernel from where life exists), can apprehend the meekness, and the light of the meekness together with the spirit in the meekness, so little also can the dead darkness of this world comprehend the light of nature: no more can the devils either.

[Aur. 24:5] But the light shines through death, and has made its royal seat in the midst or center in the house of death and of God’s wrath, and generates to itself a new body of God out of the house of wrath, which new body subsists eternally in the love of God, incomprehensibly to the old kindled body in the outmost birth or geniture.

[Aur. 24:6] Now you will ask, How shall I understand this? I cannot at all write it in your heart, for it is not for every man’s capacity, understanding and apprehension, especially where the spirit stands in the house of wrath, and does not qualify, operate or unite with the light of God. But I will show it to you in an earthly similitude, that you might, if possible, get a little into the deep sense.

[Aur. 24:7] Behold and consider a tree: On the outside it has a hard, gross rind or bark, which is dead, benumbed, and without vegetation—yet not quite dead, but in the impotence; and there is a great difference between the bark and the body that grows next under the rind or bark. The body has its living power, and breaks forth through the withered rind, and generates many fair young bodies or twigs, all which stand in the old body.

[Aur. 24:8] But the rind is as a death, and cannot comprehend the life of the tree, but only hangs to it, and is a cover to the tree, in which worms do harbor, which in the end destroy the tree.

[Aur. 24:9] Thus also is the whole house of this world. The outward darkness is the house of God’s wrath, wherein the devils dwell, and it is rightly the house of death, for the holy light of God has therein died. ("Understand, the light stepped into its Principle, and is the outward substantiality in God, as it were dead in our esteem, whereas it lives in God, but in another source or quality.")

[Aur. 24:10] But the body of this great house, which lies hid under the shell or rind of darkness, incomprehensibly to the darkness, that body is the house of life, wherein love and wrath wrestle the one with the other.

[Aur. 24:11] Now the love always breaks through the house of death, and generates holy, heavenly twigs in the great tree; which twigs stand in the light. For they spring up through the shell or skin of darkness, as the twigs do through the shell or bark of the tree, and are one life with God.

[Aur. 24:12] And the wrath also springs up in the house of darkness, and holds many a noble twig captive in death, through its infection in the house of fierceness.

[Aur. 24:13] This now is the sum or the contents of the astral birth or geniture, of which I here intend to write.

Out of what the Stars are come to be.

[Aur. 24:14] Now it may be asked, What are the stars? Or out of what are they come to be? They are the power of the seven spirits of God; for when in this world the wrath of God was kindled by the Devil, then the whole house of this world in nature, or the outermost birth or geniture, was as it were benumbed or chilled in death; from which the earth and stones are come to be. But when this hard dross or scum was driven together into a lump or heap, then the deep was cleared. But the deep was very dark, for the light therein was dead in the wrath.

[Aur. 24:15] Now the body of God, as to this world, could not remain in death, so God moved himself with his seven qualifying or fountain spirits to the birth or geniture.

But you must understand this high thing rightly.

[Aur. 24:16] The light of God, which is the Son of God, and also the Holy Ghost, died not; but the light, which has gone forth from or out of the heart of God from eternity, and has enlightened nature, ([the nature] which is generated out of the seven spirits), that [light] is departed or gone away from the hard corrupted nature. From where it is that the nature of this world, with its comprehensibility or palpability, has remained in death, and cannot apprehend the light of God, but is a dark house of devils.

[Aur. 24:17] Upon this, on the fourth day of the creation, God regenerated anew the whole house of this world, with the qualities thereof, and has placed or set the qualifying or fountain spirits in the house of darkness, that he might generate to himself again out of that a new body, to his praise, honor and glory.

[Aur. 24:18] For his purpose was to create another angelical host or army out of this house, which was to be done thus: He would create an angel, namely Adam, who should generate out of himself creatures like himself, who should possess the house of the new birth; and in the middle of time their king should be generated or born out of a human body, and possess the new-born kingdom as a king of these creatures, in place of the corrupted and expelled Lucifer.

[Aur. 24:19] Further, at the fullness or accomplishment of this time, God would adorn and trim this house with its qualities, as a royal government, and let those very qualifying or fountain spirits possess the whole house, that they might, in that house of darkness and of death, bring forth creatures and images again, as they had done from eternity, till the accomplishment or fulfilling of the whole host or army of the new created angels, namely men. Then God would bolt and bar up the Devil in the house of darkness in a narrow hell, and then kindle the whole house in its own light again, all but the very hole, hell or dungeon of the devils.
Why God did not bar up the Devil instantly.

[Aur. 24:20] Now it may be asked, Why did not God bolt him up instantly, and then he had not done so much mischief. Behold! this was God’s purpose, which [purpose] must stand: that he would re-edify out of the corrupted nature of the earth, or build again to himself an angelical host or army: Understand, a new body, which should subsist eternally in God.

[Aur. 24:21] It was not at all God’s intention to let the Devil have the whole earth for an eternal dwelling-house, but to let him have only the death and fierceness of the earth, which he had brought into it.

[Aur. 24:22] For what sin had the Salitter committed against God that it should stand totally in eternal shame? None: It was only a body, which must remain still, when the Devil elevated or swelled himself therein.

[Aur. 24:23] Now if God should have instantly left it to the Devil for an eternal dwelling-house, then out of that place a new body could not have been built. Now what sin had that space, place or room committed against God, that it should stand in eternal shame? None; and therefore that were an injustice.

[Aur. 24:24] Now the purpose of God was to make a beautiful, excellent, angelical host or army out of the earth, and [also] all manner of ideas, forms or images. For in and upon that earth all should spring and generate themselves anew, as we see in mineral ores, stones, trees, herbs and grass, and in all manner of beasts after a heavenly image or form.

[Aur. 24:25] And though those imagings were transitory, seeing they were not pure before God, yet God would, at the end of this time, extract and draw forth the heart and the kernel out of the new birth or geniture, and separate it from death and wrath; and the new birth should eternally spring up in God, without, distinct from this place, and bear heavenly fruits again.

[Aur. 24:26] But the death of the earth, and the wrath therein, should be lord Lucifer’s eternal house, after the accomplishing of the new birth or geniture. In the meanwhile lord Lucifer should lie captive in the darkness in the deep above the earth; and there he now is, and may very shortly expect his portion.

[Aur. 24:27] That this new birth or geniture might be accomplished, whether the Devil will or no, the Creator has therefore, in the body of this world, generated himself, as it were creaturely, in his qualifying or fountain spirits; and all the stars are nothing else but God’s powers, and the whole body of this world consists in the seven qualifying or fountain spirits.

[Aur. 24:28] But that there are so many stars of so manifold different effects and operations is from the infiniteness, which is in the efficiency of the seven spirits of God, in one another, which generate themselves infinitely.

[Aur. 24:29] But that the birth, or the body of the stars in their seat, does not change or alter (but lo as they did from eternity), signifies that there shall be a constant, continued birth or geniture, whereby, in one uniform operation, which yet stands in the infiniteness, the benumbed body of the earth should continually and constantly be kindled again, and generate itself anew, and so also should the house of darkness of the deep above the earth; whereby the new body might continually and constantly be generated out of death, till time should be accomplished, and the whole new-born body [perfected].

Why the Stars should not be worshipped.

[Aur. 24:30] Now you will object and say, Then sure the stars are God, and they must be honored and worshipped as God. The wise Heathen also came to this [conclusion], who indeed, in their... sharp or acute understandings, far excelled our philosophers; but the right door of knowledge has yet remained hidden from them.

[Aur. 24:31] Behold! the stars are plainly incorporated or compacted out of or from God; but you must understand the difference between the stars and God, for the stars are not the heart and the meek pure Deity, which man is to honor and worship as God; but they are the innermost and sharpest birth or geniture, wherein all things stand in a wrestling and a fighting, wherein the heart of God always generates itself, and wherein the Holy Ghost continually rises up from the rising of the life.

[Aur. 24:32] But the sharp birth or geniture of the stars cannot again apprehend the heart of God, nor the Holy Ghost; but the light of God, which rises up in the anxiety, together with the moving of the Holy Ghost, remains free to itself as the heart, and rules in the midst or center of the closure of the hidden heaven, which is from or out of the water of life.

[Aur. 24:33] For from the heaven the stars have their first kindling, and are only as an instrument, which God uses to the birth or geniture.

[Aur. 24:34] It is just such a birth as is in man; the body is even the father of the soul, for the soul is generated out of the power of the body, and when the body stands in the anguishing birth or geniture of God, as the stars do, and not in the fierce hellish birth, then the soul of man qualifies, mixes or unites with the pure Deity, as a member in or of his body.

[Aur. 24:35] Thus also is the heart or light of God always generated in the body of this world, and that generated heart is one heart with the eternal, unbeginning, infinite heart of God, which is in and above all heavens.

[Aur. 24:36] It is not generated in and from the stars only, but in the whole body of this world; but the stars always kindle the body of this world, that the birth or geniture may subsist everywhere.

But here you must well observe this.

[Aur. 24:37] The light or the heart of God takes not its original barely from the wild rough stars, where, indeed, love and wrath are in each other, but out of or from the seat where the meek water of life is continually generated.

[Aur. 24:38] For that water, at or in the kindling of the wrath, was not apprehended by death, but subsists from eternity to eternity, and reaches to all the ends and parts of or in this world, and is the water of life, which breaks through death, out of which is built the new body of God in this world.

In whom the Light of Life kindled in the Water of Life.

[Aur. 24:39] And it is in the stars, as well as in all ends, corners and places, but not in any place comprehensible or palpable, and it at once fills or replenishes all alike. It is also in the body of man, and he that thirsts after this water, and drinks thereof, in him the light of life kindles itself, which is the heart of God; and there [in that place] presently springs forth the Holy Ghost.

[Aur. 24:40] Now you ask, How then do the stars subsist in love and wrath? Behold! The stars are risen or proceeded out of the kindled house of God’s wrath, as the mobility or stirring of a child in the mother’s body or womb in three months. But now they have attained their kindling from the eternal, benumbed, not quite dead, water of life, for in nature that water was never dead.

But when God moved himself in the body of this world, then on the third day the anxiety, in the birth of this world, rubbed itself, from which the fire-flash existed, and the light of the stars kindled itself in the water of life.

For till the third day from the time of the kindling of God’s wrath in this world, nature, in the anxiety, was a dark valley, and stood in death; but on the third day the life brake through death, and the new birth began.

Why Christ rested in Death Forty Hours and no longer.

Thus the new-born love, which rose out of the water of life in the light in the stars, and in the whole body of this world, is wholly bound and united with the eternal, unbeginning, infinite love, so that they are one heart and one spirit, which supports and preserves all.

In this kindling of the light, in the stars and elements, the birth of nature did not thereupon wholly transmute or change itself into the holy meekness, as it was before the time of the wrath, so that the birth of nature be now altogether holy and pure: No, but it stands in its sharpest, most austere, and most anxious birth, wherein the wrath of God incessantly springs up like hellish fire.

For if, with its sharp birth, nature had fully changed itself into love, according to the heavenly right, law or manner, then were the devils again in the seat of God.

And this you may very well perceive and understand, in extreme heat and cold, as also by the poison, bitterness and sourness in this world; all which stand in the birth or geniture of the stars, wherein the Devil lies captive.

The stars are only the kindling of the great house; for the whole house is benumbed in death, as the earth is; for the outermost birth or geniture is dead and benumbed, as the rind, shell or bark of a tree. But the astral birth is the body in which the life rises up.

But the astral birth is in its body very sharp; yet the new birth, which rises up in the water of life, and presses through death, mitigates it. But the new birth cannot alter the kernel of the sharp birth, but is generated out of it, and keeps its own holy new life to itself, and presses through the angry death, and the angry death comprehends it not.

Now this love and this wrath are indeed one body, but the water of life is the heaven of partition between them, so that the love does not receive or comprehend the wrath, nor the wrath the love, but the love rises up in the water of life, and receives into itself, from the first and austere birth, the power which is in the light, and which is generated out of the wrath; so that the new body is born out of the old.

For the old body, which stands in the austere birth, belongs to the Devil for a house, and the new belongs to the kingdom of Christ.
Now it may be asked, Are not all the three Persons of the Deity in the birth or geniture of meekness in this world? Yes, they are all three in this world in the full birth or geniture of love, meekness, holiness and purity, and they are always generated in such a substance and being, as was done from eternity.

God an angry God to those that hate him.

Behold! God the Father spoke to the People of Israel on mount Sinai, when he gave the Law to them, saying; I am an angry, zealous or jealous God to those that hate me.\[260\]

Now, of this one only Father, who is both angry and also full of love, you cannot make two persons; but he is one only Father, who continually generates his heartily beloved Son, and from both these the Holy Ghost goes forth continually.

Observe the Depth in the Center.

The Father is the one only being, who himself is ALL, who from eternity continually generates his heartily beloved Son; and in both of them the Holy Ghost is continually standing in the flash, wherein the life is generated.

But now, from the austere and earnest birth or geniture of the qualifying or fountain spirits of the Father, wherein the zeal or jealousy and the wrath stands, the body of nature always comes to be, wherein the light of the Son, viz. of the Father’s heart stands, incomprehensibly as to nature.

For the light is in the midst or center of the birth or geniture, and is the place of life wherein the meek life of God is generated from or out of all the powers of the Father, and in the same place the Holy Ghost goes forth from the Father and the Son.

Now those powers of the Father which stand in the kindling of the light are the holy Father, and the meek Father, and the pure birth or geniture of God; and the spirit which rises therein is the Holy Spirit. But the sharp birth or geniture is the body, wherein this holy life is continually generated.

But when the light of God shines through this sharp birth or geniture, then it becomes very meek, and is as it were like a man that is asleep, in whom the life still moves; and the body is in a sweet, quiet rest.

In this body of nature the kindling was now made, for out of this body the angels also were created; and if they had not elevated and kindled themselves in their high-mindedness, then their body would have stood eternally in a stillness, and in an incomprehensible meekness, as it is in the other principalities of angels that are without, distinct from this world; and their spirit would have generated itself eternally in their body of meekness, as the Holy Trinity does in the body or corporeity of God; and their inborn or innate spirit would have been one heart, one will, and one love with or in the Holy Trinity: For to that end they were created in the body of God, to be a joy to the Deity.

But lord Lucifer would himself be the mighty God, and kindled his body, and excited or stirred up therein the sharp birth of God, and opposed the light or bright heart of God, intending to rule therein with his sharpness, which was a thing impossible to be done.

But seeing he elevated and kindled himself against the right of the Deity, thereupon the sharp birth in the body of the Father rose up against him, and took him, as an angry son, prisoner or captive in the sharpest birth, and therein now is his eternal dominion.

But now when the Father kindled himself in the body of the sharpness, he did not for all that kindle the holy source, wherein his most loving heart generates itself, that thereupon his heart should sit in the source of wrath. No! That is impossible; for the sharp birth cannot apprehend the holy and pure birth, but the holy and pure presses quite through the sharp, and generates to itself a new body, which stands again in meekness.

What is the Water of Life.

[Aur. 24:64] And that new body is the water of life, which is generated when the light presses through the wrath; and the Holy Ghost is the former or framer therein. But heaven is the partition between love and wrath, and is the seat wherein the wrath is transmuted or changed into love.

[Aur. 24:65] Now when you behold the sun and stars, you must not think that they are the holy and pure God, and you must not offer to pray to them, or ask anything of them, for they are not the holy God, but are the kindled, austere birth or geniture of his body, wherein love and wrath wrestle the one with the other.

[Aur. 24:66] But the holy God is hidden in the center of all these things in his heaven, and you can neither see nor comprehend him; but the soul comprehends him, and the astral birth comprehends but half; for the heaven is the partition between love and wrath. That heaven is everywhere, even in yourself.

[Aur. 24:67] Now when you worship or pray to the holy God in his heaven, then you worship or pray to him in that heaven which is in you, and that same God breaks through in your heart with his light; and in his light the Holy Ghost breaks through, and generates your soul to be a new body of God, which rules and reigns with God in his heaven.

[Aur. 24:68] For the earthly body which you bear is one body with the whole kindled body of this world, and your body qualifies, mixes or unites with the whole body of this world; and there is no difference between the stars and the deep, as also between the earth and your body; it is all one body. This is the only difference, your body is a son of the whole, and is in itself as the whole being itself is.

[Aur. 24:69] Now as the new body of this world generates itself in its heaven, so the new man also generates himself in his heaven; for it is all but one heaven, wherein God dwells, and therein your new man dwells, and they cannot be divided asunder.

[Aur. 24:70] But if you are wicked, then your birth or geniture is not capable of heaven, but of the wrath, and remains in the other part of the astral birth or geniture, wherein the earnest and austere fire-source rises up, and bolts it up into death, so long till you break through heaven, and live with God.

[Aur. 24:71] For instead of your heaven you have the wrath-devil sitting there; but if you break through, then he must get him gone, and the Holy Ghost rules and reigns in that seat; and in the other part, viz. the fierceness, the Devil tempts you, for it is his nest; and the Holy Ghost opposes him, and the new man lies in his own heaven, hidden under the protection of the Holy Ghost, and the Devil knows not the new man, for he is not in the Devil's house, but in heaven, in the firmament of God.

From where the Word of this Author is Generated.

[Aur. 24:72] This I write as a word which is generated in its heaven, where the holy Deity always generates itself and where the moving spirit rises up in the flash of life; even there this word and this knowledge is generated, and risen up in the love-fire through the zealous spirit of God.

[Aur. 24:73] I know very well what the Devil intends; for that part of the earnest and austere birth or geniture, wherein love and wrath are set opposite the one to the other, sees into his very heart. For when he comes with his fierce and hellish temptation, like a fawning dog, then he sets upon us with his wrath, in that part wherein the austere birth and geniture stands, and therein the heaven is set in opposition to him, and there the fair bride is known.

[Aur. 24:74] For he stings through the old man, with an intent to spoil or destroy the new; but when the new rises against him, then the hell-hound retires, and then the new man feels very well what advice or counsel the hell-hound has darted or spit into the astral birth, and then is it time for a clean sweep.

[Aur. 24:75] But I find that the most cunning devil is set against me; he will raise scorers and mockers, who will say that I intend by mine own conceit to grope, dig deep, and search out the Deity. Yes, Mr. Scornor, you are an obedient son to the Devil, you have great cause to mock God’s children. As if I were able, in mine own power, to fathom the depth of the Deity! No! But the Deity searches the ground in me: Or, do you think that I am strong enough to stand against it?

[Aur. 24:76] Indeed, you proud man, the Deity is a very meek, simple and, quiet still being, and gropes not in the bottom of hell and death, but in his heaven, where there is nothing but a unanimous meekness; therefore it is not meet for me to stand against it.

[Aur. 24:77] But behold! It is not I that have made way for this, but your desire and highly raised lofty lust has moved the Deity to reveal to you the desire of your heart, in the highest simplicity in the greatest depth, that it may be a witness against you, and a denunciation of the earnest severe day of God.

[Aur. 24:78] This I speak to you as a word of the earnest severity of God, which is generated or born in the flash of life.

Of the whole Body of the Stars and of their Birth or Geniture; that is, the whole Astrology, or the whole Body of this World.

[Aur. 25:1] THE learned and highly experienced masters of astrology, or the starry art, are come so high and deep in their understanding, that they know the course and effects of the stars, what their conjunction, influence, and breaking through of their powers and virtues denotes and produce; and how thereby wind, rain, snow, and heat are caused; also good and evil, prosperity and adversity, life and death, and all the drivings and agitations in this world.

[Aur. 25:2] Indeed it has a true foundation, which, in the spirit, I know to be so; but their knowledge stands only in the house of death, in the outward comprehensibility or palpability, and in the beholding with the eyes of the body; but the root of this tree has till now remained hidden from them.

[Aur. 25:3] Neither is it my purpose to write of the branches of the tree, and to invert or disprove their knowledge; neither do I build upon their ground, but I leave their knowledge to sit in its own seat, seeing I have not studied it. But, in the spirit of my knowledge, I write concerning the root, stock, branches and fruits of the tree, as an industrious and laborious servant to his master, in discovering the whole tree of this world.

[Aur. 25:4] Not with an intent to set on foot any new thing, for I have no command to do so; but my knowledge stands in this birth or geniture of the stars, in the midst or center, where the life is generated, and breaks through death, and where the moving spirit exists and breaks through; and in the impulse or moving thereof I also write.

[Aur. 25:5] Also I know very well that the children of the flesh will scorn and mock at me, and say I should look to my own calling, and not trouble my head about these things; but rather be diligent to bring in food for my family and myself, and let those meddle with philosophy that have studied it, and are called and appointed to it.

[Aur. 25:6] With such an attempt the Devil has given me so many assaults, and has so wearied me, that I have often resolved to let it alone; but my former purpose was too hard for me. For when I took care for the belly, and to get my living, and resolved to give over this business in hand, then the gate of heaven in my knowledge was bolted up.

[Aur. 25:7] Then my soul was so afflicted in anxiety, as if it were captivated by the Devil, whereby reason got so many checks and assaults, as if the body were presently to be destroyed or ruined, and the [my] spirit would not give over, till it brake through again, through the dead or mortal reason, and so has burst open the door of darkness, and has gotten its seat again in the stead thereof, whereby it got new life and power again.

[Aur. 25:8] Whereby I understand that the spirit must be tried through the cross and affliction, and I have not failed of bodily temptation, but was fain always to stand ready for an encounter, so much has the Devil set himself against this.

[Aur. 25:9] But since I perceive that my eternal salvation hangs upon this [i.e. the getting of new life and power] and that through my negligence [in case I were negligent], the gates of the light would be closed against me, which [light] is yet the firmament of my heaven wherein my soul hides from the stormings of the Devil, and which [light and heaven] also I won with great toil and hard assaults, through the love of God and by the breaking-through of my Redeemer.
and King, Jesus Christ, therefore am I willing to let God have his way and take captive my fleshy reason.

Though Body and Soul should fail,
God is his Refuge.

[Aur. 25:10] And I have chosen the gate of knowledge of the light, and will follow after the impulse and knowledge of the spirit, though my bestial body should be brought to beggary, or be destroyed or ruined. I regard none of these things, but will say with the royal prophet David, Though my body and soul should faint and fail, yet thou, O God, art my salvation, my comfort, and the refuge of my heart.264

[Aur. 25:11] In your name I will venture it, and will not strive against your spirit; though it may hurt the flesh, yet faith in the knowledge of the light must move and soar above reason.

[Aur. 25:12] I know also very well, that it is not fit for the disciple to fight against his Master. And I know that the high experienced masters of astrology do far exceed me in their way. But I labor in my calling, and they in theirs, lest I should be found a lazy idle servant to my Lord, at his coming, when he will demand the talent he has entrusted me with; but that I may present it to him with usury or profit and gain.

[Aur. 25:13] Therefore I will not bury his talent in the earth, but lend it out upon usury or interest, lest he should say to me at that time of his requiring it of me, You wicked, slothful servant, why have you hid my talent in the darkness, and did not put it out upon use, and so now I might have received it with usury, gain, and profit? For then he would take it quite away from me, and give it to another, who has gained many talents with his one. Therefore I will sow; let him water it, I leave the care to him.

[Aur. 25:14] The whole house of this world, which stands in a visible and comprehensible or palpable being, is the old house of God, or the old body, which stood before the time of wrath in a heavenly clarity and brightness. But when the Devil stirred up the wrath therein, then it became a house of darkness and of death.

[Aur. 25:15] Therefore then also the holy birth or geniture of God, as a special body of itself, separated itself from the wrath, and made the firmament of heaven, between the love and the wrath, so that the birth or geniture of the stars stands in the middle. Understand it thus; viz. with its outward comprehensibility and visibility it stands in the wrath of death; and with the new birth rising up therein, which stands in the middle or central seat, where the closure of heaven is, it stands in the meekness of the life.

[Aur. 25:16] For meekness moves against the wrath, and the wrath against the meekness, and so both are distinct kingdoms in the one only body of this world.

[Aur. 25:17] But seeing the love and meekness of God would not leave the body or place of this kindled wrath-world sticking in eternal wrath and ignominy, therefore he generated the whole old body of this world again into a rectified reformed body, wherein life did rule in a divine manner and way; though it be in the kindled wrath, yet it must subsist according to the right of the Deity, so that out of it a new body might be generated, which should subsist in holiness and purity in eternity.

[Aur. 25:18] For which cause there is appointed in God a day of separation, on which love and wrath shall be separated asunder.

What is called the Corrupted Nature.

[Aur. 25:19] Now when you behold the stars, and the deep, together with the earth, then you see with your bodily eyes nothing else but the old body in the wrathful death; you cannot see heaven with your bodily eyes, for the blue or azure sphere which you see above is not the heaven, but is only the old body, which may be justly called the corrupted nature.

[Aur. 25:20] There seems to be a blue or azure sphere above the stars, whereby the place of this world is closed and shut out from the holy heaven, as men have thought to this time; yet it is not so, but it is the superior water of nature, which is much brighter than the water below the moon. And now when the sun shines through the deep, then it is as it were of a light-blue or azure color.

[Aur. 25:21] But how deep or how large the place of this world is, no man knows, though some physicists or astrologers have undertaken to measure the deep with their measures of circles; their measuring is but conjectural, or a measuring of somewhat that is comprehensible or palpable; as if a man would grasp the wind in his fist.

[Aur. 25:22] But the true heaven is everywhere all over, to this very time, and till the Last Judgment Day; and the wrath-house of hell and of death is also in this world everywhere, even to the Last Judgment Day.

[Aur. 25:23] But the dwelling of the devils is now from the moon to the earth, and in the earth, in the deep caves and holes thereof; especially in wildernesses and desert places, and where the earth is foil of stones and bitterness.

[Aur. 25:24] But their kingly regimen or government is in the deep, in the four coasts or quarters of the equinoctial line or circle, of which I will write in another place.

[Aur. 25:25] But here I will show you:

1. How the body of this world came to be; and

2. How it is at present; and then,

3. How the regimen or government therein is.

[Aur. 25:26] The whole body of this world is as a man’s body, for it is surrounded in its utmost circle with the stars and risen powers of nature; and in that body the seven spirits of nature govern, and the heart of nature stands in the midst or center.

[Aur. 25:27] But the stars in general are, and signify, the wonderful proportion or changing variety of God. For when God created the stars, he created them out of the rising up of the infinity, out of the old body of God then further kindled.

[Aur. 25:28] For as the seven spirits of God had, before the time of the wrath, generated themselves infinitely by their rising up and by their influences (where rose up so many several varieties of figures and heavenly ideas or vegetations), so also the holy God figured his old body of this corrupted nature into as many and various powers as ever stood in the birth or geniture in the holiness.

Understand this high thing rightly.

[Aur. 25:29] Every star has a several peculiar property, which you may perceive by the curious ornament of the budding, blossoming earth. And the Creator has therefore rebuilt and revived again the old kindled body into so many and various powers, that through this old life, in the wrath, such a new life might generate itself therein, through the closure of heaven, that that new life might have all the powers and operations that ever the old had before the times of wrath, that it might qualify, mix or unite with the pure Deity, distinct from this world, and that it might be one holy God, together with the Deity without, distinct from this world.

[Aur. 25:30] Also the new birth blossomed in the time of the creation, when man had not spoiled or corrupted it; but by him nature was still more corrupted; and so God cursed the ground. But seeing man took hold of the fruit of the old body, thereupon the fruit of the new body was hidden in its heaven, and man must now behold it with the new body, and cannot partake of it with the natural body.

[Aur. 25:31] Of which I have a great longing to eat, but I cannot reach to it, for heaven is the closure or firmament between the old body and the new. And therefore I must let it alone, till I come into the other life, and must give my bestial body mother Eve’s wrath-apples to eat.

Concerning the Kindling of the Heart or Life of this World.

[Aur. 25:32] When, in two days, God had brought the body of this world into a right form, and had made the heaven for a partition between the love and the wrath, then, on the third day, the love pressed through the heaven and through the wrath, and instantly the old body in death stirred and moved itself to the birth or geniture.

[Aur. 25:33] For the love is hot, and that kindled the fire-source or quality, and that rubbed itself in the astringent and cold quality of the benumbed death, till the astringent quality was heated on the third day, whereby the mobility or the astringent earth became moveable.

[Aur. 25:34] For all stood in the fire-crack till the fourth day, and then the light of the sun kindled itself; for the whole body stood in anguish or pain in the birth, as a woman in travail.

[Aur. 25:35] The astringent quality was the encompasser or encloser of the life; therein was the heat now anxious, which was kindled through the love of God, and did drive out the astringent quality as a dead body; but the heat retained its seat in the midst or center of the body, and so pressed through.

[Aur. 25:36] But when the light of the sun kindled itself then the next circle or orb above the sun stood in the fire-crack, (for the sun or the light was shining in the water), and the bitterness ascended also in the fire-crack out of the water. But the light made very great haste after it, and laid hold on the fire-crack; and there it remained as a captive, and became corporeal.

Of Mars.

[Aur. 25:37] In this revolution the planet Mars came to be, whose power stands in the bitter fire-crack, for Mars is a tyrant, rager, raver and stormer, like a fire-crack; moreover it is hot, and a poisonous, venomous enemy of nature; through whose rising up and birth or geniture in the earth all manner of poisonous, venomous, evil worms and vermin are come to be.

[Aur. 25:38] But seeing the heat in the middle point or center of the body was so mighty great, thereupon it extended itself so very largely, and opened the chamber of death so wide before its kindling of the light, that it (the SUN) is the greatest star.

[Aur. 25:39] But as soon as the light kindled itself in the heat, so instantly was that hot place caught in the light, and then the body of the sun could grow no bigger. For the light mitigated the heat, and so the body of the sun remained there in the midst or center as a heart; for the light is the heart of nature, not the heat.
But here you must observe exactly.

[Aur. 25:40] As far as the middle point or center has kindled itself, just so big is the sun; for the sun is nothing else but a kindled point in the body of nature.

[Aur. 25:41] You must not think that there is any other power or virtue in it, or belonging to it, than there is in the whole deep of the body everywhere, all over.

[Aur. 25:42] For should the love of God, through its heaven, kindle the whole body of this world through the heat, it would be everywhere all over as light as it now is in the sun.

[Aur. 25:43] Now if the great heat were taken away from the sun, then it would be one light with God; but seeing in this time that cannot be, therefore it remains a king and regent in the old corrupted and kindled body of nature; and the clear Deity remains hidden in the meek heaven.

[Aur. 25:44] But the light of the meekness of the sun qualifies, mixes or unites with the pure Deity; but the heat cannot comprehend the light, and therefore, also the place of the sun remains in the body of God's wrath, and you must not worship, nor pray to nor honor the sun as God, for its place or body cannot apprehend the water of life, because of the fierceness in the sun.

The highest Ground of the SUN, and of ALL the PLANETS.

[Aur. 25:45] Here I shall have adversaries enough who will be ready to censure me, for they will not have regard to consider the spirit, but will mind their old rules, and say, Astrologers, who have written of such matters, understand it better; and my adversaries will look on the great open gate as a cow looks on a new barn door.

[Aur. 25:46] Dear Reader, I understand the astrologers’ meanings and sayings full well, and I have perused their writings also, and taken notice how they describe the course of the sun and stars, neither do I despise it, but, for the most part, hold that to be good and right.

[Aur. 25:47] But that in some things I write otherwise than they, I do it not out of self-will or conceit and supposition, doubting whether it be so or no. I dare not make any doubt herein; neither can any man instruct me herein.

[Aur. 25:48] I have not my knowledge by study; indeed I have read the order and position of the seven planets in the books of astrologers, and find them to be very right; but the root, how the planets came to be, and from what they are proceeded, I cannot learn from any man; for they know it not, neither was I present when God created the planets.

[Aur. 25:49] But seeing the doors of the deep, and the gates of wrath, and the chambers of death also, are, through the love of God, set open in my spirit, therefore the spirit must necessarily look through them.

[Aur. 25:50] Accordingly I find, that the birth or geniture of nature stands to this day, and generates itself, just so as it did when it first took its beginning; and whatsoever rises up in this world, whether men, beasts, trees, herbs, grass, mineral ores, or be it what it will, all rises up in such a quality, manner and form as it first did; also every life, be it good or bad, takes its original thus [as it did from the beginning].

[Aur. 25:51] For this is the right or law of the Deity: that every life in the body of God should generate itself in one manner or uniform way; though it be done through many various imagings, yet the life has one uniform way and original in all.

[Aur. 25:52] I see not this knowledge with my fleshly eyes, but with those eyes wherein life generates itself in me; in that seat the gates of heaven and hell stand open to me, and the new man speculates into the midst or center of the astral birth or geniture, and to him the inner and outermost gate stands open.

How the Eye of the Lord beholds all.

[Aur. 25:53] While he yet sticks in the old man of wrath and death, and sits also in his heaven, he sees through both; in such a manner also he sees the stars and elements. For in God there is no place of hindrance; for the eye of the LORD beholds all.

[Aur. 25:54] Now if my spirit did not see through his spirit, then I were but a blind stock; but seeing I see the gates of God in my spirit, and have the impulse to do it, I will therefore write directly according as I have seen it, and will not regard any man’s authority.

[Aur. 25:55] You must not conceive it so, as if my old man were a living saint or angel. No, Friend, he sits with all men in the house of wrath and of death, and is a constant enemy to God, and sticks in his sins, wickedness and malice, as all men do, and is full of faults, defects and infirmities.

[Aur. 25:56] But you must know this: that he sticks in a continual, anxious birth or geniture, but would fain be rid of the wrath and wickedness, and yet cannot. For he is as the whole house of this world, wherein love and wrath always wrestle the one with the other, and the new body always generates itself in the midst or center of the anguish. For so it must be, if you will be born anew, otherwise no man can reach the regeneration.

[Aur. 25:57] In this world man is always seeking for soft days of ease for the flesh, and after riches, beauty and bravery, and knows not that he sits therewith in the chamber of death, where the sting of wrath darts into him.

[Aur. 25:58] Behold! I tell this to you, as a word of life, which I receive in the knowledge of the spirit, in the midst or center in the birth or geniture of the new body of this world, over which the Man JESUS CHRIST is Ruler and King, together with his eternal Father.

How the Desire of the Flesh is the Lake of Hellish Wrath.

[Aur. 25:59] Also, I receive it from before the seat of his throne, where all holy souls of men stand before him, and rejoice before him; and I tell you that the desire of the flesh in soft pleasingness, to be rich, to be handsome, beautiful and fair, or to be mighty or potent, is a very bath or lake of hellish wrath, into which you crowd and run, as if you were drawn in with cart-ropes; for there is very great danger therein.

[Aur. 25:60] But if you would know how it is, behold, I will tell you in a parable or similitude: When you are pressed, according to the desire of your heart, into riches and power, then it is with you as if you stood in a deep water, where the water always stands up to your very mouth, and you feel no ground under your feet, but you swim with your hands and struggle to protect or save yourself; now you are in deep water, now above water again, yet always in a great terror and danger, expecting to sink down to the bottom, the water often coming into your mouth, and always expecting death.

[Aur. 25:61] Just in this manner, and no other, you sit, when you are in the pleasures of the flesh; if you will not fight, you cannot look for any victory, but you will be murdered in your soft bed of down. For man has a continual host or army before him, which fight with him continually; if he will not defend himself, then he is taken captive and slain.

[Aur. 25:62] But how can he that swims in deep water defend himself? He has enough to do to protect himself from the water; and yet nevertheless he is assaulted by the devils.
O danger upon danger! As our King Christ also says; It is very hard for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of heaven. A camel will easier go through the eye of a needle, than a rich man enter into the kingdom of heaven.

But if any will be new born again, he must not yield himself to be a servant to covetousness, pride, state and self-power, to take delight in the will or desires of his flesh; but he must struggle and fight against himself against the Devil, and against all lusts of the flesh; and he must think and consider that he is but a servant and pilgrim on earth, who must wander through many miserable seas of danger into another world; and there he will be a lord, and his dominion will consist in power, and in perfect delight, beauty and brightness; this I tell as the word of the spirit.

The Annual Motion of the Earth round about the Sun.

Now observe:

The SUN has its own royal place to itself, and does not go away from that place where it came to be at the first. Some suppose that it runs round about the globe of the earth in a day and a night; and some of the astrologers also write so; and some have undertaken to measure how far its orb and circumference of its supposed motion is.

This opinion or supposition is not right, but the earth rolls itself about; and runs with the other planets, as in a wheel, round about the sun. The earth does not remain staying in one place, but in a year runs round once about the sun, as the other planets next the sun, but Saturn and Jupiter, as also Mars, by reason of their great orb, circumference, and great height, cannot do it [in a year], because they stand so high above, and far distant from the SUN.

Now it may be asked, What is the SUN, and what are the other PLANETS? Or how are they come to be?

Behold! The other planets are peculiar bodies of their own, which have a corporeal propriety of themselves, and are not bound to any settled or fixed place, but only to their circle, orb or sphere wherein they run their course. But the SUN is not such a body, but is only a place or locality kindled by the light of God.

Understand it aright.

The place where the SUN is, is such a place as you may choose or suppose anywhere above the earth; and if God should kindle the light by the heat, then the whole world would be such a mere SUN; for that same power wherein the sun stands is everywhere all over; and before the time of wrath it was everywhere all over in the place of this world as light as the sun now is, but not so intolerable.

For that heat was not so great as in the sun, and therefore the light was also very meek; and thus, in respect of the horrible fierceness of the sun, the sun is differenced or distinguished from the meekness of God. So that man should not dare to say that the sun is an open gate of the light of God; but it is as the light in a man’s eye, whereas also the place of the eye belongs to the body, but the light is different or distinct from the body.

Though indeed the light exists by the heat in the water of the body, yet it is a peculiar, distinct thing, which the body cannot comprehend; and such a distinct difference there is also between God the Father and God the Son.

Thus on the fourth day, in the anxious birth or geniture of this world, in the middle point or center of this world, the SUN is sprung up, and stands still in its eternal, corporeal place; for it cannot rise up in one place, and set in another.

The Aurora by Jacob Boehme

[Aur. 25:72] For it is the only and sole natural light of this world, and besides it there is no more any true light in the house of death; and though it seems as if the other stars did shine bright and give light also, yet it is not so, but they take all their luster and shining light from the sun; as hereafter presently follows.

The true Birth or Geniture and Descent of the Sun and Planets is just thus, as follows.

[Aur. 25:73] Now when the heaven was made for a distinction or partition between the light of God and the kindled corruption of the body of this world, then was the body of this world a dark valley, and had no light besides the heaven that could have shone forth in the outward body; all powers stood as it were captivated in death, and were in great anguish, till they had heated themselves in the midst or center of the body.

[Aur. 25:74] But when this was done, so that the anxious birth or geniture stood so severely in the heat, then the love in the light of God brake through the heaven of the partition, and kindled the heat.

[Aur. 25:75] And there rose up the shining light in the heat in the water, or in the fat or oiliness of the water, and the heart of the water kindled itself, and this was done in the twinkling of an eye.

[Aur. 25:76] For as soon as the light had rightly laid hold on the body, the body was captivated in the light; and the heat was captivated, and was changed into a moderate, tolerable or suitable meekness, and could stand or extend no longer in such anguish.

[Aur. 25:77] But seeing the heat was so terrified by the light, thereupon its horrible fire-source was allayed, and so could kindle itself no further; and so also the breaking through of the love in the light of God through the heaven at this time, with its breaking through, extended or stretched itself no further out of, or from God’s predestinated purpose; therefore also the SUN came to be no bigger.

Of the Planet Mars.

[Aur. 25:78] But when the sun was kindled, then the horrible fire-crack went forth upwards from the place of the sun, beyond the place of the sun, as a horrible tempestuous flash, and in its corporeal being took along with it the fierceness of the fire, whereby the water became very bitter, and the water is the kernel or stock of the crack.

[Aur. 25:79] Now the astrologers write, that the planet Mars stands aloft about 15,750 miles off from the sun; which I contradict not, because I meddle not with the measuring of circles. And so far the swift fire-crack went forth [travelled] from its own place till the light also laid hold on it, and then it also was captivated by the light, and stayed and took possession of that place.

[Aur. 25:80] But that the light could not lay hold of it sooner was caused by the earnest fierceness and sudden flash, for it was not taken hold of by the light before the light had wholly or thoroughly affected or possessed it.

[Aur. 25:81] And there it is now, as a tyrant, rager and stirrer of the whole body of this world; for that is its very office, that with its revolution in the wheel of nature it moves and stirs all, from where every life takes its original.

Of the Planet Jupiter.

[Aur. 25:82] Now when the bitter fire-crack was captivated by the light, then the light in its own power pressed yet higher in the deep, till it reached into the hard and cold seat of nature.
And there the power of the first going forth or rising up from the sun could not get higher, but sitting, stayed there corporeally, and took possession of that place for a habitation.

But you must understand this Thing aright.

[Aur. 25:83] It was the power of the light which stayed in this place, and which is a very meek, friendly, gracious, amiable, blessed and sweet being. The astrologers write that this planet is distant aloft above Mars about 7875 miles. But it is the mitigator of the destroying, furious, raging, raving Mars, and an original of the meekness in every life; an original also of the water, from which the life generates itself, as I shall mention hereafter.

[Aur. 25:84] Thus far the power of the life reached forth from the sun, and not higher; but the luster or shining thereof, which has its power also, reaches even to the stars, and through the whole body of this world.

But you must understand this exactly, from where these two Plants are come to be.

[Aur. 25:85] When the power of the heart of God pressed forth out of the eternal inexhaustible fountain of the water of life, through the heaven of the partition, and kindled the water in the place of the sun, then the flash, understand the fire-flash, did shoot forth or went forth out of the water, which was very terrible and bitter, and out of which Mars came to be.

[Aur. 25:86] After this flash the power of the light shot nimbly after it, like a meek elevated life, and overtook the fire-crack, and mitigated it, so that it became somewhat weaker, and could break no farther through the deep, but stayed trembling.

[Aur. 25:87] But the power that was gone forth in the light had more strength than the fire-crack, and so it rose up higher than the fire-crack, Mars, till it came very deep into nature’s austerity, and there it became feeble also, and stayed there.

[Aur. 25:88] From or out of this power the planet Jupiter came to be, and not out of or from that place where he is, but it [Jupiter] always kindles that very place with its power; but it is as one of the household servants in that place, who must always walk about in the place of its office and service. But the sun has a house of its own; but no other planet has any house of its own.

[Aur. 25:89] If we would rightly search into the original of the birth and geniture of the stars, or into their beginning, then we must exactly know the birth or geniture of the life, viz. how the life generates itself in a body; for all these are one kind of birth or geniture.

[Aur. 25:90] He that does not know nor understand this, he does not at all know the birth of the stars, for all, concreted together, is one body. When once life is generated in any creature, the creature’s life stands or subsists afterwards in the creature’s own body, as the birth or geniture of the natural body of this world stands or subsists in its own body; for every life must be generated according to the right, law or ordinance of the Deity, as the Deity generates itself continually.

[Aur. 25:91] If this be rightly considered, which, indeed, cannot be done without a special illumination of the holy God, then, before he finds anything else, a man finds the astringent, cold and austere birth or geniture, which is the cause of the corporeal nature, or of the imaging, fashioning or framing of a thing.

[Aur. 25:92] Now if it were not for this severe, and cold sharp contracting, compacting power, there would be no natural or corporeal being, neither could the birth or geniture of God subsist, and all would be unsearchable.
[Aur. 25:93] But in this hard, severe and cold power stands [i.e. consists] the corporeal essence or the body, wherein the spirit of life generates itself; and out of that same spirit the light and the understanding [generate themselves]; and then through these the senses and the trial or testing of all powers arises.

[Aur. 25:94] For when the light is generated, it is generated in the midst or center of the body, as a heart or spirit out of all powers; and there it stands and remains in the place where it had its beginning, and goes forth through all the powers.

[Aur. 25:95] For as it is generated out of all powers, and has the fountain of all powers, so with its shining luster it also brings the fountain of all powers into each power; from where then exists the taste and smell, also seeing, feeling and hearing; as also reason and understanding.

[Aur. 25:96] Now, as the original and beginning of the life is, in a creature, so is the senses of the heart; for from the heart all powers rise up into the brain, from where then exists the taste and smell, also seeing, feeling and hearing; as also reason and understanding.

[Aur. 25:97] I. For behold! You cannot deny that the life in a creature exists in the heat of the heart; and in that life also stands the light of the animated or soulish birth or geniture.

[Aur. 25:98] Now the heart signifies the sun, which is the beginning of life in the outward body of this world. Now, while the body stands in the mobility or life, you cannot say that the animated or soulish birth goes away or departs from the heart.

[Aur. 25:99] No more does the sun go away or depart from its seat, but retains and keeps its own place to itself, as a heart; and shines forth as a light, or as a spirit of the whole body of this world, in all powers of the body.

[Aur. 25:100] For its birth also has a beginning out of all powers, and therefore with its light and heat it is again one spirit and heart in the whole body of this world.

[Aur. 25:101] II. Further, you cannot deny either, that the gall in a creature is not existed from the heart, and yet it is the mobility or stirring of the heart, by a vein that goes from the gall to the heart; from where the heat exists. But it has its first original from the flash of life, and so when the life generates itself in the heart, and the light rises up in the water, then the fire-crack goes before, which rises up out of the anxiety of the water in the heat.

[Aur. 25:102] For when the heat is so anxious in the cold in the astringent quality, that the light kindles itself through the hidden heaven of the heart in the corporeity, then the anxious death in the wrath of God is terrified, and departs as a crack or flash from the light, and climbs upwards very terribly, trembling, and timorously; and the light of the heart hastens after it, and affects or possesses it, and then it remains at a standstill.

[Aur. 25:103] This is, and signifies, the planet Mars, for thus is [or has] Mars come into being; and its own quality is nothing else but a poisonous, venomous, bitter fire-crack, which is risen up from the place of the sun.

[Aur. 25:104] But now it is always a kindler of the sun, just as the gall is a kindler of the heart; where the heat, both in the sun and in the heart, exists, and where the life takes its original in all things.

[Aur. 25:105] III. Thirdly, you cannot deny that the brain in the head in a creature is the power of the heart; for from the heart all powers rise up into the brain, from which, in the brain, the senses of the heart exist. The brain in the head takes its original from the power of the heart.

Now observe:
[Aur. 25:106] After the fire-crack of the gall, or Mars, was departed from the light of life, then the power pressed out of the heart after it, through the light of life, even into the head, into the austere quality; and when the power can rise up no higher, then it is stayed or captivated by the austere birth, and is dried up by the cold.

[Aur. 25:107] Now here it stays, and qualifies, mixes or unites with the spirit of life in the heart, and is a royal seat of the spirit of the heart; for thus far the spirit of the heart’s power presses forth, and there is it approved.

[Aur. 25:108] For the brain sits in the severe birth or geniture, and in its own body it is the meek power of the heart, and signifies the new birth, which is new regenerated in the midst or center of the austereness of death and wrath, in its heaven, and presses forth through death into life.

[Aur. 25:109] For there the spirit or the thoughts become a whole creaturely person again, through the affecting or proving of all powers, which in man I call the animated or soulish birth.

[Aur. 25:110] For when the new spirit in the brain is well settled, then it goes to its mother again, into the heart; and then it stands as a perfect spirit or will, or as a new-born person, which, in man, is called the soul.

[Aur. 25:111] Now behold! As the brain in man is a being and product, so also is the planet Jupiter a being and product; for it has its original from the rising up of life, from the power which is risen up out of the water of life, out of the place of the sun, through the light.

[Aur. 25:112] And that power is risen up so high, that it is caught or captivated again in or by the austere, hard and cold power; and there it remains at a stand; and by the first revolution or going forth is become corporeal, and became exsiccated or dried by the austere and cold power.

[Aur. 25:113] And it is rightly the brain in the corporeal government of this world, from which the senses and the reason are generated, also all meekness and wisdom in natural things; but the right and Holy Spirit in man is generated in the hidden heaven in the water of life.

[Aur. 25:114] The outward Jupiter is only the meekness and understanding in the outward comprehensibility or palpable things; but the holy fountain or well-spring is incomprehensible and unsearchable or unfathomable to outward reason. For the astral birth or geniture stands only as to its root in the holy heavens, and as to its corporeity [it stands] in the wrath.
CHAPTER 26

Of the Planet Saturnus.

[Aur. 26:1] SATURN, that cold, sharp, austere and astringent regent, takes its beginning and original not from the sun; for Saturn has in its power the chamber of death, and is a drier up of all powers, from where corporeity exists.

[Aur. 26:2] For as the sun is the heart of the life, and an original of all spirits in the body of this world, so Saturn is a beginner of all corporeity and comprehensibility or palpability. In the power of these two planets stands the whole body of this world; and there cannot be any creature, nor any imaging, in the natural body of this world, nor any mobility, without the power of these two.

[Aur. 26:3] But Saturn’s original is the earnest, astringent and austere anxiety of the whole body of this world; for as, in the time of the kindling of the wrath, the light in the outermost birth or geniture of this world was extinct, (which birth or geniture is the nature or comprehensibility, or the rising up of the birth of all qualifying or fountain spirits), so also the astringent quality stood in its sharpness and severe birth or geniture, and attracted or contracted most strongly and eagerly the whole work or effect of the qualifying or fountain spirits.

[Aur. 26:4] From where the earth and stones then came to be, and were very rightly the house of death, or the enclosing or shutting up of the life, wherein king Lucifer was captivated.

[Aur. 26:5] But when, on the first day, the light somewhat broke forth again, through the Word or Heart of God in the root of the nature of the body of this world, as a choosing or appropriating of the day, or as a beginning of the mobility of life, then the severe and astringent birth or geniture again obtained a glimpse or rising up of the life in the birth or geniture.

[Aur. 26:6] From that time the astringent birth stood as it were in an anxious death, till after the third day, when the love of God pressed through the heaven of the partition, and kindled the light of the sun.

[Aur. 26:7] But seeing the heart or power of the sun could not open the anxious birth or quality of fierceness and wrath, and temper the same, especially as it could not do so aloft in that height above Jupiter, thereupon that whole circumference or sphere stood in a horrible anxiety, just as a woman in travail; and yet could not awaken or raise the heat, because of the horrible coldness and astringency.

[Aur. 26:8] But, nevertheless, seeing the mobility was risen up through the power of the hidden heaven, therefore nature could not rest, but was in anguish to the birth, and generated out of or from the spirit of sharpness an astringent, cold and austere sun or star, which is Saturn.

[Aur. 26:9] For the spirit of heat where the light arises (and out of the light, through the water, the love and meekness), could not kindle itself; but there was a birth or geniture of an austere, cold and severe fierceness, which is a, drier, a spoiler and an enemy of meekness, and which in the creatures generates the hard bones.

[Aur. 26:10] But Saturn was not bound to its place, as the sun is, for it is not a corporeal place or space in the room of the deep; but Saturn is a son which is born or generated out of the chamber of death, out of the kindled, hard and cold anxiety, and is only one of the household or family in that space or room in which it has its course and revolution. For it has its corporeal propriety to itself, as a child, when the child is born or generated from the mother. (“Saturn, indeed, was created together with the wheel, when the FIAT created the wheel; but it does not go forth or proceed from Sol.”)

[Aur. 26:11] But why it did rise up thus from God out of the austere birth, and what its office is, I will mention hereafter, concerning the driving about, or revolution, of the planets.

[Aur. 26:12] But its height or distance cannot be exactly known. But I am fully persuaded that it is in the midst, in the deep between Jupiter and the general sphere of the fixed stars or constellations, for it is the heart of the corporeity in nature.

[Aur. 26:13] For as the sun is the heart of life, and a cause of the spirits of nature, so Saturn is the heart and the cause of all bodies and imagings, formings and framings in the earth, and upon the earth, as also in the whole body of this world.

[Aur. 26:14] And as in man the skull is a container or encloser of the brain, wherein the thoughts are generated, so the Saturnine power is an environer, drier and container of all corporeity and comprehensibility or palpability.

[Aur. 26:15] And as the planet Jupiter, which is an unlocker and generator of meekness, is between the fierce Mars and the austere Saturn, and generates the meekness and wisdom in the creatures, so the life and the senses of all creatures are generated between these two qualities; especially the new body of this world, as also the new man; of which you will find more concerning the description of man.

Of the Planet Venus.

[Aur. 26:16] Venus, that gracious, amiable and blessed planet, or the kindler of love in nature, has also its original and descent or proceeding from the springing up of the sun; but its condition, quality, being and proceeding or descent is thus:

Here observe this rightly and exactly.

[Aur. 26:17] When the love of God kindled the place of the sun, or the SUN, then, out of the anxiety, out of the place of the sun, out of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of nature, there sprang up, first, the terrible, fierce, bitter fire-crack, whose birth and principal or first original is the kindled bitter wrath of God, in the astringent quality, through the water.

[Aur. 26:18] That sprang up first, in the kindling of the sun out of the chamber of death, and was an awakener or rouser of death, and a beginner of life, and climbed up aloft very fiercely, and trembling, till the light of the sun laid hold on it, and affected or possessed it; and there it was caught or captivated by the meekness of the light, and stayed; from which the planet Mars came to be.

[Aur. 26:19] After that fire-crack had taken place the power of the light, which at the beginning had generated itself out of the unctuosity or fatness of the water behind the fire-crack, instantly shot forth after it, like a mighty potency or power, and took the fierce fire-crack captive, and highly elevated itself aloft beyond it, as a prince and subduer of the fierceness, from where now arose the sensibility of nature, or the planet Jupiter.

The Gate of Love.

[Aur. 26:20] But when the two spirits, the spirit of the mobility and the spirit of the life, were risen up out of the place of the sun, through the kindling of the water, then the meekness, as a seed of the water, pressed downward in the chamber of death, with the power of light, with a very gentle and friendly affection or influence; from where existed the love of life, or the planet Venus.
But you must here understand this high Thing.

[Aur. 26:21] The birth, or the rising or springing up of the seven planets, and of all the stars, is no otherwise than as the life, and wonderful proportion, variety and harmony of the Deity, has generated itself from eternity.

[Aur. 26:22] For when king Lucifer had caused this place of the world to be appointed as a house of wrath for himself, and supposed thus fiercely and powerfully to rule therein, then instantly the light in nature went out, wherein he supposed to be lord; and the whole nature was benumbed and congealed as a body of death, wherein was no mobility; and he must remain there in darkness, as an eternal, captive prisoner.

[Aur. 26:23] But now the holy God would not let this place of his body (understand the space or room of this world) stand in eternal darkness and ignominy, and leave it to the devils for their proper own, but generated a new regimen or dominion of light, and of all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits of the Deity; which the Devil could neither apprehend, nor lay hold on, nor touch; neither was it useful or profitable to him at all.

[Aur. 26:24] But he can no more see in the light of the sun, for he can see in the darkness alone; for he is not become a creature in this light, and therefore it is not profitable or useful to him.

[Aur. 26:25] But seeing there must be a new government or dominion, it must of necessity be such a one as the Devil could not touch nor lay hold on, nor make use of as his corporeal proper own.

How Christ is the Light of the World.

Now that Government or Dominion is thus constituted.

[Aur. 26:26] The Love, or Word, or Heart, that is, the innate or only begotten Son of the Father, who is the light and meekness, and the love and joy of the Deity (as he himself said, when he had assumed the humanity, I am the light of the world), he himself took the place of this world by the heart, and sat in the midst or center of this space or room, in that place where the mighty prince and king Lucifer did sit before his fall, and there the only begotten Son was new born to be a creature.

[Aur. 26:27] And so out of this kindled place of the sun there existed and were chiefly generated six sorts of qualities, all according to the right, law or order of the divine birth or geniture.

[Aur. 26:28] I. First, there arose the fire-crack, or the mobility in the heat; and that is the beginning of life in the chamber of death.

II. After this, secondly, the light in the unctuosity or fatness of the water became shining in the heat; and that is now the sun.

III. Thirdly, when now the light of the sun had affected or possessed the whole body of the sun, then the power of life, which rose up out of the first affecting or possessing, ascended, as when wood is kindled, or when fire is struck out of a stone.

[Aur. 26:29] Then first is discerned the glance or splendour, and out of the splendour the fire-crack, and after the fire-crack the power of the kindled body; and the light, with the power of the body, elevates itself instantly above the crack, and rules or reigns much higher, deeper and more powerfully than the fire-crack.
What is the Divine Being.

[Aur. 26:30] Also the power of the kindled body, in the outgone power without and beyond the fire, qualifies, mixes or unites gently, pleasantly, and very sensibly; and herein rightly is understood the divine being.

[Aur. 26:31] In the same manner also is the existency of the sun, and of the two planets, Mars and Jupiter.

[Aur. 26:32] But since the place of the sun (that is, the sun) had in itself (as also had all other places) all qualities according to the right of the Deity, thereupon instantly, in the first kindling, all the qualities went upwards and downwards, and generated themselves according to the eternal, beginning-less, infinite law and right.

[Aur. 26:33] For the power of the light, which did mitigate the astringent and bitter quality in the place of the sun, and made it thin like water, or like the love of life; that power lowered itself, according to the nature of humility.

[Aur. 26:34] Out of this the planet Venus existed; for in the house of death Venus is an opener of meekness, or a kindler of the water, and a soft penetrator into the hardness, a kindler of the love, in which the upper regimen or dominion, viz., the bitter heat, is desirous or longing after Mars, and the hearty sensibility is desirous or longing after Jupiter.

[Aur. 26:35] From where the affections or insinuations exist; for the power of Venus makes fierce Mars or the fire-crack mild, and mitigates it, and makes Jupiter humble, else the power of Jupiter would break through the hard chamber, Saturn; and in men and beasts would break through the skull or brain-pan; and so the sensibility would transmute itself into high-mindedness above the birth-right, or right, law or order of the geniture of the Deity, in the manner and way of the proud devil.

Of the Planet Mercurius.

[Aur. 26:36] If we would exactly and fundamentally know how, in the deep of this world, the birth or beginning is of the planets and stars, and of the essence of all beings, we must accurately consider the instant or innate birth, or the beginning of life, in man.

[Aur. 26:37] For that life takes such a beginning and rising, and stands also in such an order, as does the birth or geniture of the essence of all beings in the body of this world.

[Aur. 26:38] For the instant or innate wheel of the stars and planets is no otherwise than as the birth of the seventh spirit of nature, before the time of the world rose up, wherein were formed images and figures, forms, shapes or ideas, as also heavenly fruits, according to the eternal right, law or order of the Deity.

[Aur. 26:39] Thus, because man is created according to the qualifying or fountain spirits of God, and also out of the divine essence, therefore has man’s life such a beginning and rising up as that of the planets and stars has been.

[Aur. 26:40] For the beginning, instant or innate state and being of the planets and stars is not otherwise than as the beginning and impulse or government and dominion in man.

[Aur. 26:41] Now in the same way that the human life rises up, so also in that way has the birth of the seven planets and stars risen and sprung up; and therein, there is no difference at all.
The Center or Circle of the Birth of Life.

The great Depth.

[Aur. 26:42] The spirit cites the physicians to come before this looking-glass; especially anatomists and dissectors of men, who by their anatomy would learn the birth and rising or springing up of man's life, and who have murdered many innocent men, against the right and law of God and of nature, hoping thereby to find out the wonderful proportion, harmony and form of nature, that they might thereby be useful in restoring the health of others.

[Aur. 26:43] But seeing in nature they are found to be murderers, and malefactors against the law and right of God and nature, therefore the spirit, which qualifies, mixes or unites with God, does not justify them in their murderous way.

[Aur. 26:44] They might have had a nearer and surer way to learn the wonderful birth or geniture of nature, if their lofty high-mindedness, and devilish, murderous curiosity had given them leave, but these have perverted their true divine senses or understandings.

[Aur. 26:45] Their intent was only to fight with men, and not with gods, therefore it is just they should receive such a reward of their error.

[Aur. 26:46] Come on, you crowned ornaments of caps and hoods, etc. Let us see whether a simple layman may be able, in the knowledge of God, to search into the birth or geniture of man's life. If it be amiss, then reject it; if it be right, then let it stand.

[Aur. 26:47] I here set down this description of the birth or geniture of man's life, to the end that the original of the stars and planets may be the better conceived. In the description of the creation of man you will find all, more fundamentally and deeply, what the beginning of man is.

Now observe:

[Aur. 26:48] The seed of man is generated in such a manner as the wonderful proportion, harmony or form of nature in its wrestling and rising up is generated, from eternity.

[Aur. 26:49] For the human flesh is and resembles nature in the body of God, which is generated from the other six qualifying or fountain spirits, wherein the qualifying or fountain spirits generate themselves again, and show forth themselves infinitely, wherein forms and images rise up, and wherein the heart of God, or the holy clear Deity in the middle or central seat, generates itself above nature, in that center wherein the light of life rises up.

[Aur. 26:50] But now in man's body, in the government or dominion of the birth or geniture, there are three several things, each of them being distinct, and yet they are not divided asunder one from another; but all three together are one only man, after the kind and manner of the Ternary or Trinity in tile divine being [or essence].

[Aur. 26:51] The flesh is not the life, but is a dead, inanimate being, which, when the government or dominion of the spirit ceases to qualify or operate therein, soon becomes a dead carcass, and putrefies and turns to dust or ashes.

[Aur. 26:52] But now no spirit can subsist in its perfection without a body, for as soon as it departs from the body it loses its government or dominion. For the body is the mother of the spirit, in which the spirit is generated, and in which it receives its strength and power. The spirit is and remains a spirit when it is separated and departed from the body, but it loses its rule, dominion or government.
These three dominions or regimens are the whole man, together with flesh and spirit; and they have severally, for their beginning and dominion or government, a sevenfold form, after the kind and manner of the seven spirits of God, or of the seven planets.

Now as the dominion or government of God’s eternal, beginning-less, infinite birth or geniture is, so also is the beginning and rising or springing up of the seven planets and the stars; and just so also is the rising or springing up of man’s life.

Now observe:

When you mind, think and consider what there is in this world, and what there is without, besides or distinct from this world, or what the essence of all beings is, then you speculate, contemplate, meditate in the whole body of God, who is the essence of all beings; and that is a beginning-less, infinite being.

But it has in its own seat no mobility, rationality or comprehensibility, but is a dark deep, which has neither beginning nor end. In the dark deep is neither thick nor thin, opaque nor transparent, but it is a dark chamber of death, where nothing is perceived, neither cold nor warmth, for it is the end of all things.

This, now, is the body of the deep, or the very real chamber of death.

But in this dark valley there are the seven spirits of God, which have neither beginning nor end, and the one is neither the first, second, third or last.

In these seven dominions or regimens the regimen divides itself into three distinct beings, where the one is not without the other, nor can they be divided the one from the other. But those seven spirits do each of them generate one another, from eternity to eternity.

The first dominion or regimen stands or consists in the body of all things, that is, in the whole deep, or the being or essence of all beings or essences, which has, in all corners and places thereof, in itself the seven spirits in possession, or in propriety indivisibly, or irresistibly, for its proper own.

Now if these seven spirits in any one place wrestle not triumphantly, then in that place there is no mobility, but a deep darkness; and although the spirits are perfect in that place, yet that place is a dark house; as you may perceive and understand by a dark cave or room close shut up, in which the kindled spirits of the planets and stars cannot kindle the elements.

But now the root of the seven spirits is everywhere all over, but when there is no wrestling, then it stands still and quiet, and no mobility is perceived.

What is called Eternity.

Also what the House of Flesh is.

And such a house is the whole deep without, within, and above all heavens; which house is called the Eternity. And such a house also is the house of flesh in man, and in all creatures.

And this being, together, comprehends the eternity, which is not called God, but the un-almighty body of nature, wherein indeed, the Deity is immortal or not dead, but standing hidden in the kernel of the seven spirits; and yet not comprehended or understood.

And such a house also the whole space or extent of this world came to be, when the Deity, in the seven spirits, had hidden itself from the horrible devils.

And the whole space had so continued, if the seven planets and stars had not risen or sprung up from God’s spirits, which seven planets opened again and kindled the chambers of death in the dark house of this world, in all places everywhere; from where exists the regimen or dominion of the elements.

[Aur. 26:67] Moreover, you are to know also, that the regimen or dominion of the seven spirits of God in the house of this world is not on that account exsiccated or dried up in death, that all must necessarily receive its life and beginning from the planets and stars.

[Aur. 26:68] No! For the clear Deity stands everywhere hidden in the circle in the heart of the whole deep; and the seven spirits stand in the body of the deep in anxiety and great longing, and are still kindled by the planets and stars; from where exists the mobility, and the birth or geniture in the whole deep.

[Aur. 26:69] But as long as the heart of the Deity, which [heart] is the corporeity, hides itself in the body of this world in the outermost birth, the corporeity is a dark house; all stands in great anguish and needs a light, which is the sun, to shine in the chamber of darkness, until the heart of God does move itself again in the seven spirits of God in the house of this world, and kindle the seven spirits.

[Aur. 26:70] Then the sun and stars will return again to their first place, and will pass away in such a form or manner; for the Heart and Light of God will give light and shine again in the corporeity, that is, in the body of this world, and replenish or fill all.

[Aur. 26:71] Then the anxiety ceases; for when the anxiety in the dominion of the geniture or birth-regimen tastes of the sweetness of the light of God, so that the heart of God triumphs together in the birth-regimen, then all is richly full of joy, and the whole body triumphs.

[Aur. 26:72] Which at present in this time, in the house of this world, cannot be, because of the fierce, captive devil, who keeps house in the outermost birth or geniture in the body of this world, till the judgment of God.

Who has the Casting-Shovel in its Hand.

[Aur. 26:73] Now here you may understand how the heart of God has the fan or casting-shovel in its hand, and will one day cleanse his floor: which I herewith earnestly declare to you as in the knowledge in the light of life, where the heart, in the light of life, breaks through, and proclaims the bright, clear day.

Of Man and the Stars.

[Aur. 26:74] Now, as the deep, or the house of this world, is a dark house, where the whole corporeity generates itself, and is very thick, dark, anxious and half dead, and takes its moving from the planets and stars which kindle the body in the outermost birth or geniture, from where exists the mobility of the elements, as also the figured and creaturely being, so also the human house of flesh is a dark valley, wherein is indeed the anxiety to the birth of life, and it always highly endeavors, intending to elevate itself into the light, from which the life might kindle itself.

[Aur. 26:75] But seeing the heart of God did hide itself in the center or kernel, therefore it [this elevation] cannot be; and thereupon [on that account] the anxiety generates no more but ONE seed. The house of the flesh generates a seed of its likeness to the propagating of a man again; and the house of the spirit, in the instant or innate state of the seven spirits, generates in the seed another spirit after its likeness, to the propagating of the spirit of man again.

[Aur. 26:76] And the house of the hidden heart generates also such a spirit as stands hidden, in the body, to the spirit of the house of flesh, as also to the spirit of the astral birth or geniture; just as the heart of God in the seven spirits of God stands hidden in the spirits in the deep of this world, and does not kindle them, till after this enumeration or account of time is out.

[Aur. 26:77] This third spirit is the soul in man, and qualifies, mixes or unites with the heart of God, as a son or little god in the great, immense or immeasurable God.

[Aur. 26:78] Now these three distinct dominions or regimens are generated in the seed, which takes its original in the flesh, as I have mentioned before, within three leaves from this.

Now observe this hidden secret hidden Mystery. You Naturalists, observe:

The Gate of the great Mystery.

[Aur. 26:79] Out of the anguishing chamber in the body of this world, out of the seven spirits of God, are risen or sprung forth the stars, which kindle the body of this world; and out of or from the body the fruit or seed generates itself, which is the waters fire, air and earth.

[Aur. 26:80] The earth is the fruit of the seventh spirit of God, which is nature or corporeity, wherein the other six spirits generate themselves again, and figure or frame the Salitter of the seventh spirit into infinite sorts of forms or shapes; so that the earth also generates its seed, which is the fruit of vegetation, as is apparent to the eye.

[Aur. 26:81] Now man’s house of flesh is also such a house as the dark deep of this world is, wherein the seven spirits of God generate themselves.

[Aur. 26:82] But seeing man’s body is its proper own, and is a son of the whole body of God, therefore it generates also a proper seed of its own, according to the government or dominion of his corporeal, qualifying or fountain spirits.

[Aur. 26:83] The body takes its food from the seed of the seven spirits of God in the body of the great deep, which [body] is fire, air, water and earth.

[Aur. 26:84] Of or from the earth it takes the birth of the earth, or the fruit, for it is much more noble than the earth. It is an extracted mass out of the Salitter, out of the seventh nature spirit.

[Aur. 26:85] For when the body of nature was kindled by the Devil, then the word or the heart of God drew together the mass [for man’s body], before the corrupted Salitter was pressed together, which now is called the earth, because of the hard fiereness or corruption.

[Aur. 26:86] But when the earth was pressed together, then the mass stood in the dark deep in the created heaven, between the anxious birth or geniture and the love of the Heart of God, till the sixth day; and then the Heart of God breathed the light of life out of or from his Heart into the innermost or third birth or geniture in the mass.

[Aur. 26:87] Now when this was done, then in the mass the seven spirits of the qualities began to qualify or operate; and in the mass the seed of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits generated itself, as fire, air and water, as it did in the body of the deep.

How Man became a Living Soul.

[Aur. 26:88] Thus MAN became a living soul, in that kind and manner as the sun is risen or sprung forth, and out of that the seven planets.

[Aur. 26:89] The light in man, which the Heart of God had breathed in, signifies or resembles the sun which shines in the whole deep; concerning which you will find more clearly about the creation of man.

[Aur. 26:90] Now behold! As in the deep of this world, through the kindling of the stars, a seed is generated out of the body of the dark deep, like the creaturely body, so also in like manner, in man’s house of flesh there is generated a seed, according to the eternal birth-right of the seven qualifying or fountain spirits.
And in the seed there are three distinct things, whereof the one cannot fathom the others, and yet the others are in that one only seed, and they all qualify, mix or unite one with another, as one being, and they are also one being, and yet also three distinct things, according to the kind and manner of the Ternary or Trinity in the Deity.

First there is the whole body of man, which is a dark house, and has no mobility besides, or without, or distinct from the qualifying or operation of the seven spirits, but is a dark valley, as the body of the deep of this world is.

Now in the dark body of man there is also such a regimen or dominion, as to the seven spirits, as there is in the body of the deep. And when the seven spirits qualify or operate according to the birth-right of the Deity, then, out of the wrestling of the seven spirits, a seed generates itself, according to their likeness.

Now that seed has first a mother, which is the dark chamber of the house of flesh. Secondly, it has a mother, which is the wheel of the seven spirits, according to the kind and manner of the seven planets. Thirdly, it has a mother that is generated in the circle of the seven spirits in the center, which mother is the heart of the seven spirits.

And this now is the mother of the soul, which shines through the seven spirits, and makes them living; and in their stead the seed qualifies, mixes or unites with the Heart of God. But the seed which so qualifies is that seed alone in which the light is kindled: in that in which the wrath-fire burns, there this third mother remains captive in the dark chamber.

And though indeed it is the third mother, yet it remains but a foolish virgin, if the light be not kindled in it. Just as the deep of this world is a foolish virgin before the Heart of God, in which deep of this world the wheel of the seven spirits stands in such anxiety, in so much corruption and redemption, in heat and in cold, as is apparent.

But when the third mother is kindled in the light, then it stands in the created heaven of the holy life, and shines through the second mother, the seven spirits, whereby the seven spirits get a friendly, courteous will, which is the love of the life, as you may read in the eighth chapter of this book, concerning the love-birth or geniture of God.

But through the third mother they cannot constantly or permanently shine, for the third mother stands in the house of darkness; but they often cast a glimpse upon the third mother, even as if it lightened, whereby the third mother many times becomes very longing, and rejoices highly, but is soon bolted up again by the fierceness of God's wrath.

The Devil also dances at this gate, for it is the prison wherein the new man lies hid, and wherein the Devil lies captive.

I mean, in the house of the deep of this world. Though indeed [in] the house of flesh and the deep all [things or parts] qualify with one another as one body, and are one body, only [with] distinct parts or members.

The Deep in the Center.

Now behold! When the seed is generated, it stands in the center or midst of the body in the heart; for there the mother catches the Ternary or Trinity.

First, the astringent spirit catches hold, and that draws together a mass or lump out of the sweet water, that is, out of or from the unctuosity or fatness of the blood of the heart, or from the sap or oil of the heart.

Now that oil has clearly the root of the Ternary or Trinity in it, viz. the whole man; for it is just as when kindled tinder is cast into straw.
The Deep, Hidden Secret Mystery of the Humanity.

[Aur. 26:104] Now it may be asked, How comes this to pass?

Here now is the true ground of man; observe it exactly, for it is the looking-glass of the great Mystery, the deep secret of the humanity, about which all the learned, since the beginning of the world, have danced, and have sought after this door, but they have not found it.

[Aur. 26:105] But I must once mention, that now is the Dawning or Morning Redness of the Day, as the Door-keeper will have me do.

Now observe:

[Aur. 26:106] Just as was the first mass, out of which Adam became a living man, so also in like manner is every mass or seed of the Ternary or Trinity in every man.

Observe:

[Aur. 26:107] When the Salitter or fabric of the six qualifying or fountain spirits (which Salitter is the seventh nature-spirit in the space or room of this world) was kindled, then the Word or Heart of God stood everywhere in the center or midst of the circle of the seven spirits, as a heart, which [heart] at once replenished all, viz. the whole space or room of this world.

[Aur. 26:108] But seeing the deep, that is, the whole space of this world, was the body of the Father (understand the Father of the Heart of God), understand the Father’s body, and the Heart in the whole body did shine forth, viz. the Father’s luster or brightness, then the corrupted Salitter was affected or possessed everywhere with the light; and the Heart of God could not fly out from it, but did hide its luster and shining light in the body of the whole deep, from the horrid kindled spirits of devils.

[Aur. 26:109] When this was done, then the qualifying or fountain spirits became very fierce and vehemently struggling, and the astringent spirit, as the strongest, drew very terribly together in the seventh nature-spirit the fabric and effects of the other five; from where the bitter earth and stones came to be, but [they] were not yet driven together, but moved in the whole deep.

[Aur. 26:110] In this hour the mass was drawn together; for when the Heart of God did hide itself in the Salitter, then it cast a glance again on the whole space or body, and thought how it might be remedied again, whereby another angelical kingdom might be in the deep of this world.

[Aur. 26:111] But the glance was the love-spirit in the Heart of God, which in that place of the glance affected or possessed the oil of the water, where previously the light was risen up.

[Aur. 26:112] Here consider Saint Peter’s glance, that was cast upon him in the house of Caiphas: it is the very same.

[Aur. 26:113] And the spirit of the man, (understand the root of the love which, in the rising up of the life out of the water, rises up through the fire), and also the spirit of the woman, both catch one another in that oil of the heart, where presently a mass, seed, or driving will or desire to the propagating of a man again arises in the mass.

[Aur. 26:114] Just in such a way and manner the first mass also came to be, for the love-spirit in the Heart of God cast a glance, in the body of the kindled wrathful Father, on the water of life, whereby, and out of which, the love in the fire-flash arose or sprang up before the time of the wrath.

[Aur. 26:115] In this casting of the glance the one spirit caught the other; the unctuous oil or water in the wrath conceived from the love-spirit in the Heart of God, and qualified, mixed or united with the same, and the astringent spirit drew the mass together; and there was clearly a birth, or a will or desire to the producing of a whole creature; just as the seed in man is.
But now the firmament of heaven, that is between the Heart of God and the kindled, hard chamber of death, was closed or shut up; else the life in the mass had suddenly kindled itself.

For the firmament was within in the mass, as well as without, distinct from the mass, which is the parting mark or limit of separation between the Heart of God and the fierce devils.

Therefore the Word or Heart of God must blow up the moving spirit in the mass, which was first done but on the sixth day, for very assured causes.

For if heaven had not, as a firmament, been shut up in the mass, between the Heart of God and the corporeal, qualifying or fountain spirits of the mass, then the mass might have kindled the soul from or by its own power; as it happened with the holy angels.

But it was to be feared that it would come to pass as it did with that fair little son Lucifer, seeing the corporeal, qualifying or fountain spirits in the mass were kindled in the wrath-fire.

Therefore heaven must be a firmament between the sparkle which had conceived from the Heart of God in the first glance; that though the body might happen to perish, yet the holy seed might remain, which is the soul, which qualifies, mixes or unites with the Heart of God, out of which a new body might come to be, when the whole God should kindle again the deep of this world in the light of the Heart of God; and just so it is come to be with the body. The love of God have mercy, and take pity on it!

The dear man Moses writes, That God made man out of a clod of earth, as the learned have rendered it. But Moses was not present when it was done.

But this I must of necessity say, that Moses has written very rightly, though the true understanding or meaning, out of what the earth proceeded, remained hidden to Moses, and to them that have come after him in the letter, for the spirit has kept it hidden to this very time.

It was also hidden from Adam, while he was yet in Paradise; but now it will be fully revealed. For the Heart of God has set upon or assaulted the chamber of death, and will shortly break quite through.

And therefore, in these our present times, some beams of the day will more and more break through in the hearts of some men, and make known the day.

RA. RA. R.P.

But when the Dawning or Morning Redness shall shine from the east to the west, or from the rising to the setting, then, assuredly, time will be no more; but the SUN of the Heart of God rises or springs forth, and, RA. RA. RP. will be pressed in the winepress without the city, and therewith to R.P.

These are hidden, mystical words, and are understood only in the language of nature.

Moses writes very rightly, that man was created out of the earth; but at that time, when the mass was held by the Word, then the mass was not earth. But if it had not been held or kept by the Word, then at that very hour it had become black earth, but the cold wrath-fire was in it already.

For at the very hour when Lucifer elevated himself the Father was moved to wrath in the qualifying or fountain spirits against the legions of Lucifer; and the Heart of God hid itself in the firmament of heaven, where the Salitter, effect, product or fabric of the corporeity was burning already; for without or distinct from the light is the dark chamber of death.

[Aur. 26:130] But the mass was held or kept in the firmament of heaven that it might not be congealed; for when the Heart of God glanced on the mass with its hot love, then the unctuosity or oil in the mass, which rose up out of the water through the fire, out of which the light rises up, and out of which the love-spirit rises up, caught hold of the Heart of God, and was impregnated with a young son.

[Aur. 26:131] And that was the seed of love; for one love embraced the other; the love of the mass embraced and conceived from the love out of the glance of the Heart of God, and was thereby impregnated; and this is the birth or geniture of the soul; and as to this son, man is the image of God.

[Aur. 26:132] But the qualifying or fountain spirits in the mass could not presently be kindled thereby from the soul; for the soul stood only in the seed in the mass, hidden with the Heart of God in its heaven, till the Creator breathed upon the mass; and then the qualifying or fountain spirits kindled the soul also, and then both body and soul lived equally together.

[Aur. 26:133] Indeed the soul had its life before the body, but it stood in the Heart of God, hidden in the mass in heaven, and was a kind of holy seed, qualifying, mixing or uniting with God, which seed is eternal, incorruptible and indestructible; for it was a new and pure seed for an angel and image of God.

[Aur. 26:134] But the fabric, effect or product of the whole mass was an extract or attraction of the Word of God, out of the fabric or effect of the qualifying or fountain spirits, or of the Salitter, out of which the earth came to be.

[Aur. 26:135] This extract was not yet become earth, though it was the Salitter of the earth, but was held or kept by the Word.

[Aur. 26:136] For when the love-spirit out of the Heart of God glanced on the Salitter of the mass, then the Salitter did catch hold of it and conceived from it, and was impregnated in the center of the soul, and the Word stood in the mass in the sound; but the light abode in the center of the mass, in the firmament of heaven, remaining hidden in the unctuous oil of the heart, and did not move itself forth out of the firmament of heaven, in the birth of the qualifying or fountain spirits.

[Aur. 26:137] Else, if the light had kindled itself in the birth or geniture of the soul, then all the seven qualifying or fountain spirits, according to the eternal birthright of the Deity, had triumphed and qualified, mixed or united in and with the light, and had been a living angel; but seeing the wrath had clearly already infected the Salitter, therefore that danger was to be feared that befell Lucifer.

Four Questions Concerning that Mass which is Man.

Now it may be asked:

[Aur. 26:138] Why were not many masses created at this time, out of which, instantly at once, there might have been a whole angelical host or army, instead of fallen Lucifer?

[Aur. 26:139] Why should there be so long a time of staying in the wrath?

[Aur. 26:140] And why should the whole host or army be generated out of that one mass, in so very long a time?

[Aur. 26:141] Or did not the Creator at this time see and know of the fall of man?
Answer.

[Aur. 26:142] This now is the very door of the hidden, secret Mystery of the Deity; concerning which the Reader is to conceive, that it is not in the power or capacity of any man to discern or to know it, if the Dawning or Morning-Redness does not break forth in the center in the soul.

[Aur. 26:143] For these things are divine Mysteries, which no man can search into by his own Reason. I also esteem myself most unworthy of such a gift; and besides, I shall have many scorners and mockers against me; for the corrupted nature is horribly ashamed before the light.

[Aur. 26:144] But for all that, I cannot forbear; for when the divine light breaks forth in the circle or birth of life, then the qualifying or fountain spirits rejoice, and in the circle of the life reflect or look back into their mother, into the eternity; and they also look forwards into the eternity.

[Aur. 26:145] It [the breaking forth of the light] is not, however, a permanent essence, nor a constant illumination of the qualifying or fountain spirits, much less of the bestial body; but it is the ray of the breaking through of the light of God with a fiery impulse, which rises up through the meek water of life in the love, and remains, abiding in its heaven.

[Aur. 26:146] Therefore I can bring it no further than from the heart into the brain, before the princely throne of the senses, and there it is shut up in the firmament of heaven; and it goes not back again through the qualifying or fountain spirits into the mother of the heart, that it might come on to the tongue, for if that were done I would tell it with my mouth, and make it known to the world.

[Aur. 26:147] But for that cause I will let it stand in its heaven, and write according to my gifts, and with wonder and admiration expect what will become of it. For in the qualifying or fountain spirits I cannot sufficiently comprehend or apprehend it, because they stand in the anxious chamber.

[Aur. 26:148] With or through the soul, I see it very well; but the firmament of the heaven is between, in which the soul hides itself, and there receives its rays from the light of God; and in that respect it goes through the firmament of heaven as a tempest of lightning, but very gently, in a most amiable and pleasant delight and joy.

[Aur. 26:149] So that I cannot, in the comprehensibility, in my innate, instant or present qualifying or fountain spirits, or in the circle of life, discern or know it otherwise, for the day breaks forth apace.

[Aur. 26:150] For that cause I will write according to this knowledge, though the Devil should offer to assault and storm the world; which, however, he cannot do. But his hourglass is shown to him, and set before him.

[Aur. 26:151] Now come on, you Electionists, and contenders about the Election of Grace, you that suppose you alone are in the right, and esteem a simple faith to be but a foolish thing; you have danced long enough before this door, and have made your boast of the Scriptures, that they maintain that God has of grace chosen some men in their mother’s womb to the kingdom of heaven, and reproibrated or rejected others.

[Aur. 26:152] Here make to yourselves many masses, out of which there may proceed other manner of men of other qualities, and then you may be in the right. But out of the one only mass you can make no more than one only love of God, which presses forth through the first man, and so presses through and upon all. If God should have permitted Peter or Paul to have written otherwise, then look to the ground, to the heart.
[Aur. 26:153] If you lay hold on the Heart of God, then you have ground enough.

[Aur. 26:154] If God give me life a little while longer, I will show you Saint Paul’s Election of Grace.
CHAPTER 27

Notes Concerning the not finishing of this Book Aurora.

[Aur. 27:1] I advertise the Reader, who loves God, that this Book, the Aurora or Morning Redness, was not finished.\textsuperscript{280} For the Devil intended to put a Stop to it, and suppress it, when he perceived that the Day would break forth therein. And the Day has clearly made have after the Morning Redness, so that it is become very Light. There wants about Thirty Sheets to the End of it. But seeing the Storm has broken them off, therefore it was not finished; and in the mean while it is come to be Day, so that the Morning Redness is passed away, and since that Time, the Work has gone on by Day. And it shall so stand, for an eternal Remembrance, seeing the Defect herein is supplied in the other books.\textsuperscript{281}

Jacob Behmen, 1620.

Note.

[Aur. 27:1] The Dawning or Morning-Redness rises up from the Infancy and Child-hood, and shows or demonstrates the Creation of all Beings, but very Mystically, and not sufficiently clear, but full of magical Understanding, for there are some Mysteries therein which are yet to come to pass.\textsuperscript{282}

Note.

[Aur. 27:2] This is the deep hidden magical Book, which the Author at that Time might not make clearer, but may now do it through the Grace of God. 1621.

Note.

[Aur. 27:3] This Book is wrote in a magical Sense or Understanding, for the Author himself only, who knew of no other Readers; be supposed he made this Work only for himself, but God has disposed it otherwise.

Note.

[Aur. 27:4] The Author expressed the first Syllable MER, in the Word MERCURIUS, with the first Vowel A, as MAR, MARCURIUS, not without a special mystical Cause. But because the self-conceited Wise in Reason disliked it, accounting it but a country, vulgar Expression, therefore it is wrote according to the common received Word, MERCURIUS.

[Aur. 27:5] The Corn grows against the Will of the Enemy. For that which is sown by God, no Man can prevent or binder the Growing of it.\textsuperscript{283}
